A feature is to be the library, with fire proof apartment for one of the finest private libraries in the country, and no pains will be spared to make the new residence comfortable and convenient.

Stiff Exams at Columbia—A Salt Lake boy in the Columbia School of Mines, who has just passed his midyear examinations, writes home that there are some things he does not relish, and among them are examinations, where one has to do a year's work the night before the ordeal. "Today we had two one in recourse the work the night before the ordeal. "To-day we had two—one in geology, the other in mining (timbering, gunpowder, etc.) In geology there were 50 questions printed, with five more to draw, like a nig in a poke, and 15 minutes to answer them in. The drawn questions require a description of Butte, Mont. Last week we had examinations in three hard subjects, such as resistance of materials, analytical mechanics, heat and heat engines. They came in succession and in those three nights I had 12 hours' sleep, going to bed at 2 a.m. and rising at 6. FRANK D. HOBBS PASSES AWAY

Register of the U. S. Land Office Answers the Last Call in Chicago.

OPERATION WAS UNAVAILING.

For the Past Twenty-Five Years He Had Been in the Service of The Government.

A message from Chicago, received late last night, conveyed the intelligence that Maj. Frank D. Hobbs, for many years a resident of this city, was dead. Word received earlier in the day was to the effect that his condition was somewhat improved, and friends here were greatly shocked to learn that the

MANY SPEECHES AT BANQUET.

Function Starts Early and Lasts Until One O'Clock in the Morning -Some Speakers.

The anniversary of Abraham Lincoln's birthday was fittingly observed by the Republicans of the city last evening at the Commercial club rooms, where a banquet had been prepared by the Salt Lake Intermountain Republican. About 300 prominent Republicans were in attendance, including most of the members of the Seventh state legisveteran had passed away.

Mr. Hobbs, accompanied by his wife lature, the Democratic members of and daughter, went to Chicago about a which were also honored guests. And month ago, where he submitted to an operation. His condition from that time was favorable and unfavorable in turn, but it was hoped that he would ultimately recover.

For 13 years Mr. Hobbs had been register of the government land office in this city. He was appointed first by President Harrison, and subsequently received the position from President McKinley for two terms of four years each. A year ago he was reappointed by President Roosevelt. For the last 25 years he had been in the service of the government in one capacity or another.

Maj. Hobbs was a veteran of the Civil war, having enlisted on the side of the war, having enlisted on the side of the Union when but 15 years of age. He was wounded in one of his legs during an engagement and was rendered a cripple for life.

Maj. Hobbs was one of the men that suffered the horrors of the Libby prison, and there a seige of typhoid nearly const and there a seige of typhoid nearly cost him his life. He was among a number of prisoners liberated on exchange, and thus left the place that as a den of suffering and death was a close second to the "Black Hole of Calcutta." One who was at Libby wrote.

"I never can forget
In all the years to come,
How we lingered, watched and waited,
In the prison far from home.
At night we longed for morning.
But the morning brought despair,
As we breathed the poisonous vapors
Of damp and stagnant air. Of damp and stagnant air.

A slice of rusty bacon

And a crust of moldy bread,

Which we clutched with glowing fin

Like fingers of the dead."

Doubtless the seeds of disease that entered Maj. Hobbs' body during those trying weeks in Libby caused him to suffer more or less during the remainder of his days and finally cut him down when he was anything but at der of his days and finally cut him down when he was anything but an aged man, being at his demise but 61. In his walk through life he was honorable and upright, and to know the man was to respect him. He had a host of friends here, who will sympathize deeply with the widow and daughter of Maj. Hobbs. His body will be brought to Salt Lake and interment will take place here.

NEGLECTED COLDS THREATEN

LIFE.

"Ton't trille with a cold," is good advice for prudent men and women. It may be vital in the case of a child Proper food, good venitation, and dry, warm clothing are the proper safeguards against colds, if they are maintained through the changeable weather of autumn, winter and spring, the chances of a surprise from ordinary light cold will become severe if neglected, and a well established ripe cold is to the germs of diphtheria what honey is to the bee. The greatest menace to child life at this season of the year is the neglected cold." Whether it is a child or adult, the cold slight or severe, the very best treatment that can be adopted is to give Chamberiain's Cough Remedy. It is safe and sure. The great nopularity and immense sale of this preparation has been attained by its remarkable cures of this silment. A cold never results in paeumonia when it is given. For sale by all druggists.

Abraham Lincoln was as hearty on the part of the Democrats as on that of the Republicans.

The banquet began early; and that was a happy thought on the part of the management, for as it was, the last speech was not "all in" until nearly i o'clock a. m. The spread was a good one, and much enjoyed by the guests.

The speechmaking began with a short talk by H. E. Booth, who felicitated himself, the paper, the party, and in fact pretty much averybody else on everything in general, and wound up by introducing as the toastmaster of the evening, Mr. James Clove, of Provo.

Extended letters of regret were read from Senators Reed Smoot and George Sutherland and Congressman Howelf, each of whom made fitting reference to the honored American in whose memory honored American in whose memory the banquet was given.

Notes of regret were also received from Hon. O. J. Salisbury, Col. M. M. Kaighn, Samuel Newhouse, and oth-can be samuel Newhouse, and others.

One of the most eloquent tributes ever paid to the memory of Lincoln in the hearing of those present, was the address of Rev. Benjamin Young, whose subject was "Abraham Lincoln, the Great Commoner," The reverend gentlemen traced the humble life and modest early achievements of Lincoln, gradually working up to his epoch making acts as president of the United States.

GOV. CUTLER'S SPEECH The next speaker was Governor Cut-er, who responded to the toast "The tate of Utah." His remarks were in art as follows:
"In one of his rapturous moods, the poet Burns wrote regarding certain steps in the creation of the world, and produced the lines:

"'His 'prentice hand He tried on man, And then He made the lasses."

And then He made the lasses."

"It was an expert opinion by one who knew the lasses. In his estimation they were the finished product, the output of skilled hands that had made man and other products just for practice. And there isn't a man sitting here tonight who will not agree with Burns that the creation of woman was the crowning event in the making of the world 'and all that in it is'—the greatest of all achievements. Or if there is such a man here, I extend to him profound pity, but he can have none of my sympathy.

"It isn't that a woman is the largest or the gaudlest or most awe-inspiring or the wealthest or the oldest of all createst dhings, but simply that she is the best, the most finished, the most beautiful, the most satisfactory. She is the heplus ultra of creation. The skill of the Creator simply could not go beyond the beauty and the loveliness and the exquisite sweetness of a woman. "And now I wish to draw a parallel. For many years our nation was making states. From the day when the first 13 sprang into existence, like Minerya, full armed from the head of ing states. From the day when the first 13 sprang into existence, like Minerva, full armed from the head of Jupiter, down through the years till 1896 states had been formed from the magnificent reaches of our splendid country. To the east and the west and the north of us this making of states had been going on. And then, when the hand of our great nation was sufficiently skilled with the long-continued practise, when everything good and noble had been brought together, both in material and in workmanship, io. material and in workmanship, lo, Utah was formed.

"We Utah people can take care of our own troubles. We want settlers to come, however, and help us take care of and develop the many good thins." of and develop the many good things that are here. We invite them most cordially. We deplore misstatements that go out from Utah, tending to discourage people from coming here. Wa hope the tide of defamation can be stopped, and that before long all citi-zens of Utah will join in publishing to the world her great attractions, and in saying to the people everywhere, 'Utah is the best place on earth, come and help us keep in the van of progress.'"

OTHER SPEECHES.

Ex-Goy. Arthur L. Thomas then spoke briefly and humorously on "Our Country." His remarks were replete with witty sallies, and he grew eloquent as he traced the history of the progress of our country.

Stephen H. Love, of the state senate who described in all its glory, the new state capitol yet to be built on Capito hill. Mr. Love artistically assigned a place in the building to every office holder in the state from the governor down, filling the niches in the rotunda with statuary of the most approved order.

At this juncture Tolton of Benver arose to a point of personal privilege, and said that although he was a minority member, he would move for an appropriation of $100,000 for the eree.

appropriation of $100,000 for the effection of a capitol building such as had been described by the last speaker. The matter was referred to the committe on suprheated atmosphere.

LeRoy Armstrong then followed with personal recollections of the great president.

James H. Anderson followed with remarks of an eulogistic nature, and Judge Ritchie made a fine talk on the "Judiciary."

The last speech of the evening was made by Speaker of the House Harry Joseph, who spoke on the subject of Utah's mines and mineral wealth. Mr. Joseph quoted statistics showing how the output of Utah's mines had increased within the last few years until mining had taken its place as the leading industry of the state.

The program was interspersed with musical numbers by a male quartet and Mr. Williard Andells which select.

ARIZONA STRIP.

Memorial to Congress Drawn up Requesting Its Annexation to Utah.

To accomplish the annexation to Utah of the country known as the Arizona strip is the purpose of a joint memorial to Congress, introduced in the lower house. A gress, introduced in the lower house. A bill annexing this country has often been introduced in the national Congress, but it has duly failed of passage each session, while the legislature had duly memorialized Congress again each session to passit. The present memorial recites the facts that Artzona is cut off from this territory by the impassable Colorado river, and that its commercial relations are with Utah, rather than at the state capitel across the river to the south. The memorial calls for the annexation of all of the country north of the Colorado river which is to be marked as the boundary line.

CITY IN CONTEMPT.

Officials Refuse to Turn Water Out of Big Cottonwood Conduit.

Salt Lake City may have to face the charge of contempt of court if the spirit of the late injunction prohibiting the city from using the waters flowing through Big Cottonwood conduit is carried out. John P. Cahoon, manager of the Progress company, upon whose application the injunction was granted, will probably cite the city for contempt, and ask for an order to show cause. The order of Judge Morse demanding that the water be turned out of the conduit upon affidavit of the Progress company, has been dis regarded by the city officials. The injunction was directed to Mayor Thompson, but being unable to locate him, the constable served the process on City Recorder Moreton. Of course, the matter will be fought to a finish principally on technicalities, and the fact that no legal service has been made upon the mayor will probably be relied on to at least temporarily defeat the injunction.
