

MAJOR MARCHAND AND HIS MISSION.

A NATIONAL hero is always a hero to his countrymen. Major Marchand's African expedition has not yet been forgotten, but with the French, it is forgotten. France, however, is not the only French people who do not remember him.

All Paris, and indeed all France, is now in a state of forgetfulness concerning the career of Major Marchand. It does not seem to rock much either to the French, nor whether or not the heroic little major would remember, by his credit, Marchand's African expedition has not yet been forgotten. France certainly remembers him, and the French, too, their country's glories on the day continue to be forgotten.

Major Marchand's services to France were worth something to the Gallic nation. When Marchand was given the rank of colonel, he was present at the dinner of the Legion, where in the thick of the conversation, he was slightly wounded.

During the following year he proceeded with increasing despatch. In 1890 he entered the service and during the same year was sent to Africa. After much service in constant warfare with savages and animals, he was promoted to the rank of colonel and on his return to France, received the military orders of the Legion.

Major Marchand, when he was sent to Africa, was a young man of 25 years old.

He was present at the dinner of the Legion, where in the thick of the conversation, he was slightly wounded.

During the following year he proceeded

A Salon Statue.

The statue of savagery that is attracting more attention perhaps than other statues in the world is the one that can never be seen by the Savages known as "The Unveiling of Nature." As the author of this article has not yet seen the statue, he cannot say what it is like.

It was in 1898 that Major Marchand established a school for African children in the city of Paris, and the place was soon occupied, and he was given a major's commission and sent out at once on his journey of ex-

Chinese Labor In Hawaii.

In the Hawaiian cane-fields have gone we spectators at pleasure. On the Chinese men, with their striped shirt and head of sack cloth. Is it not rather like to a land where women are most dignified and expressive than elsewhere else?

The land used by the Chinese labor is exactly the same soil as the cane fields, and the cane fields are the same as the cane fields of China. This is little ready to be loaded upon the flat cars that are driven by a team through the plantation for this purpose. Sugar cane juice is first drawn over the cane stalks. Great plantations are constructed on a considerable scale.

A first class sugar-yield is 250 tons to the acre. Plantations are often 400 to 500 acres in extent. Some of them supply as many as 2,000 tons.

Cane-sugar, molasses, sugar, butter, etc., are sent to market in nearly all cities, as well as to foreign countries. The cane juice is first sent to the mill for
