

Capital Voters Leave for Home

Special Correspondence.
Washington, D. C., Oct. 24.—What ever apathy was exhibited among Republi cans in Washington during the early days of the campaign has en tirely disappeared and with the dis appearance have gone hundreds of Republi cans. They have left the capital by scores and hundreds during the past few days and every berth on every outgoing train has been engaged for the next week. They form the small army of federal employees who have left for their homes in order that they may cast their ballots for Taft and Sherman. Two weeks ago great anxiety was felt over the apparent in difference of most of the voters em ployed in Washington. There seemed to be little prospect that any great number of those entitled to the fran chise would exercise their privilege as American citizens. But the League of Republican clubs, "got busy." Meet ings were held night after night; rail roads were appealed to and satis factory rates were obtained. Personal solicitation had its effect with the re sult that practically 90 per cent of the voters of Nebraska, the Dakotas, Kansas, Minnesota, and all the region west of the Mississippi have already gone and those living nearer the seat of gov ernment have made arrangements to "go home" between now and next Sat ursday night. Without enquiring into the political affiliations of their clerks and employes the heads of departments

Oklahoma, in spite of the fact that the latter state has generally been con ceded to the Democrats.
Altogether the outlook at the begin ning of the closing week of the cam paign is brighter for the Republi can ticket than at any time since the campaign opened.
No cruise ever undertaken by a squadron of the United States navy has produced the satisfaction among the authorities that has followed the record breaking cruise of the Atlantic battleship fleet. That 15,000 officers and men could be transferred from the Atlantic through the Caribbean in to the Pacific and thence to the Japan sea without one serious outbreak of any kind seems incredible. Jack at sea is a model of discipline. But the very officers who create that dis cipline are the first to recognize the fact that Jack ashore, especially after a long confinement in the engine room or the forecabin is usually the apostle of license. And yet Admiral Robley D. Evans and his captains, at first, and now Admiral Sperry have shown the world that the American sailor is a man who can be depended upon to uphold the prestige of the United States, not only at target prac tise, but in any position in which he may be placed. First in the West In dies, where the first shore leave was granted, and subsequently in all the ports of South America, both on the shores of the Atlantic and on those of the Pacific the blue shirted boys of

MORE RELICS FOR THE STATE HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

Interesting relics which are now among the valuable collection of the State Historical society include articles depicted above. The picture to the left is that of a desk used in President Brigham Young's private schoolhouse, that stood on the present site of the Bransford apartments, State and South Temple streets. The building was the first school of any pretensions built west of the Missouri river, and was first used in 1860. These desks were made under the personal direction of President Young, and served for many years, for it was only after the railroad came to Utah that the new school furniture came into use in the valley. The desk is stored with the collection owned by the State Historical society.

The second picture represents articles brought to Utah in 1858 by the army under Gen. Albert Sidney Johnston, and are presented to the society. The whisky bottle and padlock by Andrew Park, Fairfield, Utah; the cavalry sabre, loaned by Benhap William Cook of Cedar Valley; the musket, belt buckle and cap pouch, by William F. Carson of Fairfield, Utah. The other articles are pieces of exploded shell.

for the transportation of western grain to the seaboard. The canals of New York are as free to navigation as the seven seas, and yet the Erie canal is used almost exclusively for the trans portation of freights to and from the seaboard to the west. Local traffic is insignificant when compared with the vast grain shipments from Duluth and Chicago to New York, via Buffalo, and yet the people of the state of New York voted for the constitutional amendment which means such a heavy tax upon the lands of the commonwealth by an over whelming majority.
And now Illinois comes with a propo sition to bond herself to the extent of $25,000,000 in aid of the deep waterways project from the lakes to the Gulf. That amendment will be voted upon next week and there is reason to believe that it will be ratified by the electorate and thus another step will have been taken towards cheapening the cost of trans portation and at the same time afford ing means for defense in case of trou ble and the necessity for transferring gunboats from point to point without the aid of foreign waters.

Year by year there is a growing dis position among the people of the United States to support all movements looking to the cheapening of water transportation. Twenty-five years ago President Arthur vetoed a river and harbor appropriation bill carrying something less than $10,000,000 because he considered the amount excessive. To day it is doubtful if President Roose velt would disapprove a measure carry ing 10 times that amount if it should be sent to the White House for his ap proval.

Secy. Taft is committed to the policy of improved waterways and has heart ily endorsed the work of the National Rivers and Harbors congress, and Mr. Bryan is apparently equally enthusias tic in supporting the plans of that or ganization.

With New York willing to pledge her credit to the extent of upwards of a hundred millions and with the legisla ture of Illinois asking the votes of that state to vote nearly a quarter of that amount it is evident that the United States is entering upon an era of water transportation improvement which is destined to make this republic the fore most nation on earth in the matter of cheap transportation facilities just as she is today the foremost in the matter of railroad mileage.

D. B. HILL ONCE MORE POLITICALLY ACTIVE.

Ex-Senator David B. Hill, celebrated as the owner of the famous slogan, "I am a Democrat," has once more become prominent politically. Mr. Hill for the past 10 years has been busy with one of the most lucrative private law prac tices in the United States, and during the two previous Bryan campaigns, and even when Judge Parker ran, he mingled little with politicians. He has re cently, however, come out in favor of the present candidates and is booked for speeches and is said to be working vigorously for the Democratic party candidates.

have been unusually liberal in granting requests for leave of absence with the result that the federal force will be reduced to the minimum until after the election.

REASON FOR EXODUS.

One reason for this burst of political animation in quarters where a month ago there was apparently no disposi tion to take any part in the coming elections is found in the reports, so persistently circulated by the Demo cratic managers and the newspapers which support Bryan, to the effect that a tidal wave is forming which will sweep the Nebraskans into the White House. Up to the time when these re ports gained currency the feeling of confidence in Mr. Taft's election was so deep rooted in the minds of Republi cans here that apathy was the nat ural result. There is nothing like a medium of alarm to stir up activ ity in politics and that small wave of alarm swept through the depart ments with the result that the apathe tic streak was promptly washed away and everyone developed a disposition to do all in his power to bring about the election of the Republican ticket.

ALARM HAS DISAPPEARED.

But there is absolutely nothing like alarm among the Republicans today. From all over the country comes re ports of the closing up of the lines and general aggressiveness on the part of the leaders. The weak spots have been strengthened and Mr. Hitchcock's forces are watching every point. In Wisconsin and Illinois, in Ohio and New York, conditions are reported as infinitely better than they were 10 days ago, while from the internoun tain and coast states every letter re ceived indicates that the Republican ticket is assured of success.

The claim of the Bryan managers that Kansas may be found in the Bry an column is looked upon as absurd, while Nebraska is reported as safe as Pennsylvania. There is every reason to expect, from present indications, that Taft will carry Maryland, and his chances in Kentucky and Missouri are as good as those of Bryan in Uncle Sam's fleet behaved themselves like gentlemen.

ALWAYS BEHAVE WELL.

They have, since last December, met with the British colonial in the West Indies, the transported and transplanted sons of Spain and Portugal, the Kanakas, the Australian and the Jap, and from everywhere have come similar tales of joy and decorum mingled in such manner as to be absolutely unique in the annals of naval cruises. In the past the authorities of the department have always expected, from the officers in command of vessels and squadrons, reports of rows, broils and desertions by the score. It was expected in the present instance that there would be many minor conflicts in some of the ports visited. But instead the list of petty offenders during the last 10 months is less than the number of "drunks and disorderlies" reported during a period of 30 days in a model town of 5,000 inhabitants in any prohibition state in the country.

MEN URGED BY OFFICERS.

All through the long cruise the of ficers of the fleet have impressed upon their men the desirability of good con duct and Jack has responded with hon or to the flag and infinite credit to him self. Very naturally President Roose velt and his official family are more than delighted. They are enthusiastic in their praise of the men of the fleet. The result will be that Congress will be asked to provide for an especially bril liant welcome for the "boys" upon their return.

"If this great, unprecedented voyage shall result in convincing the world that the United States is a nation of peace," said an old officer of the navy today, "five million dollars will be none too much to expend in giving Sperry's fleet the welcome which it deserves. Five million in entertainment is better than 50 million in pensions."

INLAND WATERWAYS.

Two years ago the great Empire state set the pace for canal improvements when the people of New York voted to pledge their credit to the extent of $101,000,000 to supply a better waterway
