In the matter of the Estate of Robert Dunn deceased.

Order appointing time and place to hear petition for distribution.

ON READING AND FILING THE PETITION of Charles Lougson, Executor of the estate of Robert Dunn, deceased setting forth that he has filed his final account of his administration upon said estate in this Court, that all the debts have been fully paid, and that a portion of said estate remains to be divided among the heirs of said deceased, and praying among other things for an order allowing said final account and of distribution of the residue of said estate among the persons entitled.

It is further ordered that the Clerk cause copies of this order to be posted in three public places in Salt Lake County, and published in the DESERET EVENING NEWS, a newspaper printed and published in Salt Lake County, three weeks successively prior to said 21st day of October, 1886.

YEAST CAKES.

HINTS ABOUT MAKING BREAD WITH THEM.

No. 3 MINE, ALMY,
Uintah Co., Wyo., Sept. 17, 1886.

Editor Deseret News:

In the Semi-weekly NEWS of Sept. 14, I notice for the first time the advertisement of E. W. Gillet's Magic Yeast Cakes. As a practical baker, both commercial and domestic, having tried experiments with yeast cakes of different manufacturers, I am constrained to yield the palm to E. W. Gillet. I have used them for the last eight months, and I find they make the best bread of any I have tried. I would recommend them for domestic use to all housekeepers. I do not follow the instructions on the label, although no doubt the receipe is good enough, but it is susceptible of improvement, by preparing the yeast cakes in a potato ferment instead of using them as directed in a sponge of flour.

The formula is: Mash three good-sized potatoes in a can or crock that will hold a gallon; on the mashed potatoes put nearly a pint of flour and as much boiling water as will scald the same into a smooth batter; cool it down to about blood heat with cold water; add a teaspoonful of salt and tablespoonful of sugar and two of the cakes previously dissolved in as much warm water as will cover them in a teacup; stir all together thoroughly, and set aside in a temperate place for 12 hours—make it into dough straight. Two quarts of water with a little over one quart of ferment will make from 18 to 20 pounds of bread. Always measure the size of the batch required by the quantity of water, not the flour. Using equal weight of salt and sugar in dough making will still further improve the bread and will make a thin soft crust on the batch. In conclusion I will say I have no earthly interest in Mr. Gillet more than any one else, but when I find a genuine article, and prove it to be so, I wish my neighbors to know it. Respectfully,

A. CROLL.

A Son's Retribution.

About fifteen years ago I set up shop as a lawyer in a young town in Nebraska, and the very first case that came to me was one to delight a lawyer's heart. An aged woman named Mary Sharon had deeded all her property to her son William on the understanding that he was to support her and do so-and-so during the rest of her life. After a year or so he became anxious to get rid of her, being vigorously encouraged by his wife, and matters were made so hot for the old lady that she could no longer stay in the house. Indeed, she was turned out of it, and but for the charity of neighbors would have died of hunger and exposure. While she had a copy of the agreement drawn in legal form and good evidence in a suit, none of the five or six lawyers in town would take her case because of fear of the son. William had given it out that he would kill any lawyer who meddled with the case, and he had the record of being a desperate, revengeful man. When the mother came to me she frankly warned me that I must look out for Bill, but when I had looked into the case I determined to become her counsel, Bill or no Bill. My first move was to send for the son to see if he desired to carry out his agreement. He came into my office in a swaggering, defiant way, having a revolver buckled to him and three drinks of whisky behind his vest buttons. He cursed the mother, the law and all else, and wound up with:

"Now, then, you go ahead. The minute you make trouble for me I'll make a corpse of you."

"And now you look here," I answered, as I brought a six-shooter to cover his head. "If in this case to the bitter end, and whenever you feel like shooting, don't wait for me to begin."

Bill was a boaster and a coward. He turned white as flour and became as humble as a lamb. He went out of the office like a cur, but I knew the feeling raging in his heart, and I realized that he would bring about my death if he could do it with safety to himself. I had the proper papers served and the suit opened. Bill made his threats and boasts, but kept clear of me. I expected he would fill up some day and come into town for a shooting scrape, but he had another plan to work on. We had a sure case, as his friends informed me, but he was determined to bluster it out.

My office was over a store and reached by outside doors. There was a front and back room, and the latter, I being a bachelor, was used for my bed-room. It was the fashion to leave all doors open during the day, and when I left my office on any errand, or to go to court, it was not locked. When it became known around that I had taken Mrs. Sharon's case and bluffed her son Bill, I had plenty of small business to look after, and was much out of the time in the lawyers' courts.

One day, just before the big suit was to come to trial, I went into court on an ordinary suit, and was detained three or four hours. The office was left open, as usual. As I returned to it three or four citizens accompanied me. As we reached the foot of the stairs we heard a terrible yell from the rooms above. Next moment Bill Sharon came rushing down the narrow stairs hatless, eyes staring from their sockets, and such a look of terror on his face as I never saw before or since. He rushed past us, shrieking and yelling, and it was only when he was entirely clear of us that we made out the horrible truth. Two great rattlesnakes were hanging to him, one by the right wrist and the other by the right leg. They squirmed and twisted and flopped as he ran, and his screams and exclamations brought out the whole town. He ran about a block and then lay down in the street and rolled over, and the snakes let go of him and were killed as they crawled away.

Bill had been bitten in three places. The only antidote suggested was whisky, and a good two quarts were poured down him without the slighest relief. It did not in the least stupefy him nor quiet his excited condition, and in an hour he was dead—his bloated body and purple face presenting a horrible sight. It did not take much head work to discover how it all came about. Bill wanted revenge on me, and his plan was to leave the rattlesnakes in my bedroom. He had taken them there in a box, after seeing that the coast was clear, and had dumped them out on the floor. The box was there to prove. In his haste to be gone he had been careless, and as the serpents were loosened they turned on him and fastened their fangs in his flesh. It was retribution, but none of us could help but pity his horrible fate.—New York Sun.

An Expert in Human Hair.

Mme. Shaw is an expert in human hair. She studied the subject.

"Ah," said she, "why is it you ladies of New York, and the American women generally, are so careless about your hair, and if you have lost it, why so economical in purchasing this adornment? You do not hesitate in giving ten, twenty or more dollars for a love of a bonnet, but will hesitate in buying the artistic arrangements in hair made to supply nature's defects, and that are so essentially necessary for your good appearance."

"That is a novel idea," said the reporter, "but doubtless you are correct. Tell me why we lose our hair while young and otherwise hearty."

"Oh, for many reasons. First, you do not take proper care of it. Foreign women of all classes wash, comb and brush their hair frequently. Take a practical illustration. Mrs. Blank notices that the tails of her carriage horses grow shorter and thinner every day and asks John the reason for it. He professes not to know. She then goes to the dealer from whom she purchased the horses. He quickly replies, 'It is because your coachman neglects to wash, cut, comb and trim their tails.'

"So," says madame, "it is gross neglect with you ladies. You give more attention to any other part of your person than the locks which should be your crown of beauty. And you are in a hurry; you have so many distractions. Your mothers and women twice your age have many of them luxuriant hair, for when they were young it was still the custom to brush the hair at night and wash the scalp frequently. Ladies cover their bald heads but if they did not what a droll sight any ordinary audience would present."—New York Journal.

The "Harvest Moon."

Meeting a scientific friend in my walk the other night "by moonlight alone," he inquired if I was aware that the present new moon is the "harvest moon," and I knew what the "harvest moon" was. I answered, as would any average citizen, that I had heard of such a thing, but was open to information as to the particulars. "The September moon of each year," he went on to say, "is called the harvest moon because it is the first after the maturing of the annual field crops, and the farmer's sons and daughters are supposed to celebrate the consummation of the year's labors by out-door festivals in the moonlight. But the harvest moon is specially distinctive from the moon of any other month of the year because, for several successive evenings, about the time it becomes a full moon, it rises only about seventeen minutes later than on the preceding evenings, differing in this respect from the full moons of other months, which rise about fifty minutes later each evening. The real harvest moon is the September full moon, which this month will fall on the 13th. In some countries the time of the harvest moon is the love-making and match-making periods among the young men and maidens in the rural districts, and this makes it the season of rustic romances, culminating in winter nuptials a few weeks later. With a clear sky the harvest moon apparently shines brighter and casts darker shadows than that of any other moon in the year. This may be imaginary, and probably is so, but it has for ages been regarded as a fact."—Chicago Evening Journal.

COLORADO ITEMS.

Pueblo, Sept. 22.—S. P. Gutshall was before the United States Court to-day on an information for cutting timber on the public lands. He was sentenced by Judge Hallett to pay a fine of $200 and to be imprisoned in the Lake county jail one day.

A very valuable discovery of a gold lode was lately made on Soda creek by Thos. Egan, Joseph Orme, and J. S. Riggs, who have been prospecting for the lode for a little over a year, and in that time have driven 350 feet of tunnel and shaft, when the rich float was found, and succeeded in striking the vein, August 23, in thirty-five feet of drift. The pay ore is eighteen inches wide, and is composed of brown honey-comb quartz, white clay and iron, and streaks of galena on the wall. Six sacks of the lead ore yield fifty-five and one-half ounces silver and fifty-eight per cent. lead per ton. The honey-comed quartz and clay yielded three and one-half ounces gold, thirty-three ounces silver, and fifty-eight per cent. lead, with a small per cent. of copper per ton.

Three parties of tourists arrived in Denver on the 22d. The most prominent of them was composed of Admiral Shestakoff, minister of marine of the Russian Navy, Lady Shestakoff, Prince B. Galitzine, and Lieutenant A. Eberhard, aide to the admiral. The admiral was driving when a reporter called at the car, but was courteously received by Lieutenant Eberhard. "The admiral is traveling for his health," said his aid, "and by the special wish and permission of the Czar. He has visited all the Siberian ports; crossed the Pacific in a steamer, and reached here over the Central and Union Pacific roads. We go east to-night to New York, and by ocean steamer to Havre." How is the admiral pleased with America?" asked the reporter. "Oh, the admiral is no stranger in America. He was the naval attache to our legation at Washington during our war, and was in America again two years ago to assume command of a man-of-war built for us in this country. We have had a rapid but pleasant journey, and met everywhere with the most cordial reception, although our visit is for recreation merely, and has no political significance."
