CITY AND COUNTY.

Reports of the Various Departments For the Past Week.

A GENERAL DULLNESS REPORTED.

An Increase of $200,000 in Tax Collections Over Last Year—Collector Spencer's Reasons.

Business in general has been quite dull throughout the corridors of the City building during the past week. Some of the department officials attribute it to last Tuesday's election, while others deem it a natural falling off. Whatever may be the cause, there is time to say the winter is dawning upon retrenchment is being shown on every hand; men are being dispensed with at a time when money is most required, and all the has a tendency to decrease the volume of business that otherwise would be transacted if different conditions prevailed. There is one good thing, however, the paying time is over and those who had a continual worry upon their mind as to where their tax money was to come from, have either succeeded in squeezing that expense, or have failed to be inevitable and allowed their names to appear on the delinquent list.

The following are the reports of the different departments as gleaned by a representative of this paper today:

Building Inspector.

But two permits were issued by the building inspector during the week. Mr. Folsom is confident, however, that a reaction will set in very shortly in the building line as he has a number of buildings on the lots which are about to be condemned and which will shortly be razed to the ground to make room for more substantial ones as they are situated on East Temple street. During the month of November to date, forty permits were issued aggregating an expenditure of $23,895. This week's permits are as follows:

Mrs. P. D. Wells, eight-room brick on First street, between F and G, at a cost of $2,000.

C. W. Cahall, one-room frame at 119 Main street, at a cost of $125.

Lowering Water Mains.

The waterworks department has had about forty men employed during the week, lowering the mains in the northeastern part of the city, in order to accommodate the streets being graded in that locality. The work will be completed on Tuesday of next week.

Health Department.

The health department issues the following report for the week ending Nov. 8, 1895: Births, 10; males 6, females 4. Deaths, 14; males 6, females 8. Reported for burial from other places, 6. Contagious diseases, flags outstanding, 26; scarlet fever, 19, diphtheria, 1. Infectious diseases reported for the week—typhoid fever 3.

Poll Tax Collections.

This has been an off week in the street department. The week's collections in labor and cash amounted to $105, and poll tax labor has been devoted to the grading of streets in the vicinity of Fifth West and Second South.

County Collector.

There has been a marked increase in the collections of taxes this year to that of last year. Collector Spencer quotes the figures at $200,000, in advance of 1894, for the same period, and to attribute the advance, not to a greater supply of money among the citizens, but to the courtesy of the newspapers in calling attention to the necessity of settling their taxes before the delinquency set in. The collector's clerks will commence on Monday to make out the lists, advertising those whose taxes have become delinquent.

Not to Put Election Echoes.

Who will be the next auditor? Ask Johnnie Axton.

Watermaster Wilcox may stay where he is for the next two years.

Judge William McKay will in all probability be "corporation counsel" under Mr. Glendinning.

Major Dailey's Fourth precinct election work has made him solid with Mayor-elect Glendinning.

After the first of the year Harry Duke will be back at his old berth with Wells, Fargo & company.

The prospects for Mr. R. A. Folland to continue as clerk of the board of health are not considered at all bad.

Treasurer May has not yet named his deputy, though he is said to have his eye on a competent young friend who has been slated to fill the bill.

Several applicants have hobbled up to the office of sentiment and in due time will present their claims for ability to take charge of the "city of the dead."

It is generally conceded that John Burt will be taken good care of as a foreman or shift boss under the new administration. He worked hard for it.

O'Meara is talked of as the next President of the City Council but the chances are that Gen. Rumney will be given the plum, so say several of the members.

Will Councilman-elect Dale from the Fourth precinct be chairman of the next City Council? As he believes to [illegible] municipal breach it is by no means certain.

The cry has been raised that the successors to the present City set will be short of money early in 1896 in consequence of figuring to maintain a balance on the right side of the ledger.

If the Legislature does not repeal the metropolitan fire and police law two new commissioners will have to be appointed early in January by Mayor Baskin's successor and the council. The retiring members are Messrs. Noble and Empey.

Geo. M. Gaisford's Funeral.

The funeral services over the remains of the late George M. Gaisford will be held in the Tenth ward meeting house tomorrow, Sunday, beginning at 11:30 a. m. Friends are invited to be present.

Mrs. Crandall's Death.

At 11 o'clock last night, Mrs. Mary Crandall, wife of J. R. Crandall, of Ogden, and sister of the late David W. Evans, of this city, died suddenly at her home in Ogden. She has been ailing for about six months, but of late has been much improved. Last night she was feeling exceptionally well, and there being no thought of danger those members of the family were at dence when the sudden end came. The cause of death was dropsy, arising from a complication of diseases. The deceased was the mother of nine children, all of whom are in Ogden, except one daughter living in Lander city. A number of relatives reside in Salt Lake City. The deceased was a most estimable woman.

INTERESTING REMINISCENCES.

Adam-ondi-Ahman, the Garden, and President Young in Reply to Sidney Rigdon.

MESA CITY, ARIZ.,
Nov. 5th, 1895.

To the Editor:

The historical and descriptive notes by your correspondent, Elder E. Stevenson, relating to the place of Adam-ondi-Ahman with the promontory on which Adam erected an altar and before his death gathered into the valley around it the multitude of his children, and, offering sacrifice to God, blessed them and prophesied of what should transpire through his generations upon the earth, are interesting to all and appear to engage the special attention and prompt further inquiry in many who perhaps without due reflection would take the idea that this was the place of the "garden," forgetting that Adam was driven from the place of the Tree of Life and was then some 100 or more miles away, and that Adam-ondi-Ahman was his city home in the outer world. The idea is being taken by some, and especially by the youth, and is being discussed in their gatherings, that the altar constructed by Adam is still standing "in a fair state of preservation." Such a statement would be very misleading to those are those still living who in 1838 were familiar with the city seat of Adam-ondi-Ahman as surveyed by Bishop Alanson Ripley, who as agent recorded upon the city plat the names of those to whom lots were given, and I well know to whom they were and recorded the lot at top of the hill on which was scattered the many different sized stones, some of which had turned—all partly butled; and while there appeared a corner from which they were scattered, yet no one stone remained laid upon another to show the form or size of the altar. This was before the identical place with the rock of the altar had been pointed out by the Prophet Joseph.

Public interest still often made to that end though thrilling historic episode of Sidney Rigdon's claim to be guardian for the Church, and of Apostle B. Young's reply. In that reply I do not quite remember that President Young had once set up the claim that he was "President of the Church;" but he did in the voice of Joseph and in his very look and appearance, set forth the calling, Priesthood and duty of the Twelve to then step forward and assume the responsibility to bear off the kingdom of God, just as it had been placed upon them by the Prophet but a short time previous to his martyrdom. In the midst of his fifty chosen associates and in view of the great future before them and of his speedy release, he reviewed the history of his life and said that he was weary of the too great burden that had rested upon him; that the day of his release was at hand, and that he now placed upon the shoulders of the Twelve the responsibility of bearing off and establishing the kingdom of God upon the earth, and that he then and there shook his garments clear of all further responsibility and of the blood of this generation. He spoke with power and such was his vehemence that in shaking his skirts before us he raised himself from the floor. This evidences as ever to me and so is the fact of fact that when Brother Brigham arose to reply to Sidney, Joseph was personified in him in every appearance both in sight, in form and in voice, while a hale of light shone around his person.

This is my testimony in part upon these subjects.

Summer Did It.

It was not a lawsuit that was adjudicated by U. S. Commissioner Sommer today, but a proceeding of a much more amicable nature and which settled the legal functionary equally as good a fee. Two Italians, Crescenzo del Vecchio and Teresa Venditti, applied to be made husband and wife. Crescenzo has been here a few years, and can speak some English; Teresa has just arrived from sunny Italy to meet her lover, and speaks Italian only. Judge Sommer, however, was willing to accede to the request of the young couple, and did so, although he had to perform the ceremony to an good Italian as he could muster on a new minister's notice. He made himself clearly understood to the fair Italian, and the bride and groom went away happy.

Held Up a Train.

Last Thursday a lemon a Mr. O. H. Warner was crossing the R. G. W. track a few miles west of Springville with a flock of sheep. The eastbound train came along at the same time and as it reached the crossing where the sheep were the speed was decreased. Mr. Warner then pulled his pistol and commanded Engineer Hastings to stop the train. The train was stopped until the sheep had crossed. A complaint was afterwards sworn out against Mr. Warner charging him with assault with a deadly weapon. He was arrested and taken before Commissioner Dudley yesterday, where he waived examination and gave bonds in the sum of $300 to await the action of the grand jury.
