AMUSEMENTS.

Carleton the elder, and Carleton the younger, both had handsome recep-tions at the Theater last night, the former for Auld Lang Syne, the latter for the good work he did both in singfor the good work he did both in sing-ing and acting in the part of Johnny in the opera "When Johnny Comes Marching Home." The opera is a pa-triotic "thriller" from beginning to end. It contains any number of charming songs, choruses, and concerted pieces, mostly new and original, blended with charming augustions of the old pairimostly new and original, olended with charming suggestions of the old pairiotic airs, all designed to key the audience up to a high pitch of enthusiasm. The company, too, affords a refreshing instance of a comic opera organization selected with a view to doing musition selected with a view to doing musi-cal work, and some of the lights and shades of the chorus and the concerted numbers were beautifully rendered, showing unmistakably the guiding hand of Mr. Carleton himself. The finale of the first act had half a dozen recalls and the patriotic bursts were especial-enlivening. Mr. W. T. Carleton, while he nurses Mr. W. T. Carleton, while he hurses his tones, shows the beautiful method of the old days, and his duets with Miss Salisbury were among the most heartly applauded numbers of the night. The younger Carleton, who stands six feet two in his stockings, has a fine baritone voice, and his singing of "My Own United States" as well as his duct with the soprano won the heartiest applause. Miss Vaughn in the part of the heroine, is a charming little singer and actress, and she too won heavily with the audience.

Mr. Francis, the comedian, scored any number of laughs in the little had to do. The chorus of ladies, looking like so many plates from Godey's Lady's book in the early sixties, were amusing and

The scenery was striking, especially the opening of the second act. While the story is undoubtedly light, the mu-sic is full of charm and the general patriotic whirl and active movement with which the whole thing goes, makes an enjoyable evening's entertainment. The same bill runs the remainder of the week with a Saturday matinee.

"The whitecaps is just fellers with lour sacks over their heads and big pistola in their hands." explained a coungster from the gallery to a companion after the performance in the Grand lest hight. And that's about what the play was, except that the thrilling places refused to work on account of a lack of rehearsals, a fault becoming too common with the stock ompany.

The play is a "thriller" in which the ove of a mountain maid who is loved in turn by a whitecap and a sheriff, igures most loudly. Excitement is nade by the whitecaps who are organized to raise a disturbance every five made by the whitecaps who are organized to raise a disturbance every five minutes, and show a disposition to work overtime. Frank E. Montgomery is in the leading role, while W. W. Bittner. Zellah Covington, Mrs. Bittner and other well known favorites appear in the cast. With the future performances the play will no doubt run smoothly and please the audiences who like their villainy deep dyed, and loaded down with shooting irons. "The Whitecapa" run till the end of the week, with a Saturday matinee, and will be followed next week with the Britt-Nelson fight pictures as a preface to a short comedy.

The patrons of the Lyric for the week commencing tomorrow afternoon can expect something fine in the "Par-islan Belles, 'a brand new burlesque, It is under the personal direction of Mr. John Grieves the well known New Mr. John Grieves the well known New York manager and producer who has spent considerable time in securing a haudsome chorus, noted not only for good looks, but for their ability as singers. Among those secured are Clara Cole, one of the handsomest artistes on the burlesque stage. The company will be found to be exceptionally large one, its full strength being displayed in the two musical absurdities entitled "The Sultan's Wives," and "The Ghel from Manila". The Girl from Manila." the buriesque an olio introducing six vaudeville acts will be offered.

"Way Down East," with its pretty story of New England life, will be seen at the Theater all of next week. The great popularity of the celebrated Parker play does not seem to wane. Sea son after season it returns to citie where it has been several times, and its receipts increase with each suc-ceeding visit. An explanation is found n the fact that the play appeals not goers, but its clientelle includes a vast number of people who seldom go to the playhouse. The sale of seats opens to
