

BRIHAM YOUNG UNIVERSITY.

Provo.—The president spent all day Wednesday in Salt Lake City with the board of examiners.

A number of the students have expressed their determination to remain in the Deseret Summer school, which will commence the 15th of June.

Instructor Forayth was in Salt Lake City Tuesday on business.

The unique feature to be introduced in the new reception to be given Friday evening are creating a great deal of curiosity and interest.

The methods the graduating classes have adopted to distinguish themselves are of the latest invention and cause no little merriment.

Prof. S. L. Chipman of American Fork has presented the domestic science department with a large range. The school, and especially the department, sincerely thank this liberal benefactor.

Prof. Miller's music department will give one of its high class concerts this evening. Important numbers to be given on the program are: Trombone solo, Samuel Jepperson; violin solo, Ralph Booth; clarinet solo, John Sonderger; vocal solo, Florence Jepperson; dramatic reading, Miss Erickson. The orchestra as a whole will render some of the most classic compositions of the masters.

Miss Annie Hillon, an old student, was a visitor today.

"Christopher Junior," presented in the opera house Saturday evening by the well known T. of U. dramatic company, is a "talking" little comedy play well played by our amateur friends.

Last Sunday evening the regular domestic meeting for the students was adjourned to meet with the Sunday school convention in the Tabernacle. An interesting program was listened to.

Preparations are being made by the various graduating classes for their commencement exercises.

Miss Arretta Young will not be with us next year, as she intends to go east to study.

Calvin Fletcher will be a member of the faculty next year to assist in the arts and industries department.

Mr. Warrick, a commercial student of last year, was a visitor last week.

Messrs. Fletcher and Crum were at Mt. Pleasant last Saturday, where the last institute for this year of the North Mountain teachers was held.

The banquet given in honor of Sister Bathsheba W. Smith by the Relief society was under the direct supervision of Miss Ward and the domestic science department.

Prof. Hinckley took his physical geography class up to State canyon last week.

Eleven students will take out special certificates in elocution this year. There will also be a number of special certificates granted in music, nursing and art.

The geology class took a tramp on the mountain side last Thursday for the purpose of making contour maps and to examine the fault line along the base of the mountain range.

The program given Friday evening under the auspices of the literary society was one of the most entertaining we have had this season. Miss Holbrook showed excellent taste in the selection of her subject matter and her presentation was pleasing and skillful.

BRIHAM YOUNG COLLEGE.

Logan, May 5.—Supt. J. M. Tanner paid us another visit this week and attended to some important business for the college. On Wednesday he was present at a devotion, was also Pres. Joseph Morrell, of Cache County, and both addressed the students, giving very valuable advice.

The result of the track meet last Saturday, in which our athletes came to bear making a tied score with the A. team, is a source of self congratulation on the part of the college. It was no more pleasing to our faculty and students than it was surprising to the general public.

The debate with the B. Y. university at Provo, will take place on May 12. Prof. E. Peterson and Chauncey Loveland will represent the college. There is a possibility that our track team may go to Provo at the same time to contest with the Provo boys on Saturday, the 13th. Definite arrangements have not yet been made.

The program for the Brigham Young family reunion to be held here on May 1, has not yet been completed, but the committee has outlined a plan for the celebration of the guests, which includes a morning drive around the city and up Logan canyon, a visit to the Agricultural College, luncheon at the Y. college, and a visit to its several buildings. In the evening it is designed to have a public meeting with addresses of welcome from prominent Logan men, and responses from the family. A musical program is also being arranged. The day will end with a social and dance in the evening.

Prof. A. E. Bowen, who so recently lost his life, received word yesterday of the death of his oldest brother, He went to the funeral yesterday.

President Linford attended a meeting of the board of examiners in Salt Lake on Tuesday.

The circulars are out announcing the courses to be offered at the Deseret summer institute to be held in Provo, June to July 15. Excellent courses have been outlined for the students in English, mathematics, methods for the city and up Logan canyon, a visit to the Agricultural College, luncheon at the Y. college, and a visit to its several buildings.

UNIVERSITY OF UTAH.

President Kingsbury and the faculty gave an informal reception to the students of all departments of the University last night in the museum building. The students came at 8 and went home at 11.

Today Dr. Talmage took his students in geology and mineralogy on an excursion to the Cottonwood canon. The party went on the street cars to Murray and were taken by teams from there to the canyon.

Two courses for students intending to enter the medical profession will be offered at the University next year. The first course consists of the regular freshman and sophomore years of the standard medical course. This course will be open to all students who comply with the entrance requirements to the school of arts and sciences. The second pre-medical course is a combined course in arts and medicine leading to the degree A. B. It includes besides two full years' work in medicine a general training in modern languages and natural science, which are all the time becoming more necessary to the successful practitioner. Students will now be able to do at the University two full years' work in medicine beyond the general preparatory work required for entrance to the best medical schools and will thus be admitted in these schools to junior standing, arrangements to this end having been effected by Prof. Chamberlain.

Tomorrow night Messrs. Karl Hopkins, Dale Parke and Ed Alexander will speak on the "Issue of the closed and open shop" before the American Federation of Labor of Salt Lake City. These young men will leave for Denver on the evening of May 12, where they will represent the University in an intercollegiate debate with the University of Denver on May 13.

On Monday the faculty refused to grant the college a commencement program separate from the graduates of the state normal school.

On Wednesday the college students met and adopted the new constitution that had been drafted by Andrew P. Sherman and Elbert D. Thomas. The

Mr. John Jensen, editor of the Chronicle, has completed the outline for the Year Book to be issued instead of the regular commencement number of the Chronicle. The book will contain 150 pages and will be issued during the last week of the school year.

Today Dr. Ebeaugh took his students in analytical chemistry through the smelters at Murray and Bingham Junction.

SALT LAKE CITY SCHOOLS.

Prof. William M. Stewart was the speaker at the last session of city principals. He expressed his views on the "Relation of the Training School to the City School System." A very spirited discussion ensued, in which ample opportunity was afforded the principals to defend his position, which was vigorously attacked by some of the principals.

Dr. La Motte, who has served in the medical department of United States navy, addressed the High school last Wednesday morning. His interesting talk was confined to his experiences while in the navy.

The Bryant High school is establishing a record as a promoter of debates. Two societies, between whom a healthy competition has arisen, have been organized. They have given themselves the appellation of the Philomathean and Athenian societies. The former discussed the question, "Resolved, that capital punishment should be abolished." The affirmative speakers were Thomas Walton and Albert MacCannell, the negative, Rena Bray and Charles Chaffin. On this occasion excellent powers of argument were displayed, especially by the affirmative, who carried off the laurels.

A "Japanese afternoon" in true oriental style was given by room 2, third-A students of the Lafayette, Friday afternoon. Fifty patrons were present and accepted the hospitality of the group of daintily gowned girls, who served a la Japanese the oriental beverage.

Robert Dunn, war correspondent of Collier's Weekly, will speak under the auspices of the East Side Athletic association at the Congressional church.

WINS SEVEN YEARS' LEGAL BATTLE.

One of the most picturesque figures in the various copper wars that have waged in this country for the past 10 years is F. Augustus Heinze. Heinze has been opposed to the Amalgamated Copper company almost from the inception of that gigantic combination. The legal fight that Heinze has just won over the Milledale mine is one that has corrupted courts and judges and even extended itself to the legislature of Montana. Millions of dollars have been spent by both sides in this celebrated suit.

Works like magic. Actually transforms old furniture into new. Renews the finish which has deteriorated on all articles of wood or metal. A child can apply it.

A Thoughtless Druggist.

ONLY a thoughtless druggist would offer a preparation without the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher when Castoria is called for; the "delicate, faint and flickering light" that joins baby's life to its devoted parents being too sacred, to the self-respecting druggist, to be trifled with.

For over thirty years Mr. Fletcher has given, and still gives, his personal attention to the preparation of Castoria. It has won the confidence of mothers and physicians everywhere—never harmed the tiniest babe. This cannot be said of Imitations, Counterfeits and the "Just-as-good" rot.

The thoughtless druggist only offers the counterfeit because of a few pennies more profit. Any new preparation can be but an experiment, and they are experiments—mere guess work—irrespective of what their sponsors may say for them. It is experience of over thirty years, against wild and injudicious experiment.

DONT'S, FOR SPEAKERS AND WRITERS.

(Written for the Saturday News BY EDWARD B. WARMAN, A. M. Author of "Practical Orisecopy and Critique," "The Voice, How to Train It; How to Care for It," etc.)

(Copyright, 1905, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

Author's Note.—It is one thing to record errors, quite another to avoid them. He who waits for the faultless one to cast the first critical stone waits in vain; therefore, as one of the many working for the betterment of the English language, I shall be pleased to receive kindly criticism, if perchance, I, too, have erred.

Don't say "was" for "is." Example: "The greatest of all paintings was that by Raphael," should be, "The greatest of all paintings is that by Raphael."

Note.—What is true at all times should be expressed by using the verb in the present tense. Example: "What did you say his name was?" should be "What did you say his name is?"

Don't say "was" for "have been." Example: "I was never in Alaska," should be "I have never been in Alaska."

Note.—See "saw" for "have seen." Don't say "was" for "were." Example: "Was there any prisoners?" should be "Were there any prisoners?"

Don't say "wearies" for "weary" or "weary." Example: "He wearies of life" should be "He is weary of life" or "He is weary of life."

Don't say "we both" for "we." Example: "The young man called and we took a walk" should be "The young man called and we took a walk."

Don't say "wedding trousseau" for "trousseau." Note.—A trousseau is a bride's outfit; hence, the word wedding is superfluous.

Don't say "as" for "us." Example: "Let us girls go with you," should be "Let us girls go with you."

Don't say "went for" "have gone." Example: "I never went to China," should be "I never have gone to China."

Don't say "were" for "was." Example: "A large gang of men were at work," "A large crowd of spectators were present," "A heavy of girls were in attendance," should be, "A large gang of men was at work," "A heavy of girls was in attendance."

Note.—The best authorities use the single verb with collective nouns. "The Writer," Boston, Mass.—To my ear the former seems more euphonious.

Don't say "what" for "that." Example: "I cannot believe but what he did it," should be "I cannot believe but that he did it."

Don't say "where at" for "where." Example: "Where is he at?" should be "Where is he?"

Don't say "where to" for "where." Example: "Where has he gone to?" should be "Where has he gone?"

Don't say "which" for "that." Example: "The lawyer which won the case is now in court," should be "The lawyer that won the case is now in court."

Note.—A restrictive clause; hence, that, not which.

Don't say "who" for "that." Example: "This is the man who saved my life," should be "This is the man that saved my life."

Note.—The use of that or who depends upon the construction of the sentence. "If it is a restrictive clause, that should be the relative; if co-ordinative, who or which."

"That" is the proper restrictive, explicative, limitative or defining relative. —The Verbalist.

Don't say "who" for "whom." Example: "Who do you know?" "Who did she marry?" "Who are you looking for?" "Who do you know?" "Whom do you see?" "Whom did she marry?" "Whom are you looking for?" "Whom are you talking to?"

Note.—The last two are according to many grammarians; but I prefer them thus: "For whom are you looking?" "Two whom are you talking?"

Don't say "whom" for "who." Example: "Searching for his daughter whom he thought might have been saved," To Marry the woman whom the lawyers endeavor to prove was his first wife. "Whom Christian Scientists claim has shown," etc., should be "Searching for his daughter who he thought might have been saved." "To marry the woman who the lawyers endeavor to prove was his first wife."

Note.—These would read as first given—whom might, whom was, whom he, The Writer, Boston, Mass.

Don't say "widow" for "wife." Example: "He left a widow and three children," should be "He left a wife and three children."

Don't say "widow woman" for "widow." Example: "A widow woman lives in that house," should be "A widow lives in that house."

Note.—It would be as correct to say a "widower man" as to say a "widow woman." In each case the former implies the latter.

Don't say "will" for "shall." Note.—How few of us indeed are wholly exempt from this error.

Rule: "When nominative case, first person, expressing futurity, use 'will.'" Example: "I shall go to the theater."

Rule: "When nominative case, second and third person, expressing futurity, use 'will.'" Example: "You will see a grand procession."

Rule: "When nominative case, second or third person, expressing determination, use 'will.'" Example: "I will do it or die."

Rule: "When nominative case, second or third person, expressing determination, use 'will.'" Example: "You shall do as you agree."

Rule: "When nominative case, second or third person, expressing determination, use 'will.'" Example: "He shall never leave."

Note.—I herewith give a diagram for the purpose of showing one to retain and apply the rules.

Nominative case, first person futurity: I shall, we shall.

Nominative case, second or third person futurity: You will, he will, they will.

Nominative case, first person determination: I will, we will.

Nominative case, second or third person determination: You shall, he shall, they shall.

The excellent display given by the Washington is to be duplicated by the Lafayette next Monday afternoon and evening. Halls and alcoves will bristle with the exhibits.

The Grand theater will be the scene of a debate on the 27th inst. The East Side gives its commencement exercises in the evening of that date.
