ning, Aquila Nebeker was induced by friends to issue a statement setting forth his exact views as to the guber-natorial fight. He was asked if he was a candidate. And he answered: "I am not a candidate in the sense that I am seeking support for the nom-ination. In my judgment this cam-paign ought not to be conducted in the interest of any man, or set of men, but for the best good of the state of Utah. To this end the candidate for governor, and the candidates for the other state offices, should be selected without re-gard to personal friendships; without regard to geographical location of resi-regard to geographical location of resi-dence, but with the one object of nom-inating the man whom the delegates to the convention consider the stronges and best qualified for the place. If my friends see fit to support me under the conditions I have designated, I am satisfied."
