Washington expects this year's wheat crop to be [illegible] the biggest in the history of the state.

The Indian range allotments from Oregon are [illegible] to more than 1,000,000 head.

Lester Pratt, aged 2, fell into a child's bathtub in which there was about two inches of water, near Ione, Or., a few days ago, and was drowned.

Millions of young grasshoppers have come into appearance on [illegible] Oregon, and the farmers in that section fear they will do considerable damage to growing crops.

Miss Hattie Regan of San Diego, Cal., the Pacific coast whistler, is to be married to Albert Thurston of Thurston, Davies county, Kentucky, a prominent horse-breeder.

The San Francisco Chronicle of July 13 says: Professor Henry S. Tanner of the California Museum of Design addressed a large audience in Pythian Castle last night upon "Tree Bark and Boxing of Christianity."

The decomposed remains of Ben Durst, an old ex-soldier, were found Saturday to the east of the foot of Fillmore street, San Francisco, by Chris Lorz, a boy. Durst had a rope wrapped in a rock tied to his body when found, and there is every indication that he committed suicide. The body appeared to have been in the water nearly two weeks.

Another carload of redwood has just been shipped from California to Nuremberg, Germany, for use in making lead pencils. The cedar forests of Nevada that formerly supplied wood for pencils have been practically exhausted, and experts sent to search for a substitute reported that the California redwood appeared to be the best available material.

Prohibition is something of a good name in the temperance of Fort Scott, Kan. There are a number of saloons in the place, and it is customary to [illegible] the proprietors every month and [illegible] the statutory fine. Fort Scott has been gradually raising the limit, and now the assessments average [illegible] a month, a tariff which exorbitantly lessens the taxes.

The town of Wenatchee, Wash., is to be moved two miles from its present location to a point on the bank of a river. It is a pretty fair sized town, too. All the buildings will be moved in the usual way to the new location. There is not an adequate supply of water where the town now stands, and in addition the citizens are incensed at the avarice of the owners of the present townsite, who have fixed the price of property at a very high figure.

Henry Fabek, a native of Switzerland, aged about 40 years, came to Chino, Cal., Saturday evening, about 8 o'clock, and took a room at the Germania hotel and immediately retired. Nothing more was seen of him until 5 o'clock next evening, when the proprietor of the hotel noticed a sickening odor in the hall. In looking for the cause he found Fabek's body in the room. Judging from the condition of the corpse, he must have expired soon after retiring. The cause of death is unknown.

One thousand acres of growing grain was swept by flames Saturday night in the country east of Stockton and between Oakdale and Knight's Ferry, Cal. The harvest was to begin this week, and the heavy crops were brushed from the ground in a few hours, entailing a loss of $12,000. How the fire started is not known, but the country has been so dry the last few days that small fires have occurred frequently from unknown causes, but did not get beyond control. Several barns were burned.

Prescott, Arizona, Republican—Mrs. Hennage, aged 73 years, fell Wednesday afternoon from the top of a haystack, where she had climbed to gather eggs, and broke her neck. Deceased was a pioneer of Mesa City, going there with her husband among the very first who took up land on the Salten plain and bravely started in to bring to it the waters of the river. A son was Wm. M. Hennage, deceased last year, formerly water commissioner and supervisor. The funeral was held yesterday afternoon, under the auspices of the Church of Latter-day Saints, and was attended by hundreds.

Ike Shaffer and Elmer Bowles quarreled on the street in Merced, Cal., on Sunday and Shaffer shot Bowles, who died within an hour. Both had been up all night, drinking, and were intoxicated. After quarreling a while, Shaffer told Bowles if he did not let him alone he would shoot him. Bowles then went after a revolver, and returning a few minutes later, the quarrel was renewed, Shaffer warned Bowles a second time and then ordered away, Bowles following him. After walking a few steps, Shaffer turned and said, "Don't come another step or I'll kill you." Eye witnesses differ as to whether Bowles backed away or still advanced. At any rate Shaffer shot Bowles in the stomach, inflicting a wound which soon caused death.

Strong Men of Ancient Greece.

The archeological tales of the Greeks attributed many feats of strength to their heavy athletes. Milo of Crotona had such strength in his fingers and wrists that no one could open his little finger. He could hold a pomegranate enclosed in his hand while its wrongful confinement to avoid it from his grasp. Theagenes of Thasos, the winner of 1,400 crowns for running and boxing matches, when only 9 years of age carried on his shoulders from the market place to his home the bronze statue of a god. Melancomas stood one day with outstretched hands, and Polydamas, with one hand, stopped a chariot at full speed, held up the wildest steer by his right leg and overcame a lion. Polydamas is said
