PARIS.—Marshal McMahon reports to the President that the army is not affected by the death of Napoleon. There are Bonapartists among the officers, but no party which supports the Napoleonic dynasty in the army.

The Legitimist, clerical and Orleanist journals do justice to Napoleon's good qualities, and concur in the opinion that the system he inherited was responsible for most of the evils of his government.

L'Univers appeals to the Orleans Princes to acknowledge Count De Chambord as the legitimate heir to the throne of France, and thus rally around the centre the monarchical forces now strengthened by the death of the Emperor.

Le Temps says a terrible responsibility weighs on Napoleon's memory. He, however, was the victim of tradition, and was deficient in moral sense. The experience France has gone through with him will preserve her hereafter from political saviors and fatalists.

Le Ben Public studies the man psychologically, and says that after gaining power by conspiracy he continued to govern with the policy of contempt for mankind.

The Independence Belge publishes a letter from Von Beust, in answer to an assertion of the Duke de Grammont. The Count shows that Austria tried to dissuade France from going to war with Prussia and explicitly reserved her right to remain neutral. France, after war was declared, asked for an alliance, which Austria refused.

L'Ordre and Le Pays put their columns in mourning and declare that the Emperor is dead, but the Empire is undissolvable.

The Journal des Debats is impressed with the suddenness and character of the chastisement of this man. He was the great delusion of the country. The mass of the nation decided with him, and the awakening was terrible. Now the Empire is peace, the peace of the tomb.

The Republique Francaise considers the Bonapartist party dead. It reviews what the two Empires have cost France in money, blood, shame and disaster. Both Emperors were only powerful by the force of lies, and by lies they fell. The Napoleonic legend has vanished completely; the voice of Strasbourg and Boulogne is that the nephew of Austerlitz and the Woolwich cadet, the son of Sedan, is indeed finished.

The Constitutionnel finds the situation in France and Europe in no way affected by the death of Napoleon III. His reign was most fruitful in great results. History will record it as one of the most prosperous, notwithstanding its disastrous close.

The Gaulois shows a black border, defends the memory of the deceased, and attributes his death more to anguish caused by unmerited disasters, shameful treasons and infamous calumnies, than effects physical.

The Empress last night was calmer and received several visitors from France. She went several times to the room in which the body lies.

Queen Victoria sent Colonel Gardiner to Chiselhurst with an autograph letter.

A telegram of condolence has been received from the Pope.

Cardinal Bonaparte is expected to arrive hourly.

Prince Napoleon comes by way of Germany, not being permitted to pass through France.

M. Benedetti and Madame Canrobert have arrived at Chiselhurst.

Irish journals generally express sorrow for the loss.

PARIS, 12.—It is said that the French government will permit the final interment of Napoleon's remains in France if the funeral is made strictly private, and the deceased is buried as ex-Emperor and not as Emperor. The ceremonies must be simply of a religious character. The President is understood to have conferred with the minister of the interior and the prefect of police, with the object of preventing the funeral, if it takes place in France, being made an opportunity for political manifestations.

ROME, 12.—The municipal council has adopted resolutions of condolence with Eugenie.

The first subscription list for a monument to Napoleon has been opened by the Perseveranza, of Milan, and it already exceeds five thousand dollars. That paper reports that subscriptions are pouring in from all quarters. A national subscription for the same object has been opened at Venice.

LONDON, 12.—The will of Napoleon appoints the Empress, Cardinal Bonaparte and M. Rouher guardians of the Prince, now Napoleon IV.

The whole Napoleon family are assembled at Chiselhurst, except the Cardinal, who will arrive on Tuesday.

LONDON, 12.—A dispatch from a friend of the imperial family at Chiselhurst, gives the following description of the scene there: The remains of the late Emperor have been placed in a coffin. The corpse is dressed in the uniform of a field marshal. The upper lip is bare, the moustache having been cut off to facilitate the taking of a plaster cast. The beard which remains is brown and bushy. The features are stern and careworn, and have the expression of pain. The grand cordon of the legion of honor lies across the breast. The hands, which are ungloved, are disposed in an easy and natural manner, the right clasping the left. On the fourth finger of the left hand is a ring with several diamonds, placed there by the Empress. A small silver cross of exquisite workmanship lies on the breast, and on the corpse are placed three sprigs of holly. Over the head a crown of violets is suspended. At the foot of the coffin is the brass camp bedstead on which the Emperor died. Seated on either side, at the lower end of the coffin, are a priest and a religious. The furniture of the room, as well as the whole mansion, is unostentatious.

The body will lie in state on Tuesday, in the entrance of the hall of the chapel. The public will not be admitted to view the remains. The funeral ceremonies will probably begin about noon on Wednesday. The Empress is overwhelmed with sorrow, and her prostration is so great as to alarm her attendants. The Prince imperial does all in his power to comfort her. The Empress has received letters of condolence from the Emperor of Russia and the King of Italy. Although none but relatives and intimate friends of the deceased are admitted, Chiselhurst is crowded with visitors. Religious services were held this morning in the chapel, which was filled to repletion. The Princess Mathilde, Rouher, Pietre and Mrs. Conneau and Carvisart were present. Father Goddard attempted to preach, but was overcome by his feelings and was compelled to leave the pulpit. Benedetti arrived to day at Chiselhurst, and was received by the Empress. M. Ollivier and Marshal McMahon are expected there tomorrow. The Princess Murat and suite arrived this afternoon. Great numbers of people from France are expected to come to the funeral. The South-Eastern and Northern railways of France have reduced the rates of fare for the poorer classes attending the funeral. It is reported that the Prince imperial has already assumed the title of Napoleon IV. The report is doubtless incorrect, but it is true that the prince is now addressed as Sire, by all visitors to Chiselhurst. The impression is gaining ground that the Emperor died from the effects of chloroform, administered to assuage pain.

MADRID, 12.—A great popular demonstration was made in this city yesterday in favor of the proposed political reforms in Porto Rico, and of the abolition of slavery. A long procession with bands and banners paraded the streets.

The Carlist troubles in the north continue, but a patriotic spirit has been aroused among the people, and volunteer bands are organizing for service against the insurgents, and the inhabitants of villages voluntarily assume an hostile attitude, and in some places have effectually resisted the approach of the Carlist bands. A volunteer battalion in this city is being mobilized for service in the field.
