He represented that he had friends from whom he could get money. Mr. Upp says that he fold Henry he vouid seli a half interest for some-hing over $1,100. Henry agreed to put 500 into the business at once and feposit the balance on the first of Janu-ary. Mr. Upp says he did not realize that he was going to sell a half inter-est in his business for his own money, but he now admits that his escape was narrow one.

NUMBER 43.

For the last month, he says, Henry has been running things with a high hand, and that he gambled in the most reckless manner imaginable, winning and losing large sums of money. He told some of his friends that he intended to go to Chicago before long. This fact did not become known until yesterday

Tuesday and yesterday morning Mr. Upp investigated Henry's accounts and discovered that he had been heaten to the tune of at least $600 and probably more. Yesterday morning about 10 o'clock, he notified the police and put the facts into their hands. A warrant now out for his arrest,

During all the time that Henry worked (for) Upp, the latter had not the slightest idea that he was employing a criminal, a man who had just been released from the county jall, where he served six months for obtaining money under false pretenses. Henry came to this city in March, 1900, and represented himself to be a member of the order of the Knights of Pythias, in good standing. He claimed that he came here from San Francisco. He worked his way into the lodge here and "bor-rowed money from the brethren." He overworked the graft and was arrested. On March 22nd, he was convicted in Judge Timmony's court and sentenced to six months in the county jail. At the time of his arrest several Christian Science ladies interested themselves in his behalf and aided him in many ways. He freely and frequently claimed he had been "redeemed" by them, and, as before stated, upon his release from fail, they secured a position for him with the way to pay the obligations of the rovernment in silver.

The only question at issue was the means to be placed at the disposal of the secretary of the treasury to secure its maintenance. He then took up the language of the bills and gave the Hill bill his endorsement.

Mr. Shafroth, of Colorado, asked whether to make sliver and greenbacks exchangeable in gold did not in fact make them simply promises to pay in gold.

"Certainly," replied Mr. White, "Then you desire to impound 500,000,-000 in silver and eventually dump the silver on the country as bullon?" "Not at once, but gradually." replied Mr. White. "We should do just what Germany has done. I think we would be lucky if we could get back half of what we paid for the silver."

Questioned further, Mr. White said a failure of crops-anything which would greatly lessen the demand for money would send sliver and silver certificates under the present law into the treas ury and eventually cause a disparity in the price between gold and silver cause of the government's inability to pay in gold,

Mr. Hill said in his opinion the two dangers which threatened the gold standard were the greenbacks and sil-ver. Of those two he considered the former the worst but the country seemed to think otherwise. He asked if Mr. White did not agree that much of the silver could be re-coined into subsidiary in and the remainder made exchange. able

Mr. White agreed to this proposition. Secretary Gage said that the ques-tion involved in the bills before the committee was simple. He agreed with Mr. White that in times of dullness or business depression the bank-ers and other holders of money in the centers of population would gradually withhold gold and allow silver and sliver certificates to pile up in the treasury through the payment of custom duties and taxes. If Congress failed to make gold and silver exchangeable it implied a doubt, no matter how slight it might be, existed, the bankers and holders of money refused to take the risk. "Why should they take the risk?" he asked. "If you refuse to remove it, why charge them with responsibilities you will not take?" he asked, striking the table emphatically. Secre Gage said that his experience taught him that if a man showed the slightest inclination to evade responsiility for an enterprise he had undertaken he was hurt in his community. It was the law of life, said he, and it was a pretty good law. He saw no risk in the government removing every doubt as to its policy and purpose. Mr. Cockran, of Missouri, asked the secretary if silver was to be made re-deemable in gold, why it would not be better from the standpoint of econ-omy to sell the silver and place it in the gold fund for redemption purposes. "If it could be done without seriously disturbing the money markets." replied Secretary Gage, "I think that course would be more honest."
