

AT HOME. JANUARY 16, 1904.

Worry is a state of spiritual corrosion. To go about depressed is unworthy of a human being. A trouble can either be remedied it can not. If it can be, then set about it; if it can not be, dismiss it from your mind, or bear it so bravely that it may become transfigured into a blessing .---Selected.

The notable event of the week, and one of those of many past seasons was the reception given at the Alta club on Thursday night. The invitations were limited to the members and their ladies, and those included in all about 250 who enjoyed the pleasant affair to the utmost. The rooms were beautifully decorated. The large reception hall down stairs was bower like in its ropes of smilax, palms and plants, and sprays of plumosa and carnations, while a large American flag draped the stairway leading to the second floor, 'The large hall here was most beautiful in its decorations. Paims stood at intervals around the room, the ceiling was covered with a network of ropes of olumosa, while festoons of smilax were looped along the cornice dotted with tiny electric globes shaded in dainty green. The chandeliers were smothered in clusters of ferns, pink carnations. ,and pink baby ribbon, the effect being exquisite. The mirror also was laced with vines, and boquets of pink roses were in vases about the hall. The three rooms on the north were used for danc-ing, and were also beautifully decorat-ed, the musicians' platform being banked with palms and draped with American flags, and the celling and cornic having festoons of plumosa in lattice effect, while the mirrors and chande liers were smothered in vines and show. The ery sprays of pink carnations. The drawing room was also in pink and green, these colors predominating throughout, except in the refreshment rooms, which were done in American Beauty roses and deep red carnations the tables being most artistic in their adornment. The affair was altogether a notably brilliant one. Among the interesting events of the week was the leapyear ball given at the Ladies' Literary clubhouse last night. The event was managed by a number of young maids and matrons of the city, and the fate of the other sex for the evening was totally in their hands. Spite of this there was little lacking to make the affair a delightful one to all, and to make it rank among the season's successes. Among the 'hostesses were Miss Katherine Geddes, Miss Addie Zane, Miss Katherine Judge, Miss Allie Miller, Miss Margie Miller, Miss Maud Thorne, Miss Margaret Park, Miss Leta McMillan, Miss Nason, Miss Adelaide Nason, Miss Dorothy Kinney, Miss Emily Read, Miss Noble, Mrs. Frances Woodward, Mrs. Arthur
