THE FARMER BOYS.

BY H. B. T. Oh, give me the joys of the farmer boys, In the meadows and fields so bright; Among the cattle and singing birds,

Are the gems I love to sec.

And the cotton blossoms white. The note of the horn as it sounds each morn Is music sweet to me, And the dews distilled from the amber rills

Oh, give me a home and I'll never ream, Where plenty and comfort abide; And the ceaseless song of industry's throng Fills the saul with feelings of pride. The sweat of my brow while holding my

HESTER AND BEACH'S OUTRAGES IN ALABAMA—THE TWO OUTRAGE MANUFACTURERS REFURN TO WASHINGTON-A BRIEF HISTORY OF THEIR OPERATIONS.

Washington, Nov. 20,-Messrs. Hester and Beach, the two govern-Hester and Beach, the two government detectives who were sent to-Alabama for the purpose of furnishing "outrages" for the use of the Administration party during the Autumn campaign, have returned to Washington, although they repeatedly reported that they were upon the track of the murderers of Ivey; that they had the evidence to convict them, and that they would arrest them as soon as they were furnished with cavalry. The actual amount of work done by them may be summed up in a few them may be summed up in a few words. They arrested between forty and fifty men for conspiring to murder a negro legislator, Bob Reid, and to obstruct the passage of the U.S. mail, and the U.S. commissioner discharged them all without argument of $100, to answer any indictment that might be found argument them. They arrested found against them. They arrested the sheriff of Sumter County and a negro named Scip Coleman, accusing them of being accessory to the murder of the mail agent Ivey, and after keeping them in jail and under close military guard nearly a week discharged them without ex-emination, the former on a bond of $1,000 and the latter on his own recognizance. The U.S. commissioner before whom they were finally brought was in his office, within a brought was in his office, within a stone's throw of the jail, at the time these men were arrested, and might have taken the bond just as well then as five days later. The popular indignation against the U. B. officials for keeping men in jail without examination became so great that orders were telegraphed from Montgomery by U. S. marshal Healey for their immediate release. Hester also arrested four men for conspiring to injure him, used forged subpenas to secure the presence of witnesses, and took them to Mobile before the most bitterly partisan Commissioner in the State for examination. The Commissioner heard the testimony for the presecution, and then discharged two of the prisoners before the defense began. When the testimony for the defense was in, he postponed the case until after the
