investiture was excellent, throughout, the sale of Parsifal opened at the Theater this morning.

The Grand—It has been a long time since the world was willing to accept the drama which tries to supplant the pulpit and do the work of a social reformer. However "Ten Nights in a Bar Room" which opened last night at the Grand theater was given a hearing, and at points was even applauded. Although as a whole it proved rather more dreary than interesting. A farcical audience was present and greeted with applause the strong acting of Alvin Wyckoff, as Joe Morgan, in his contest with the animals at the end of the third act, a transparent screen showing the beasts to the audience as the drunkard described them. The reformation at the end left a pleasant feeling to go home on, which partly compensated for the unpleasantness of following the drunkard down the hill to his attack of delirium. "Ten Nights in a Bar Room" remains in the bill until the end of the week. It is one of the few surviving examples of the old idyllic drama, and seems to be scheduled to join Uncle Tom and East Lynne in the gallery of immortals.

The Lyric—At the Lyric, next week's attraction, opening tomorrow afternoon, will be Miner's Americans under the control of the well known theatrical manager, Mr. Miner. The company presents the usual long list of burlesque comedians and ladies chorus, the feature being a musical and farcical diversion in two acts by Barnie Gerard. Included in the bill is an olio of vaudeville talent given between the two acts, the performers being Fisher and Clark, Joe Goodwin, May Butler, and the sensational moving picture entitled "The River Parrot" introducing the American trio, Betts, Reynolds and Fox.

Orpheum—At the Orpheum Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Kelcy presenting "A Tale of a Turkey," Mrs. Nevaro and Marcena, Alice Shaw and the other features on this week's bill continue to draw good houses. Tonight will be society night with prospects of heavy patronage. Next week Mile Chester and her Statue Dog will be the headlines.

STILL DRAGGING ALONG.
 Skeen-Chambers Case in Judge Howell's Court at Ogden.

(Special to the "News.")
 Ogden, Feb. 16.—In the Skeen vs Chambers case in the district court here this morning, Judge Howell rendered a decision in which he overruled an objection raised by the prosecution. The defense sought to show the absence of corrupt intent on the part of the accused by bringing out the custom in vogue among city councilmen when acting on the board of equalization and when it was inconvenient for them to so act.
 The prosecution objected to the admission of such testimony on the ground that it was immaterial, incompetent, etc. The court, in passing upon the objection, said:
 "The evidence sought to be introduced simply tends to negative the corrupt intent, which might be inferred from his doing of the acts charged, and does not tend to show his ignorance of the law by way of excuse. It seems to the court that the fact that the defendant did the work for which he charged in conformity with a custom relating to boards of equalization of special taxes, while not in itself an

UNDER WHICH KING
 The More Postum, the More Food—The More Coffee the More Poison.

The president of the W. C. T. U. in a young giant state in the northwest says:
 "I did not realize that I was a slave to coffee till I left off drinking it. For three or four years I was obliged to take a nerve tonic every day. Now I am free, thanks to Postum Food Coffee."
 "After finding out what coffee will do to his victims, I could hardly stand to have my husband drink it; but he was not willing to quit. I studied for months to find a way to induce him to leave it off. Finally I told him I would make no more coffee."
 "I got Postum Food Coffee, and made it strong—boiled it the required time, and had him read the little book, 'The Road to Wellville,' that comes in every package."
 "Today Postum has no stronger advocate than my husband! He tells our friends how to make it, and that he got through the winter without a spell of the grip and has not had a headache for months—he used to be subject to frequent nervous headaches."
 "The stronger you drink Postum the more food you get; the stronger you drink coffee the more poison you get."

J. Eada How of St. Louis is a rare variant of the millionaire species. He inherited a large fortune from his father, who was vice president of the Wabash system, but he refused to appropriate it to his own use because, he affirmed, he did not earn it and consequently had no especial right to it.

When he reached his majority he converted his estate into the People's Fund and Welfare association and went to live in the Salvation Army Industrial home. Mr. How is a graduate of Harvard and is devoting his life to the good of humanity. His mother recently gave $300,000 to Washington university, St. Louis.

ITCH—RINGWORM.
 E. T. Lucas, Wingo, Ky., writes, April 25th, 1902: "For 10 to 12 years I had been afflicted with a malady known as the 'itch.' The itching was most unbearable. I had tried for years to find relief, having tried all remedies I could hear of, besides a number of doctors. I wish to state that one single application of Ballard's Snow Lintment cured me completely and permanently. Since then I have used the liment on two separate occasions for ring worm and it cured completely. See and $1.00 bottle. Sold by Z. C. M. Drug Dept., 112-114 South Main Street. R
