This Morning the Beginning of A Campaign to This End.

May Rival Associations Among Sheep And Cattlemen and Irrigation Farmers in America.

To bring the arid farming interests of Utah into a national organization which it is hoped will rival the associations among sheep men, cattle men, and irrigation farmers, is the object of the visit to this city of a delegate from Jesse F. McDonald, governor of Colorado.

Colorado. Warren R. Given, who comes from Gov. McDonald with the message in behalf of the newest line of indus-trial organization, is an old news-paper man, secretary of the Denver Press club, and formerly assistant city editor of the Denver Republican. When seen this morning at the Knuts-When seen this morning at the Knuts-ford hotel Mr. Given said that the feeling was general in Colorado that arid farming had gone on long enough in a haphazard manner, and that it was time to make it the subject of concerted scientific investigation, in which the results in each section will be made known to experimentators in other sections. The specific object of his visit is to confer with Gov. John C. Cutler on the subject of choosing a Utah delegation to the convention on arid farming, called to meet at Denver, Jan. 24 and 25. CONFERENCE WITH GOVERNOR.

CONFERENCE WITH GOVERNOR. Mr. Given held a conference with the governor at 11 o'clock today, and a number of names were suggested, beginning with that of Dr. John A. Widtsoe, who is recognized as the leading arid farm authority of the state. Others suggested were Director Vader of the Agricultural college. state. Others suggested were Director Yoder of the Agricultural college, Bishop Farrell of Smithfield, who is the pioneer Utah dry farmer, J. W. Paxman, who has a large dry farm at Nephl. Another conference was arranged for tomorrow morning at which the matter will be gone over in more detail which the matter will be gone over in more detail. After today's visit to the governor Mr. Given said Gov. Cutler had given the movement most encouraging and enthusiastic support. He recognized its immediate value to the state as it has nearly 2 600.000 acres of state land, the value of which will be greatly in-creased with the advent of scientific farming. Mr. Given said that the states most interested in the project would naturally be Colorado, where the Campbell system is now in vogue, Nebraska, New Mexico, Utah Wyom-ing, Montana, and in fact all the west-ern states. He wants especially to have submitted there the results of Utah experiment stations, so that the information gathered from them may be spread broadcast in the form of re-ports of proceedings for the conven-tion.

ONLY A STARTER.

tion. ONLY A STARTER. "This coming c • _ tion." declared Mr. Given, is only a starter, A move-ment will be commended for annual convertions, such as are now held by the Transmississippi congress, and in a few years I think the arid farming congresses will rival the Transmissis-sippi congress in importance. In Colo-rado we are particularly fortunate in having Senator Gugrenheim for the state's national representative. We who know Mr. Guggenheim, who has already been decided on for Congress at a party caucus, know that he loves the west, and we look for him to do more for it in Washington than any western senator has yet done. While he is independently wealthy, he goes not to represent wealth, but the west-ern people. He will resign from every by business he is connected with, and declares he will give his entire time for the next 12 months to the preparation of egislation to benefit the west. Sen-ater Guggenheim is back to the arid farm congress, and as he probably who we hadve fortunes out of it, here who have made fortunes out of on the west here the man any of the men who have made fortunes out of on the next 12 months to do much good for the west here the man probably spend a Mr. Given will probably spend a week or more in Utah looking into arid farming matters.

Vermont excursionists, and a few of those who were invited but could not go on the journey. The guests assembled in the parlor, which had been arranged with a center table, quaint old sofa, and some of the Lion House chairs, to represent as near-ly as possible the room as it was 50 years ago. The relic room of the Daughters of the Ploneers was also open, and the guests were interested in the display in this cosy, old-fashioned room, while the party was gathering, cards, cut in various shapes, two pieces matching, and all inscribed with some reminder of the Vermont trip, were distributed to the guests. There was much laughter as the gentlemen tried to find a mate to their card, which hung on the gown of some fair lady, and when found, the two were thus paired off for supper. The meal was an exact duplicate of the famous repast served to the party in the cottage at the close of the dedication services. There was chicken pie baked in six-quart pans, and served with pitchers of cream gravy. Celery, cheese, potato salad and apples were the first course, served all on the table together. The mince pies, squash pies, and cakes were also placed on the table at the same time, and only the removal of the first plate was permitted. Afterwards, rai-sins, nuts and candy were passed around, in memory of the generous sim-iliar entertainments which proceeded from the Lincoln club nightly while on the trip. NOVEL CONTEST. About 30 kinds of scent were distributed in small bottles about the room; and cards were distributed for the guests to write their findings. After a half hour, the result showed a remarkable show-ing of numerous claimants for the prize; but after some difficulty, the prize was awarded to President John R. Winder. HUGE CHRISTMAS TREE. In our choir at the Melbourne university, for instance, we have fifty sopranos, one and all of whom can hold high C and can do solo work when called upon. While we have good so-pranos, on the other hand, contraltos are more in evidence in Australia, and, mark me, Australia will produce some are more in evidence in Australia, and, mark me, Australia will produce some great singers. everal prominent residents of Utah are paying fares upon railroads. In this connection a good story, and a true one, is being told about a number of Utahns who were on board No. 2, the eastbound Salt Lake Route train which was held 12 hours at Caliente by a cave-in at the mouth of a tunnel near that point yes-terday. On this train there were nine passengers riding from Los Angeles to-wards Salt Lake on "annuals" fur-nished by the railroad company. Of this number one is a high official of the state, another is a member of a state board, still another is a member of a state board, still another is a member of the state legislature. Each pass-holder is known from long connection with Utah's affairs and history. And each one was lolling in the luxury of a Pull-man seat, with a powerful slip of paste-board in his pocket. When the east tunnel just this side of Callente was reached, the train came to a standstill. Ahead the mouth of the bore was choked by a dirt slide from the side of the hill. the bore was choked by a dirt slide from the side of the hill. The train was taken back to the station, where its passengers spent 12 hours, nervous and anxious to reach Salt Lake, where families, friends and New Year cheer awaited them. This was early Tuesday morning—New Year's day. After what seemed ages to the impatient travelers, the track ahead was cleared of obstruc-tion, and the journey homeward was re-sumed. When the train rolled across the Utah-Nevada state line, there was gladness in the hearts of the Salt Lak-ers. Something happened. When the conductor, making his final trip through the cars, asked for fares, nine passes were passed to him. Something more happened. He explained at great length tha 'annuals,' passes, and all similar precious forms of privilege-getting paste-board were no longer good. In the brains of nine bewildered, wonder-ing passengers—prominent Utahns—a light dawned slowly. The first of the year—passes not good! These and other blue cap and brass buttons had a hand outstretched. It was not the glad hand exactly—it was the "come-through" hand. Fares were paid by all passen-gers. The high state official, member of legislature, member of a state board and others—nine altogether—have pass-es which they are probably willing to dispose of for a small sum.
