

We beg to inform our numerous Patrons and friends that we have Removed our entire stock of Merchandise, from the Constitution Building to the

we have not been in the habit of the least of the some protecting therefore, of having the result of the some protecting therefore, of having the some protecting therefore, of the leading facts pertaining to orable manner, and I do not remember in the many years that I have been have been any contested cases. If there have been any source for the some protecting the relation to them. It has been under to them it shall be in such affairs, but so it is; it is not of they were not there to bring up. The least of the some protection there are were mixed up with this committee when it shall be in such affairs, but so it is; it is not of they were not there to bring up. that it was the position that he occupied interiments, and M. unbiassed and even handed justice to all men than I am. I have felt sorry that this matter has assumed the present shape. I would much have preferred that it had gone before the committee, as previously contemplated, then they would have had a proper opportu-nity of investigating the evidence. But as there is a principle involved in this matter, and certain parties seem to think—and they have as preserved in some degree of purity, and to have some respect for the common amenities of life, and for honesty, truth and integrity. That is all I have to say at present, Mr. Speaker.

[Since the above remarks, Mr. Pratt, the peaker of the House, made the following statement; -

"Some members of the House had en-quired of him what were the rules of leg-islative bodies in such cases. He had the rules governing in the British Parliament, and also those governing in the United States Congress, and neither of them con-tained any rule, requiring the oath to be administered to a member whose seat is contested. Congress had allowed it some-times, but under no rule. The House was the sole judge of the qualifications of its members. In the English Parlis-ment it was held that the setion of one Parliament."]
