

PATRIOTS' SIGN WILL STILL STAND

Smart Trick to Defy the City Ordinance Goes Through The Council.

SOME "OVERLOOKED" ITEMS

Thousand Dollars for Police Department Not Included in the Municipal Budget Is Rationed Through.

As example of the beautiful "harmony" which exists among the patriots of the "American" majority in the city council, was developed in the council meeting last evening, when Councilman L. E. Hall raised his voice in protest against the willful violation of the spirit of the city ordinance which prohibits the placing of signs on fences built around sidewalks on the main business streets during the process of erection of new buildings.

The particular instance referred to, was on the property of Thomas Kearns, on Main street between First and Second streets, where a new building is being built out around the sidewalk. The fence is a large sign, advertising "American" party candidates, the sign being far enough inside the fence to evade the ordinance which prohibits placing signs "on the fence."

It was against this piece of chicanery that the "American" party members of the council, Councilman Hall objected, characterizing the act as "a smart trick" and "a smart trick" and to take an advantage because the property where the sign was placed was owned by a notorious "American."

TRICK DENOUNCED.

"No doubt the 'American' party thought it a very smart trick to place the sign just inside the fence, instead of on it," said Councilman Hall, "and while it is not a direct violation of the letter of the ordinance, it is a violation of the spirit of it, and of the rights of the public, as it is on public property and should be removed. I denounce the whole business as a 'smart trick' on the part of the 'American' party, and demand that the sign be removed."

Just here where the matter-like element of the "American" majority became apparent in all its lubricated readiness for action. During the discussion of the sign matter, Councilman Hall had occupied the chair. As chairman, Councilman Raybould ruled some remarks made in violation of parliamentary procedure that Councilman Hall's motion that the sign be removed could not be entertained, and announced that if he wished it considered he must place it in the form of a resolution. Councilman Hall protested that it was not necessary to submit a matter as a resolution, but Councilman Raybould insisted.

At this juncture President Davis resumed the chair, and after gathering the members of the council, he took up the matter of the sign, and announced that in the form of a resolution, "there would be no record of it if it were a motion," wisely added the speaker.

Councilman Ferry with gentle sarcasm moved to place the sign in the hands of Councilman Hall by submitting the name of W. R. Wallace, the Democratic nominee for mayor, in place of the name of the "American" sign at the same place, but there was no second to this motion.

The matter was finally brought up again in the form of a resolution as demanded by the president of the council, by Councilman Hall, and a vote was laid over to the next meeting of the council by 10 to 2. The next meeting of the council will be held on Nov. 3, two weeks hence, so that it will then be safe to pass the resolution, for the sign will be down as it will be "after election."

"FORGOTTEN" ITEMS.

Another instance of "misreading" history through was that of the resolution of Chief Burlew for $500 worth of horses and carriages, work in improving police headquarters last January, which had been "left off" the budget by a mistake, and also a bill from the chief for $250 for a motorcycle, the same having also been "left off" through an error. The bill was approved under sanction of the majority of the council.

Councilman Hall also protested vigorously against the motion to appoint two special police officers to be present at each of the polling places on election day, but the "American" members gave him the "old hat" and approved $250 for the special officers for that day's work. Councilman Hall said he was not all right to have some special officers at the polling places, where it was possible they might be needed, "but," said he, "I do not think it a good thing to impose two officers upon the polling voters of every district in the city."

MOTHER GETS HER CHILD.

Judge Ritchie Monday gave to Ella Friedel the custody of her six-year-old son, Henry Jackson, against the claims of her divorced husband, John Jackson. The couple were divorced in 1902, and Mrs. Friedel was awarded the custody of the child, except as to visits from the father. On one of these visits the father took the child away and placed it in the care of Bishop Scanlan at St. Ann's orphanage. Mrs. Friedel secured a writ of habeas corpus directed against Bishop Scanlan, and the mother claimed in her petition that John Jackson had supported the child and that he was an unfit person to have its custody. She also alleged there was a conspiracy between Jackson and his mother, Mrs.

M. E. Mulvey's Candidacy.

Mr. Mulvey's candidacy is, I think, unfortunate, whatever his qualifications may be. He is surrounded by and represents interests that should have no part in making the laws of a city. That he would foster and protect such interests would be but natural, and for this reason I hope that he may not be elected.

ELMER I. GOSHEN.

Our government guarantees to every citizen certain rights, thereby none can be kept from becoming candidates for public office because of color, creed or business. "All things are lawful, but all things are not expedient." Mr. Mulvey has the legal right of every American citizen to run for office, and every American citizen has the right to oppose him, and I believe that every Christian citizen that loves humanity's welfare should oppose him. He may have all the business acumen necessary to fit him for the place he seeks, but the attitude of the Methodist Episcopal church toward the liquor traffic is emphatically my own, and that of most Methodist Episcopalians, and whatever others may do I am opposed to his election. I believe that all other church people should vote to defeat him. My attitude would be precisely the same were he a candidate on any other ticket.

COSTLY MISTAKES.

After some discussion, the council decided to extend $500 in readjusting the grade on First North street, between Main and State, in order to correct some of the mistakes of the engineering department. Councilman Black and Martin favored the expenditure on the street, which was in front of the property owned by Dr. Woodruff, and which the engineering department finished up with a transverse grade of only four inches on the heavy grade of the hill down which the street passes. Councilman Hall opposed this expenditure, as he said it was spending $500 of the people's money for the benefit of only a half dozen or so, and on his request the matter went over until the next meeting of the council, which will be held in two weeks.

A petition was received from the Utah Light & Railway company, asking the privilege of hauling freight over the street car lines to Fort Douglas, as well as building material to be used at the fort in the construction of new buildings. The petition was referred to the committee on municipal laws and streets.

CONDITION OF STATE STREET.

M. E. Christopherson of 1605 south State street, in a communication protesting against the condition of State street between Tenth and Eleventh streets, which he said was the result of tearing up the street for the laying of new rails by the Utah Light & Railway company. The street has not been put back in condition and the residents are suffering on that account. He asks in addition that a foot bridge be built across Parley's creek at Tenth Street, and that stone crossings be laid by the city at Kensington and Cleveland avenues. The communication was referred to the committee on streets.

The matter of accepting the work done in regard to improvements on the East Jordan canal came up, on a resolution presented by President A. J. Devle, and authorizing the attorneys employed by the city to proceed with further condemnation suits for making improvements. And in spite of the attempt to put the resolution through, it was not over for two weeks, or until the next meeting of the council.

REPENTANT MR. MARTIN.

Councilman Martin, whose term expires Jan. 1, made a remark with relation to this matter which was something of an arraignment of the policy of the majority of the council in regard to public improvements. Councilman Martin said: "My term as councilman expires soon, and I want to say that I have voted for some public improvements since I have been in the council which I certainly would not vote for again. I want to investigate some of these things, and if I find out that in every instance I would not have voted for some of the improvements for which I did vote then."

The council ordered notices published with intention to grade, curb and gutter Tenth avenue between C and F streets. The petition of W. R. Hamilton, asking for the privilege of running a sightseeing line to the base of Ensign peak, was turned down by the council. The petition has lain in the pouch of the municipal laws committee since last July.

THE ROUND OF THE THEATERS

THEATRE—That widely heralded play, "A Gentleman from Mississippi," was given its first rendition here at the theatre last night, in the presence of a big and brilliant audience. A typical first night gathering, fashionable and critical to the point of frigidity, until its reserve was thawed through, and then heartily responsive to the efforts of the players.

The play is the one which Mr. Rosevelt, then president, saw in Washington and described as "a convincing good drama," an expression which probably meant that it was a most interesting picture of life in Washington, rather than that it met all the requirements of a first class play.

THE ROUND OF THE THEATERS

For a droll wit, Patsy Doyle is as good if not better than anything that has appeared on the Orpheum circuit in the theatre district.

"At the Country Club" is the name of a high class opera that closes the bill, and is as pleasing a piece of work as one could wish for. It portrays the interior of a country club and the stinging and dancing both run smoothly. The sketch carries a dozen people.

The orchestra and kindred call for the usual favor.

COLONIAL—Lively and original stage business, pretty costumes and great girls, some new and striking scenic effects, and a list of principals with sufficient talent for their light roles make up what is best in the new scenic opera by Robert B. Smith running this week at the Colonial.

The opera itself with more dialogue and stage business than music, conducts the story of a girl's life, through a light musical ditty, lighter than usual in fact, than in the general run of comic opera.

The principal roles are all in sufficiently good hands, and Edward Lynch gives the impression of being several degrees below his native eloquence in the manner part allotted to his care. The principal characters, unfortunately, are subordinated to the comedy roles, which, however, are in capable hands.

Of the musical numbers the two in the last act, "My Little Girl in Blue," and "Whistle When You Walk Out," proved the most popular, though the audience's favor for many others evidenced itself in a number of recalls. One of the inconsistencies which the librettist glibly imposed on his plot is the introduction of a stage door in the bandit's lair on the floor of Cordia, with a chandelier and chorus girl song done under the seductive clasp of the wild Mediterranean retreat. A relief charm in the piece is its comparative cleanliness, its suggestiveness, if any exists, being of so mild an order after the lurid aroma of the "Girl From Rector's" and others of its ilk, as to pass unnoticed.

A good house witnessed last night's production.

Next week's attraction is "The Sun-By Side of Broadway."

GRAND—The Willard Mack Stock company gave a good presentation at the Grand theatre last night of "The Count of Monte Cristo." The publication of the fact that Willard Mack would not appear owing to indisposition, doubtless affected the audience which though not large, was appreciative. The part of Edmond Dantes, which was to have been played by Willard Mack, was satisfactorily handled by Frederick Moore, who later made it good. Monte Cristo, Blanche Douglas as Mercedes, lost nothing of the prestige she has gained as a capable and conscientious actress. Others who appeared to good advantage are James Rennie, Frederick Allen, Elmer Booth, Arling Alene and Bessie Dainty, who made a fine boy. Irene Oltman and Anna McNaughton also met with the approval of the audience. Taken altogether the company again showed that it is a good one; the characters are well delineated, while the various scenes of love and intrigue, dating from the day when Dantes was to marry the beautiful Mercedes, which led to his imprisonment for 18 years, and his sensational escape with the secret of Monte Cristo, which gave him fabulous riches, ending with his return to his old friends and enemies, are all capably presented.

The play runs for the rest of the week, and will no doubt be well patronized.

The following speakers were chosen from her coworkers in the Sunday school, Mutual Improvement association and other positions in the ward where she had been active and efficient: O. D. Romney, B. A. Seavey, D. H. Lyon, Mathew Snell, L. W. Richards, George F. Gibbs, N. Y. Redmond and Bishop Romney. An invocation and benediction were offered by W. G. Phillips and John F. Bennett respectively, and the grave dedicated by William Noall.

Each of the speakers in order named paid a high tribute to her faithful labors, her kindness of heart, and her noble disposition.

Much sympathy was felt not only for the sorrowing parents and husband, but also for the motherless babe only a few months old. The floral offerings were profuse, and appropriate music was rendered by the ward choir under the direction of D. J. Watts and Prof. Joe J. Daynes.
