Proceedings of the Electoral Commission.

WASHINGTON, 5.—Charles O'Connor proceeded to address the commission. He said in reference to the inquiry within reach of the commission the counsel on the two sides stood in direct conflict. He claimed the commission had the right by just and proper means to inquire what was the result of the election, and that the returns certified to by the governor. The powers of the commission, he said, were fully expressed in the immortal words of the constitution, "to inquire into the result of the election in Louisiana, and to report thereon to the people."

Q.—Then you mean to say that the result of the election in Louisiana, and to report thereon to the people?

A.—I did not mean that, sir.

Q.—What do you mean beyond that?

A.—I mean just what I have said.

Q.—Did you mean that the result of the election in Louisiana, and to report thereon to the people?

A.—I did not mean that, sir.

Q.—What do you mean beyond that?

A.—I mean just what I have said.
