CAN FULL VOTE BE CAST TOMORROW?

Not a Little Concern Over the Capacity of Machines to Handle All Ballots.

WHERE POLLING PLACES ARE.

In Some Places it Means an Average Of a Vote a Minute Through The Entire Day.

Tomorrow is one of the vital days in the history of citizens of the United States. It is one of those opportunities to be a good citizen, or a bad citizen, and to check the net result up into the form of government to be conducted until the citizens get another chance at rectifying it.

It was to make the people intelligent, that the bullot was invented, and to make the ballot intelligent that public schools were put on the tax list. The good citizen either knows today where he is going to cast his ballot, or he he is going to cast his ballot, or he will learn before tomorrow morning. Below is a list of the politing places, and every man and woman of voting age, who has registered cught to make use of the place in his district tomor-

Too much stress cannot be laid on the importance to go early. A voting machine has its limit of capacity, and if too many voters get around it at the last minute, the polls may be closed upon them. In the Fifty-fourth district, there is one voting machine provided. If a vote a minute is cast all day long, the total registered vote will be accommodated. This instance alone shows the danger of slipping over at the last minute, instead of going early. on the way to work, in the neon hour, or in the morning where work hours do

DAMAGE SUIT THAT FAILED

Jury in the Cast of W. L. Fuller Vs. San Pedro Breaks Even.

SOUGHT TO RECOVER $50,000

For Once a Utah Jury Did Not Make It Warm for a Big Corporation.

The reputation heretofore held by the State of Utah for juries awarding plaintiffs in suits against corporations heavy damages received a setback this morning at Fillmore, Millard county, in the case of W. L. Fuller vs. the San Pedro, Los Angeles & Salt Lake Ratiroad company. The jury stood four for the plaintiff and four for the defendant and was unable to agree.

The case was brought by Mr. Fuller to recover $50,000 damages against the rallroad company for alleged carelessness on the part of its employes whereby two children of plaintiff were scalded to death a little over a year ago at Oasis. The children were in a car in a work The children were in a car in a work train which started up suddenly, upset-ting a boiler of scalding water from the stove in the "hash" car. The con-tents of the boiler went over both little ones. One died shortly after and the other expired in his father's arms as he was being brought to Salt Lake for treatment.

The case opened before Judge Greenwood and jury at Fillmore a week ago today. Attys, C. O. Whittemore and Whitecotton appeared for the railway company and Atty. D. D. Houtz for The evidence showed that the plaintiff. The evidence showed that the airbrakes were defective and the regrettable accident was not the fault of the engineer.

UTAH'S REPUTATION.

Heretofore Utah has held such a reputation for juries awarding heavy damages, say railroad attorneys, that it has been the custom for cases to be brought from Idaho. Wyoming and Nevada for trial. Sooner than have the courts of their own state try cases of such character, plaintiffs have brought them to Utah with the object in view of securing heavier damages than they might otherwise obtain at

This startling statement was made this morning by a well known attor-ney, and it is understood that the legal department of the Oregon Short Line is now engaged in compiling a state-ment wherein is shown that the courts of Utah are annually burdened with numerous cases that might as well be tried in contiguous states, but for the fact of Utah's unenviable (from the corporation standpoint) reputation.

Numerous cases could be cited to uphold this contention of the corporation lawyers. Recently a jury a Beaver brought in a verdict of $20,000 against the San Pedro in the case of Engineer Blackmar, who was killed while on duty. This case is now pend-ing on a motion of a new trial.

LIMIT TO DAMAGES.

In the face of similar verdicts the railroads and other large employers of labor will make an effort at the next session of the legislature to have a statute compiled along the lines of those of half the states in the Union which limit the damages to be awarded by a jury in case of death to $5,000. This sum it is claimed, on a annuit represented the wages earned by a trainman of 35 years of age. The growing habit of bringing eases from contiguous states to Utah for trial has assumed such proportions, say trial has assumed such proportions, say the lawyers, that it seriously burdens the dockets and adds to the cost of the operation of the courts.

In the verdict brought this morning at Fillmore local attorneys claim a victory for the corporation and a setback to the idea that Utah juries will disregard the law and the evidence in a case as interpreted in the summing up of the judge and it will have the ef-fect of making some plaintiffs keep their cases to their own state for trial. P. R. MORRIS RESIGNS.

"Remember, Remember the Fifth Of November"-Gunpowder Plot.

PARLIAMENT. ESCAPE

Story of Members' Close Call From Being Blown Into Eternity-How Day is Celebrated.

This is "Guy Fawkes day," facetiously referred to on this side of the water as the English Fourth of July. The late

Col. Fawkes was a well meaning man-that is, from his standard of moral ethics, which, however, falled to receive the approval of his esteemed fellow citizens. Col. Fawkes thought so well of the members of the English parliament under James I that he concluded they ought to be angels rather than men, even if he had to effect the transformation himself. So he unostentatiously, and with characteristic reserve, placed a ton or two of gunpowder in the vaults of the houses of parliament, as a pyrotechnic and fitting accompaniment of the parliamentarians to "Other Worlds than Ours," and to a better clime. Unfortunately for this great and good (?) man, but fortunately for the parliament, his little plan was discovered through an indiscreet inadvertence of Col. Fawkes in notifying an official friend, Lord Monteagle, that it might be well for his terrestrial integrity if he became indisposed and remained away from his parliamentary duties on the day set for the grand denoument. The lord became suspicious, and notified the city authorities that something was up that might bear investigation. This was made, and Col. Fawkes was discovered actively preparing to inaugurate the ascension act. He was at once arrested, his good motives in a calling the second act. He was at once arrested, his good mo-tives in desiring the translation of the members of parliament to a nobler sphere of action were impugned, and the king thought so little of his purpose that he had the colonel promptly con-demned, so that the latter, instead of the members of parliament, put on his post mortem habiliments and left this world by special request over the neck black route, with seven of his compa-dres.

All England is celebrating the deliver-ance today, and tonight bonfires will il-luminate the entire superficies of the British firmament. HOW PLOT WAS FORMED.

Fawkes was a Yorkshire soldier of fortune. He served in the Spanish army in the Netherlands, and in 1604

army in the Netherlands, and in 1004 became the tool of Robert Catesby in a plot conceived by him to blow up the houses of parliament, with King James, the lord, commons and all. This was in revenge for the severity of penal laws against the Catholics, which continued over from the reign of Queen Elizabeth. Fawkes was se-lected by Thomas Winter as a useful man, and was the fourth person to be admitted to the conspiracy, after Winadmitted to the conspiracy, after Winter had been on a fruitless mission to Spain to solicit the intervention of "his most Catholic majesty" in behalf of the English Catholics. Thomas Percy, one of the gang, rented a house adjoining the house of parliament, with Fawkes as his servant under the name of Johnson. Seven confederates excavated under the foundations and into the vaults unfoundations and into the vaults under the parliament house, with Fawkes keeping watch above. The conspirators also hired a vault beneath the house of lords, and through the subterranean passage carried 36 barrels of gunpowder which they covered with faggots. Fawkes then hurried to Flanders to secure foreign co-operation in the military and political movements that were to follow the explosion, and as money was necesmovements that were to follow the explosion, and as money was necessary, three wealthy gentlemen. Sir Everade Digby, Ambrose Rookwood and Francis Tresham were made privy to the plot. Parliament was to meet Nov. 5, 1605, and Fawkes was selected to touch the match. The plot would have been successful but for the letter to Lord Monteagle, his prompt handing over of the letter to the king, and the arrest of Fawkes as he was coming out of the cellar with matches and touchwood in his pockets. pockets.

PUT TO THE RACK

Fawkes was put to the rack to compel him to reveal his accomplices which he refused to do, even under torture, but they revealed themsives by appearing under arms, and were immediately arrested. The failure of the plot was complete, and it only further inflamed the public temper against the Roman Catholic element, and led to the enactment of additional penal statutes against them. The celebration was formerly observed in New England, and in Australia and Canada. But it has fallen into disuse in this country. But in the mother country the celebration is on in force, and the boys sing.

One feature of the campaign remains inique. No chairman will shout very loud that has things coming his way. loud that has things coming his way. The election is completely "up in the air." and all three chairmen are reaching up to pull it down to their particular camp. The Democrats are convinced that their party will stand path. The Republicans are convinced that they will win in both county and state on the change in sentiment following the Littlefield rally, while the Americans are confident they have the cip because they got it last year, and have the county, because they have works hard for it in the centers of populate especially.

The last mud will not be thrown aday. Tomorrow morning the Tribstill has a fing coming, and it will directed against the Mormon Chable leaders as usual. This morning a typical brand of mud is slashed out the religious services of yesterday. The fast meetings have been held on the first Sunday of each month for many years. Yet the fact that they were held yesterday is flashed up into headlines, and a categorical assertion made that and a categorical assertion made tha they were given over to political in-stead of religious discussion. One typical Tribune lie is that in the Sixteenth ward meetinghouse Bishop Patrick announced to his congregation that a voting machine was in the meet-inghouse, and they must come Monday and learn how to vote the straight Re-publican ticket. Of course the slight fact that there is no Bishop Patrick in the Sixteenth ward, and that the elec-tion machines are locked and sealed for voting on election day, need make no difference to a paper like the one that prints the story mentioned.

Another item of the same story brings in the Twentieth ward. It alleges that the bishop told the people machine was in the annex and that after meeting he instructed people how to vote. The fact here also is that the machine was in the regular district voting place, an amusemen hall, not the meetinghouse, and was
