GEN. NOBLE ON THE QUESTION

No Substantial Ground for Criticizing Setting Aside of Reserves and Reservoir Sites.

Denver, Colo., Aug. 18 .- Gifford Pinchot, chief forester of the United States department of agriculture, and Thomas F. Walsh, millionaire mine owner, exchanged bon mots today before the Transmississippi congress and as a concluding note in the harmony of the session the delegates wound up Mr. Pinchot's address with a round of applause that shook the auditorium.

The so-called "enemies of Pinchotism" said they were satisfied with the conservation ideas of the speaker and joined in the cheering as lustily as did the adherents of the chief forester.

JOHN W. NOBLE'S ADDRESS.

"The statutes relating to and authorizing forest reserves and the re-serve of reservoir sites either in letter or spirit confined them to the close limits insisted upon by some, but used broad terms suitable to the nature of the subject matter in hand," said Gen. the subject matter in hand," said Gen. John W. Noble, former secretary of the interior, in an address at today's bession of the Transmississippi Commercial congress. "And the more recent acts," he continued, "did not contemplate the relinquishment of reserves and giving them back to private settlement where they were needed or useful for a sufficient water supply as contemplated by their original selection or segregation.

templated by their original selection or segregation.

"It thus appears clearly that there is no substantial ground to criticize the reservations as made, in view of the letter of the law, and none at all in view of the spirit of the policy and the well known and admitted facts relating to the growth of timber, its need of suitable and sufficient surroundings, and that the soil be kept in place and be in itself a reservoir to be gradually be in itself a reservoir to be gradually and not precipitately exhausted and swept away by winds and floods."

PUBLIC OPINION.

Gen. Noble pointed out that there Gen. Noble pointed out that there had grown up a public opinion almost, universal in the nation that showed not only an intelligent, but a determined purpose that the country's natural resources should be essential to the nation's vitality and progress, should be protected from private and particularly corporate greed and monopoly, and controlled for the public welfare now and hereafter.

The speaker showed the present benefits and future prospect from forest and water reservations. He discussed the matter of protecting the reservations from infringement and their being gradually pared down by the claims of individuals and small local communities who asserted that the reservations were too large and that covered to the covered of the munities who asserted that the reservations were too large, and that covered areas, which might be of use for grazing, should be turned back to the public domain and be made subject to settlement and private ownership.

Gen. Noble said that the system as now practised and being enlarged was national in its character, its benefits extending not only to the first state but reaching as the water thus preservd ran on, state after state and whole sections of our country from the source to the mouth of the various rivers; and that the system and policy were to be considered from a national were to be considered from a national point of view. It was a matter relating to the public welfare and necessarily single communities and individual citizens, however meritorious and entitled to such benefit as might otherwise be within their reach ought not to expect and could not be allowed to demand those at the sacrifice of the common good. Where there was a question of what might or might not be allowed without injury to the nabe considered from a nationa be allowed without injury to the na-tional system, the lesser claim should be deemed subject to and limited by that which was so much greater."

WARNING AGAINST MONOPOLY. It was apparent, the speaker continued, that these great benefits if they were allowed to fall into the hands of individuals and particularly corporations, would be administered for the greatest pecuniary gain possible to the owners. He said that if the national government or the several tional government or the severa state governments, where they had obtained similar reserves and were administering them, and which were sources of life and homes of farms and profitable industry, of power, and lightly allowed them to become monopolized by individuals or combinations, they would be deemed to have abdicated the very seat of government; that after having for so long pretended to protect the people, at last turned them over cribbed and penned to their oppressors. That the very least that could be expected of the government would be to keep ulitmate control of all rates and regulations, so that the ministration of the trust could not be successfully perverted.

"While there are wide variations among the different tribes," said Prof. Hunt, "by choosing the better Indians, I believe that the intermarriage of Indians and members of our race would result in good. Some of the best families of Kentucky have a strain of Indian blood in their velns, and in Oklahama and South Dakota I know of marked examples of their intermatriages that have been made there."
