HOBOS FLOCKING WEST.

Short Line is Overrun by Tramps—Some Amusing Experiences.

Summer tourist brakebarn travel on the Oregon Short Line has set in earnest this early in the season in the country apparently heading for the Portland fair. All the freight agents here report that there is all kinds of trouble with tramps being countered all along the line. It is related that recently a conductor opened a big furniture car and was surprised to find no less than 50 hobos inside. As the majority rules the few were molested but a wire was sent ahead to the nearest town. When the marshal appeared he is said to have asked "How many of you hobos are in there?" The prompt and cheerful response was "Sixty-three, but we can squeeze in a few more." "Well," said the official, "three of you come out of it so as to make it an even number."

Robert Wilson, traveling freight agent for the Rock Island who has returned from American Fork, where he has been loading wool, has some very lively stories to tell of the hobo fraternity. Wilson says that when he arrived there were some 45 hobos laying around in the sun on the wool sacks and when he came to open up the empty car to commence loading he turned out 15 tramps, a dope fiend who was apparently dead to the world, and an individual suffering from smallpox. He hired 10 of the men at 25 cents an hour to load wool and while they were working two were actively engaged in "rushing the car," while a third hunted an old rusty five-gallon oil can and proceeded to pour an epicurean dish known among the hobos as a Mulligan stew, the ingredients of which consist of potatoes, onions and a piece of meat. On Sunday the hobos organized a baseball team and proceeded to challenge the team from American Fork. After the challenge had been accepted a delegation from the order of Wanderers was sent up on Wilson at the hotel and requested that he help for them. That evening several passenger trains passed through the hobo camp and the hobo swarmed on them like bees. By the next morning there was another half hundred broke-bean tourists in town from the east.

PLANS OF THE C. & S.

Extension of Colorado Road to the Gulf—Western Pacific. San Francisco, April 27.—The Examiner today says that H. E. Huntington, George Crocker and Edwin Hare, who own large interests in the Colorado & Southern railway company, are said to be planning to make that road the nucleus of a great system. One of their plans is to extend the road to the Gulf of Mexico, so as to have a through line between Denver and Galveston. The route to Galveston will be accomplished by the purchase of the Trinity and Brazos Valley railroad and the construction of 160 miles of road. The extension will take a year to complete. With the completion of this extension an arrangement is then to be made with the Denver & Rio Grande by which the Colorado & Southern can reach San Francisco over the new Western Pacific.

Over the Old.

The old forms have been done away with in the office entirely. The new forms are much more complete and are greatly condensed so that the same information is now contained on one page of the book which formerly filled two or three pages.
