

IF BOUTS STOP IN 'FRISCO TOWN.

James Edward Britt Says He Will Go to the East and England.

M'CRATH TALKS ABOUT JEFF.

He Has Tried to Beat the Champion With Three Fighters, but All Of Them Failed.

Rumor hath it that the fighting game is to be stopped in San Francisco. If it is, it will be the result of the recent Jeffries-Munroe fiasco. According to reports from 'Frisco, the boxers there are greatly worried over the proposed movement to stop the game, and James Edward Britt is quoted as follows:

"Me for the East and England if they stop the good old game of biff and bang here," sighed a politician yesterday.
"Not being a politician, I can't say what they will do, though they claim that I stole a delegate at the last convention. I am anxious to see what the superior do with the October permit.
If they refuse to grant it, I'll take it for granted that all bets are off and that the sport is on the rocks. If they stop it in October they won't let it go in December. This is a cinch.

"They want me to come to England and fight White, and this will be my chance. While over there I can finish my musical education." At this remark Jimmy struck a theatrical pose and warbled a low note. "I can also get an accent and learn how to play golf and drink Scotch. I can learn a heap, but maybe I can teach them something about fighting."

Britt emphasized this sentence by soaking the writer in the ribs with his lame arm to let him know that it was all right again.

"On my way I can take on matches at Chicago and Philadelphia. Six-round bouts are 'pipes."

At this stage of the conversation Tim McCrath and his Panama floated along with him. "Hello, Timothy. How's the battle of the bulls?" said Jimmy when he put his blue eyes on the old trainer.

"Not very choice," answered Tim. "I got him," sighed Tim. "By the way, did you see where Jack is a bookmaker at New York? If the talent laid on hard on him as Jeffries did, he'd be rolling just as long as you can hold your breath."

"Right you are, Timothy," assented Britt, who was feeling perfectly frisky about the light work he had taken at the Olympic club and on the road.

"I have got a scheme," continued Mc-Crath, "and I think it is a good one. I'll put the blinkers on him until the gong rings. Then I'll have Jeff wear a blink-er to cover that mop of hair on his head.
When the gong rings off will go the blink-ers, and I'll send my man in. It will be done so quickly that he won't have a chance to get frightened. But, joking aside, isn't Jeff one grand fighter?"

"Should say he was," said Britt.
"I would like to see him," said McCrath.
"I would like to see him," said Britt.
"I would like to see him," said McCrath.

"You know, I have tried to lick Jeff three times," retorted Tim. "I tried to beat him with Sharkey and Mexican Pete.
Pete was the limit. Before I could get him in the ring at the Olympic club we fed him a pint of brandy to get his nerve up. But Sharkey was the brave lad.
When he was good he would fight a nativity, and he gave Jeffries the hardest fight of his career."

BOXING IN ENGLAND.

The Game is Said to be Practically at a Standstill.

Things pugilistic have been extremely dull in England this summer. There is little public interest in pugilism, owing to the methods of the club managers, who have disgusted patrons of the ring with fakes and crosses innumerable. The National Sporting club has fallen into the hands of a clique which does not enjoy the confidence of boxers or sportsmen, and is now conducted as a sideshow for certain bookmakers.

The only hope for the sport in London is the formation of a new boxing club in the West End, conducted upon straightforward business principles, with the men fighting to win.

Hert Dorman, an American sporting man long resident on the other side, is contemplating the opening of a club early this winter, and he has every prospect of success. Billy Tucker, bag puncher and pugilist, will be associated with him.

Dorman and Tucker are well known in England and have the liking of the sporting set while it makes its headquarters around Leicester Square, and Piccadilly Circus. Any sporting enterprise to succeed in London must have their indorsement, and anything that doesn't look right they will not touch.

The British sporting man wants a boxer to fight true to form, just as he demands that horses run consistently. A club which presents in and out fighters is doomed. It was this that killed the National, once the very bulwark of boxing.

six-hole qualifying round of the Olympian golf championship, two former world's fairs golfers, Ralph McKinick and Stuart Stickney of the Country club, living at 163 for the gold medal honors. Chicago players, headed by former Western Champion Walter E. Egan of Ex-moon, finished ten strong in the circle of thirty-two eligible for match play in the first round tomorrow.

F. C. McMon of Seattle, the Pacific coast star, who recently gained a place in the national tournament as far as the second round, totalled 162 for his day's task of thirty-six holes, meeting with just enough hard luck in the afternoon round committee for best qualifying score. A.

C. McIntosh of Pueblo, Colo., failed to qualify, his score being 207.

"PENNY" GOSSIP.

Big race meet at the saucer this evening.
Haseball at Walker's field tomorrow afternoon. The closing series of the season, Butte vs Salt Lake.

The Butte baseball team arrived here last evening, and the Salt Lake aggravation is expected here this evening. Wilmot's nine is far ahead of Salt Lake and have no fear of dropping down to second place.

A party of Salt Lake hunters who have been at the head of Snake river in Idaho for about two weeks, have returned to this city. They report small game plentiful, and trout abundant. They had a fine time and speak glowingly of the country over there. The party was composed of J. H. Walker, Charles Read, Joshua Barnett, M. B. Sowles and Capt.
J. N. Barnett.

On Oct. 3, there will be a checker match for a side bet of $50 between Hugh Mc-Keon and Henry Leisner. Both men have made remarkable records in the game of checkers, and each feels confident of beating the other. There is considerable interest in the match now that forfeits have been posted.

After paying all the expenses of the Ivy Lawson meet, given at the Salt Lake race track last Sunday, the amount left is just $172. There would have been $50 more had the carnival people. They insisted on taking a cut to that amount.
But the amount on hand will be given to a committee by Manager Heagren, and the committee will select a medal.

According to a letter just received from "Hobby" Walther, the perfect American pace follower has won his thirty-third victory and in a month or so will return to America for the New York extra-day race. Walther captured first honors in this event every time he has competed, winning on one occasion with Archie McEachren and another time with Bennie Monroe as his mate.

ABSCESSES.

W. H. Harrison, Cleveland, Miss., writes, Aug. 15, 1902: "I want to say a word of praise for Ballard's Snow Liniment. I stopped on a nail, which caused the cords in my leg to contract and an abscess to rise in my knee, and the doctor told me that I would have a stiff leg, so one day I went to J. F.
Lord's drug store who is now in Denver, Colo. He recommended a bottle of Snow Liniment. I got a 50c size, and it cured my leg. It is the best liniment in the world.

ABSCESSES, with few exceptions, are indicative of constipation or debility. They may, however, result from blows or from foreign bodies intruding into the skin or flesh, such as splinters, thorns, etc.

Amusements

"York State Folks" at the Grand theater last night proved a pleasant surprise to the large audience in attendance, and scored a hit that will no doubt fill the house for the remaining three performances. The interest of the play is not in the plot, of which there is little, but in the character drawing and the setting, both of which are worked up with a careful regard for details. The final impression is a beautiful picture of rural life in the home and in the village lanes where lovers linger after church. About it all there clings the atmosphere of clover blossoms and wild flowers that lends a lively heart interest to the action.
The story is a simple one, dealing with the coming of the railroad to the village, and the quarrels of the citizens on this account. Myron Cooper, an aged organizer and organ builder, has his life and fortune bound up closely with that of Simon Peter Martin, the president of the village, and his chief taxpayer, who is in addition the meanest of men in all matters. Myron Cooper is a good, honest, affectionate old organist, he won the sympathy of the audience at the start and held it even through the beautiful dream scene at the end of the play, where she sits alone on the stage for the whole of the scene.
James Lackaye, as the Simon Peter Martin, divided honors with Mr. Royce as the leading character. His make up was a careful study, and his part was well acted, except perhaps for a slight overdrawing here and there. The support of the company was even. Every role called for character acting, and there were no places where noticeable failures were made. The Lem Dunbar horse trader, of Harry Crosby was a conspicuous success among the minor characters.

"York State Folks" will be repeated tonight and tomorrow night, with a matinee Wednesday.

Ralph Stuart opens tonight at the Salt Lake Theater in "By Right of Sword," a stirring Russian drama.
