

BIG BUSINESS FOR CONFERENCE

All the Railroads are Putting on Extra Equipment for Handling Heavy Traffic.

COMES FROM FOUR QUARTERS

Territory From Canada to Mexico Covered by Lines Centering in Salt Lake—Special Rates.

The outlook for conference travel this spring is very encouraging, and all the big roads running into Salt Lake are making extra preparations to take care of the business. If the present weather continues the prospects are that the traffic will be very heavy, as the cloudy, half stormy condition is not favorable for the planting of crops, and many farmers will find it convenient to spend two or three days in Salt Lake to attend the conference gatherings without damage to their farming operations.

The Oregon Short Line has already received assurances that business will be fully as large if not in excess of that of previous years, and extra equipment and men have been put on all along the line from Butte on the north to Huntington on the west and Green River on the east, drawing heavily on all the outlying country tributary to the central points. The special rates go into operation tomorrow, from the more distant points, and on Thursday for local travel.

Many people will take advantage of these rates for coming to Salt Lake City from points as far as La Grande, Oregon, Walla Walla, in Washington, Billings in Montana, and from all over Idaho, and southwest Canada, and all this business the Short Line looks after.

The country south and west of this city is controlled principally by the Rio Grande system, although the Clark road gets the southwestern traffic and a good sized slice of the travel coming from points in the north. The line of its own line, to Mantle on the line of the Sanpete valley. The Salt Lake Route trains leave Mantle at 7:20 a. m. in the morning, arriving in Salt Lake at 1:30 p. m. Tributary to the line of the Rio Grande is a vast country which usually furnishes heavy travel at conference time, and extends into the "Yonnie" country, western Colorado, and even from Mexico and Arizona. The road has put on a special train from Richfield for the first three days of conference, namely the 3rd, 4th and 5th of April, making a convenient service for business men and others who are compelled to make the long trip. The hotels are making special arrangements to take care of a large number of extra people during the next few days, and altogether the prospects are all for a successful conference and a lively week.

WILL ISSUE STOCKS.

Great Northern Railroad to Take Advantage of Decision in Its Behalf.

New York, April 2.—The Great Northern railroad has issued a circular to stockholders saying that since the courts of Minnesota have ordered the case to the company in the suit to restrain the issue of its $20,000,000 new stock, it will be issued at once. The dates will be as follows: The first four books for assignments will close at 3 o'clock today; assignments of stock will be received up to the close of business April 6; the first four assignments of 10 per cent each will be due April 9; the further 12 installments of 5 per cent each will be due monthly from May, 1907, to April, 1908.

IMMIGRATION IN U. S.

Largest Number of Immigrants in History of Country Came in 1906.

Chicago, April 2.—Railroads west of Chicago received during 1906 a total of $1,267,777 for the transportation of immigrants, the largest sum distributed in the history of the western immigrant bureau. Reports of the year's business have been sent to the bureau by E. E. MacLeod, chairman of the Western Passenger association. It is shown that in 1906 the greatest number of immigrants in any one year came to this country, the number being 1,185,268, and that the bureau headquarters in New York figured the greatest number in its history, 94,507.

BUILDING INTO WELLS.

Western Pacific Construction Now Blasting Within Mile of Town.

The Western Pacific railroad has commenced construction work in the vicinity of Wells, Nev., and according to advices received from that town, a large gang of men is now engaged in making a cut through the mountains to the westward of the town. The character of the country at that point is pretty hard, and the detonation of the heavy blasts required to blow the formation out and then again to lay the earth causing the doors and windows to rattle.

Everything is in readiness for the work east and west of Winnemucca. The new railroad has recently let a contract amounting to $6,000,000 for the portion of the main line between the eastern state line of California and Death Valley, a station on the Southern Pacific. The distance is 325 miles. This closes up all grading contracts for the Western Pacific's main line.

West from Salt Lake the company is laying track at the rate of a mile a day, and 10 miles of track have been completed. Officials say that when the railroad is ended they will lose no time in laying track in both directions from Stockton and Marysville, Cal. A large quantity of bridge material has been ordered and a bridge to cross the American river near Sacramento is to be erected next summer. By November of this year the company expects to have trains running between Oakland and Marysville.

SPIKE AND RAIL.

Experience of the hotels at Washington, D. C., demonstrates how rigidly the railroads are living up to the anti-pass law. At one of the big Washington hotels it was said that ordinarily about 20 pieces of baggage a week were checked on railroad passes. During last week not a piece of such baggage was checked, and for three weeks only two trunks were checked on railroad passes. For years pretty nearly everybody coming to Washington or going anywhere from Washington traveled on a pass—Railway World.

DEBATERS SELECTED.

Richard W. Young, Jr., and Christian Jensen Will Represent U. of U.

At a preliminary debate held at the University of Utah last evening, Richard W. Young, Jr., and Christian Jensen carried off the honors, and were therefore chosen to represent the university in the coming interstate debate with the University of Oregon. N. W. Cummings was selected as alternate.

"Resolved, that the fifteenth amendment and section 2 of the fourteenth amendment of the federal constitution should be repealed, it being conceded that the difficulty in bringing about the amendment shall not be discussed." Is the question that will be debated by the two schools.

The judges last evening were Judge T. D. Lewis, William Ray and Prof. Roylance Reynolds and Ebbagh.

SMOOTH TRICK.

Couple of Crooks Substitute Base for Valuable Diamond Ring.

Detective Matt Rhodes yesterday afternoon placed under arrest Robert and Anna Cochran, on a complaint charging grand larceny. The complainant in the case is W. J. Smith, proprietor of the Rocky Mountain loan office. It is alleged that the Cochrans went into the pawnshop and asked to look at rings. A solitaire valued at $250 drew their special attention, but they left the place without making a purchase. Smith detected the worthlessness of the ring and substituted for the diamond with the pair and that they carried the gem away with them. The suspected persons were soon in custody, and they have been identified as the would-be purchasers of jewelry.

SELF DENIAL WEEK.

Salvation Army to Observe Its Annual Effort April 14 to 21.

The Salvation Army will observe the week of self-denial April 14-21 in all parts of the United States, and a circular letter from Adj. H. P. Nelson of 654 South Second East street says: "I would like to call your attention to our great annual effort, the week of self-denial, which will be held this year from April 14 to 21, but in the local army we will start right away. As the army is compelled to rely to a large extent upon this effort for the maintenance and development of its home and foreign missionary work, I am anxious that, as far as the local corps is concerned, we shall come up to and even surpass anything hitherto accomplished. My own people have taken the matter up heartily, and knowing you interest in the work, I venture to ask, could you help us?"

The official paper of the army makes the following interesting statement in connection with the above: "Never in its history in this country has the Salvation Army accomplished so much in the relief and distress as during the recent winter. Over 300,000 people were given shelter, and scores of thousands were clothed, and some thousands of families were relieved of terrible distress. Meaning everyone of its many armed and unarmed soldiers, the army, at the hands of the army at high pressure, the demands upon them being unparalleled. This is the sort of thing that has endeared the Salvation Army to the hearts of the American people, and it is the sort of thing our citizens can help to forward by generous contributions during the army's self-denial week, April 14 to 21."

AMUSEMENTS.

Theater—A delightfully original comedy is "Alice-Sit-By-the-Fire," and very well was it rendered last night by Roselle Knott and her company of players. When it is known that it was written by J. M. Barrie, whose "Little Minister" and "Peter Pan" furnish instances of his power of humor and characterization, it will surprise no one to be told that this latest effort of his genius is all that is quaint and striking. It suggests the satirical humor of Gilbert at times, and then again is as earnest and purposeful as Pinero or Henry Arthur Jones.

He tells the story of the typical English couple who have lived in this city whose family has grown up in England. When the parents reach home, they are astounded to find the manner of their daughters and the all sorts of notions imbibed from the study of the plays of the day, mostly problem plays, and how the mental quips in boy and girl are brought out. The theme of "Alice-Sit-By-the-Fire," Miss Knott, herself, played with an excellent understanding of her role, and while she is not an Ethel Barrymore she gives a very creditable delineation throughout. Mr. Blind made a fine colonel, and Miss Viola Knott struck the truest note of the evening in her rendition of the girl who is a firm believer in what goes on at the theater. Mr. Newbold, the innocent "man in the case" was also good, and the other players all lived up to the requirements of their parts.

The big section of society that was present at the Grand last night, with doubtless the intention towards "Alice-Sit-By-the-Fire," and good business should be assured for the remainder of the engagement which lasts tonight, tomorrow afternoon and evening. Last night's attendance was fair.

WHEN DINNER COMES

One Ought to Have a Good Appetite.

A good appetite is the best sauce. It goes a long way toward helping in the digestive process, and that is absolutely essential to health and strength. All persons who have found that Grape-Nuts food is not only nourishing but is a great appetizer. Even children like the taste of it and grow strong and rosy from its use.

It is especially the food to make a weak stomach strong and create an appetite for dinner. "I am 67 years old," writes a Tenn. grandmother, "and have had a weak stomach from childhood. By great care as to my diet, I enjoyed a rather good degree of health, but never found anything to equal Grape-Nuts as a standby."

"When I have no appetite for breakfast, I take 4 teaspoonfuls of Grape-Nuts with good rich milk, and when dinner comes I am hungry. While I do not eat Grape-Nuts for breakfast, I never for breakfast seem to make a healthy appetite for dinner."

Hunting—Mr. Spencer—Mr. Bosworth. Paden, Sr.—Mr. Wells—Mr. Haddock. Otto—Mr. Young—Mr. Clarke.

Marguerite Roylance Doel. Jennie—Mrs. Wells—Miss Fearnley. Above are two notable casts of "Friends," the first that with which the play was given here something like 20 years ago when the author, Mr. Ned Boyle, brought it out with the Home Dramatic club under the name of "Out of Darkness." The second cast, which it was rendered at the Grand last night by the Leighton players. The event was made a distinctly notable one, and society turned out in strong numbers. Gov. Cutler and party occupied one box and directly opposite was ex-Gov. H. M. Wells and party; near by was J. D. Spencer, and both followed with interest the once and a while of the play at whose christening they took part so long ago.

The applause and the demonstrations of favor showed unmistakably that Mr. Leighton and his players made a strong impression upon their audience. At the close of the big sensational scene that ended the third act, the company was called before the curtain and Mr. Leighton himself was made to respond in a speech. He delivered himself in a modest but many feeling and sincere manner, and in a way which he and his friends had been welcomed since they arrived in Salt Lake, concluding by saying that they promised to do anything they attempted during their Salt Lake stay, would be least distinguished by absolute sincerity. This was the keynote of the entire performance. Every one worked with an earnestness and a zeal that could not fail to impress. Mr. Leighton himself and his leading players, and the company as a whole, worked with a force, force, and intelligence. Mr. Bosworth in the role of the villain showed a fine dramatic instinct, and in a strong place of work in the delirium tremens scene and was heartily applauded. Mr. Haddock was not more than adequate in the part of the old man, which may be due to the fact that the role was always the least satisfactory in the strong group of characters drawn by the author. Mr. Leighton in the role of a guest, showed a beautiful reader and an accomplished actress. Her style and appearance are somewhat matured for the part, and she played the part with a real bearing. In parts more distinctly on the heavy order. Miss Fearnley was decidedly charming in the pretty scene of domestic and domestic favor with the audience.

The staging and costuming were all of an excellent grade and the presentation was that of a taste and care. Mr. Leighton will go one step farther and double his orchestra, he will place his audience under a debt of gratitude. It is a pity that the week and the next week's bill will be the farce comedy entitled "Innocence."

Orpheum—The Orpheum bill this week partakes of the seasonable springtime habit of pouring whenever it starts to rain, for there are musical numbers following upon the musical numbers, and the program is suggestive of a fond teacher's prize pupils in a public recital.

Raphia comes at the end, and she is worth watching. Her act has been built up far away from the commonplace in serpentine dancing, and is so well done that she merits the half dozen real which she has received. A group of dancers set at the rear of the stage give the appearance of a chorus of dancers following through her graceful steps while she handles the many yards of silk which make up her costume, with a skill rarely approached in her chosen field. The Hilo Comedy Four are also entirely successful in their act, and the very more than good, while one of the number is a comedian of real ability. They make every minute count while before the footlights, and serve to cheer the audience in a rather dreary program of preliminary numbers. Dorothy Kenton would have made a hit in her banjo numbers, had not she followed too long a string of musical offerings. Her work is an excellent exposition of the instrument's possibilities, and makes a distinct impression on lovers of banjo music. William Morrow in mimicry lacks the voice of even a mediocre singer, while his team mate, Miss Schellberg, is hardly more fortunate. Charlotte Ravennaoff sings a song of a girl who is a firm believer in what goes on at the theater. Mr. Newbold, the innocent "man in the case" was also good, and the other players all lived up to the requirements of their parts.

of Utah, the 15th day of April is set apart to be observed as Arbor day.

Whereas, it is made the duty of the governor to issue a proclamation calling for the observance of this day: Now, therefore, I, John C. Cutler, governor of the State of Utah, by virtue of the requirements of the statutes, and in accordance with public custom and sentiment, do hereby designate Monday, April 15, 1907, as Arbor day, to be observed as such throughout the state.

I urge the observance of this day in the spirit with the aim which actuated the Hon. J. Sterling Morton in first suggesting that Arbor day be celebrated. This would include, first of all, the planting of as many trees and shrubs and flowers as possible, both by private individuals and by officers of public institutions. If these institutions, in connection with the work of planting, will conduct such exercises as most effectively to impress upon the minds of the present and of the future citizens of the state the great value and beauty of a thrifty, growing tree, a double object will be accomplished.

Especially in the schools should this be done. By a proper appeal to the loyalty and public spirit of the students, it will be possible for the beautifying of the state to be secured, and at the same time for this invaluable lesson to be taught. The children should understand that each growing tree has a life, the destruction of which is an offense. And thus will the duty of man to beautify the earth and make it a better home, be impressed upon those who are entering upon the active duties of life.

Householders would do well to occupy the day not only in planting trees, but in renovating their lawns, their flower beds and grounds, as a means of preserving health, and as a valuable object lesson to their children and neighbors.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Richards, and Mr. B. DuRan of Australia, are in the city on a tour of inspection. Mr. Richards is connected with the great Mt. Morgan Gold Mining company of Queensland, which produces 50 tons of gold. It is also the greatest producer of copper in the antipodes. Mr. Richards is looking into general mining conditions in this country, while his wife is especially interested in viewing the sights. This is Mr. Richards' second trip to this country, he having visited Salt Lake five years ago, on which occasion, however, he did not stop over in this city. He said today that he was very much pleased with the city and the state, and that no country in the world had made the progress in material ways that has been made in this country. The party here spent several months, sightseeing before returning to their Australian home.

W. R. Sebree and wife of Caldwell, Idaho, are in the city and registered at the Wilson. Mr. Sebree is a retired banker of the Idaho city, and is traveling for pleasure.

H. C. Ehrlich, one of the expert engineers of the Allis-Chalmers machine tool works, is in the city, on business connected with his firm, and is stopping at the Kenyon. "Our people turn out more mining and sawmill plants in this state than in any other western institution. Take one of the double cutting band saw mills now being extensively installed in the state, for instance, in the north-west," said Mr. Ehrlich. "It is almost a marvel to the eye to see those mills work. The log carriage and live roll tables are so arranged that a cut from the log can be made on the downward and upward trips, hence the term 'double cut.' The saw, which cuts a plan of one-eighth of an inch thick, goes through the log with every stroke, and produces a board that is capable of receiving the highest finish of which any lumber is susceptible, and for that reason band sawed lumber is more valuable than that saved by the old style circular saws. From one-third to one-half inch of lumber can be saved with the double cut than with the single cut bands, and on that account most of the modern mills have constructed contain only the double cutting band saw. The old rotary saw took out a quarter of an inch in making the cut, and the new double cutting machines save 125,000 feet of lumber out of every 1,000,000 feet, and the manufacturers were quick to see this point."

O. C. Johnson of Blackfoot, Idaho, is at the White House. Mr. Johnson comes from a section of Idaho that was long considered an untillable area, but which, with the advent of water to quench its burning thirst and irrigate the crops, is rapidly becoming one of the garden spots of the Gem state.

Blackfoot is the center of the southernmost beet belt," said Mr. Johnson, "and since the farmers have had water on their land there is scarcely any limit to what they can raise. Idaho has received prizes for her excellent fruit, and when it comes to alfalfa and beets, she is hard to beat," and the genial Idahoan smiled. "We also have some mineral. Idaho stands fifth among the states of the Union in the production of the precious metals, first in lead and second in gold. We also have large herds of cattle and sheep grazing on our mountains and plains, and altogether Idaho looks to me like the coming state of the northwest."

Get Married Today—On the first eastbound train coming through from Salt Lake, Idaho, last evening, yesterday came two young people who on their arrival took apartments at the White House. They were Thomas McCartney and Miss Dora Darrall, both from the desert division terminal on the Clark road, and it leaked out that their tour to the capital was for the purpose of becoming united in wedlock. The ceremony will be performed today, and the couple will take a little honeymoon trip before returning to their home in Nevada. "California is a thriving town," said Mr. McCartney today. "Prior to the establishment of the district terminal there this place did not exist. It is now a well appointed and well regulated city of 3,000 or 4,000 people. California was formerly called Clover Valley, and is located by the old U. P. surveying party when marking out a road to Pioche. It is now the outlying point and center for supplies for the mining camps of De la Mar and Pioche, and is a prosperous, growing railroad town."

J. W. Woolf of Cardston, Alberta, Canada, is in the city, a guest of the Wilson. Mr. Woolf was formerly a resident of this state, leaving his home in Idaho to go to Canada in the days of the early settlement of the northwest territory. Mr. Woolf was among the pioneers of the southern portion of Alberta, and was among those going into the country in the times when C. O. Card led the vanguard of settlers to St. Mary's river.

Mr. Woolf is at the present time a member of the new provincial legislature, for within the last year or two Alberta has been elevated to the rank of a province, and is equivalent to a statehood in the states. He talks entertainingly today on conditions in the growing northwest. "The people here are happy and the country is forging ahead," said he. "Last year we had plenty of rain, and this following several dry seasons, have restored the contented feeling so necessary to the prosperity of any country. Our sugar factory is a great element in the growth of the state, and the kind of soil for the cultivation of sugar beets, and this insures a large amount of work for the men when everything else fails. It is true the weather gets pretty cold some times, but no weather in many of the states, and we manage to stand it all right."

Householders would do well to occupy the day not only in planting trees, but in renovating their lawns, their flower beds and grounds, as a means of preserving health, and as a valuable object lesson to their children and neighbors.
