

Postal Savings Bank for Filipinos

LATE reports from the postal savings department of the Philippine government show that it is having an important effect in teaching the natives to provide for a rainy day. It is expected that deposits of 1,000,000 pesos, or $500,000, will be in the keeping of the government by the time the postal savings system has been in operation a year. Six weeks ago 221 branch banks had been opened in connection with the postoffices of the archipelago.

The bureau of posts of the Philippines has issued a circular in the various dialects of the islands in which it says:

"Learn to save. Begin now. The more you save the easier it becomes. No one is so poor that he cannot save a little. In order to encourage saving the government has established absolutely safe places in which you can put the money you save, no matter how small it may be. These places are called savings banks and you will find them in many of the postoffices scattered throughout the islands. If you want to provide against days of adversity bring your savings to the postal savings banks and the government will keep the money safely for you until you need it to provide for seed, taxes, debt, education of your children, for sickness or death or old age. When you need your money you can go to the postoffice and get it. This will not only be done for you without cost, but you will also receive interest at the rate of 2 1/2 per cent per annum for all the money you deposit up to 1,000 pesos ($500.) The postmaster at any office where there is a bank will tell you how to deposit and withdraw your money. These banks are especially for the Filipino people. We want you to use them because the person who saves his money to provide for adverse times becomes a happier and better citizen."

These arguments are good—in the Philippines. The Americans who control the insular government recommend postal savings banks highly—for Filipinos. Thrift is a virtue greatly to be desired—provided one converses in Tagalog or Visayan. Preparation for times of adversity is worthy of the government's earnest co-operation—in Luzon, Mindanao and Samar.

The United States government should learn wisdom from the Philippine government. It has shirked a plain duty in declining to encourage thrift in the people of this nation. By so doing it has increased the hardships of the poor and has fostered vagrancy and crime.—Chicago Daily News.
