

MRS. CHADWICK A TOMBS PRISONER

All Day Long Her Attorneys
Searched for Bail for Her but Could Not Find It.

WAN, TIRED, ALMOST FAINTING

She Will Tell of Whereabouts of Mmc.
Devere and Everything Else
About the Case.

New York, Dec. 8.—Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick is tonight occupying one of the recently furnished cells in the Tombs. After a fruitless search all day for bail, her attorneys gave up the fight tonight and Philip Carpenter, her chief counsel, stood in the corridor of the federal building at 9 o'clock when United States Marshal Henkel threw open the double doors of his office and led the woman out on her way to prison.

Mrs. Chadwick was wan, tired and almost fainting. She made her way across the hall to the elevator, leaning heavily on the marshal's arm and that of her son, Emil. Behind them came her nurse, Freda Swenson, and Deputy Marshal Kennedy.

The party passed through a double row of curious people to a carriage which was in waiting on the Broadway side. They were driven directly to the Tombs. Arriving there Mrs. Chadwick was half-carried up the steps and into the building. Warden Flynn met the party, and after the usual preliminaries had been attended to the woman asked permission to have her nurse remain with her. This was denied, the warden saying that she should have no privileges not allowed other prisoners.

Mrs. Chadwick gave a hand-bag and a few trinkets to the nurse, and whispered some instructions to her son, who was then taken to the matron's room.

She asked to say good-night to her son, and the lad eagerly rushed to his mother and, wrapping his arms about her, gave a long embrace. Then she was led away to the inner office, where her pedigree was taken and she was assigned to a cell. The son and nurse entered a carriage and were driven to a hotel.

While lying on a couch in the United States marshal's office awaiting a bondsman, Mrs. Chadwick for the first time since her name has been before the public, consented to talk for publication and gave the representative of the Associated Press an interview in which she denied relationship to Mrs. York of San Francisco, who gave out an interview today, telling of the earlier life of Mrs. Chadwick.

In justice to her son, Mrs. Chadwick said she would not make a statement about "this Madame Devere business," at the present time, but promised that later "Madame Devere's whereabouts and everything else in connection with this case will be shown."

Mrs. Chadwick also told of the Wade park and Abernethy matters. Referring to the failure of the latter institution, she said:

"I would not like to live a million years if I did not think I would pay these people or peoples back."

When asked concerning Andrew Carnegie's connection with her financial affairs, she declined absolutely to talk, referring her interviewer to her counsel.

This has been a momentous day for Mrs. Chadwick. It commenced with her early departure from her hotel for the federal building, and ended with her incarceration in the Tombs. In the interval she had been arraigned before United States Commissioner Shields and held in $15,000 bail, which she was unable to furnish. All day long lawyers representing her interests had sought in every quarter for some one owning real estate in Manhattan who would sign her bond, and the marshal had, out of sympathy for the woman, kept her in his office hours after she had been removed. The endeavors of the lawyers were unsuccessful, rendering her imprisonment necessary.

To add to her cup of woe, it was learned tonight that a charge of forgery would very likely be made against the woman in Ohio, based on the Carnegie note and other papers given as security for loans.

Efforts to get bail will continue tomorrow, although Mrs. Chadwick pressed the desire tonight to go to Cleveland as soon as possible. She said she would voluntarily give out a statement tonight were it not for the contrary advice of counsel.

Mrs. Chadwick dined at 7 o'clock in Marshal Henkel's office under conditions in strange contrast to the manner in which she lived at New York hotels.

When Warden Flynn was seen after Mrs. Chadwick had arrived at the Tombs, he said:

"Mrs. Chadwick will be placed in a cell on the second tier of the prison. She will be entirely alone on the tier, which is set apart from the other women prisoners. She is a United States prisoner and will not be allowed associates in any way. She will be entirely alone. Tomorrow morning she will have her meal with the others, but during the day she will be compelled to remain alone."

"If she is ill, she will be attended by the physician, Dr. Levin, whose duty it is to look after United States prisoners."

When the warden was asked as to her pedigree, he replied:

"She gave her age at 51 years, said she was born in the United States, not specifying any state, and that she was married."

Asked whether she would be allowed to retain her medicine chest, he said:

"No prisoner is allowed to have medicine except that which is ordered."

YOUR HAT
May be a Stylish One, But It Makes Trouble.

A man usually buys a hat that's "in style," but the modern hat for men has lots to answer for. Baldheads are growing more numerous every day. Hats make excellent breeding places for the parasitic germs which sap the life from the roots of the hair. When your hair begins to fall out and your scalp is full of dandruff it is a sure sign that these countless germs are busy at work. There is but one way to overcome the trouble and kill the germs—that way is to apply Newbro's Herpetide to the scalp. It will kill the germs and healthy hair is sure to result. WORLD FAME

SUPERIORITY OF VINOL, THE NEW COD LIVER OIL
PREPARATION.

Recognized by the Greatest Authorities
Not Only in America but in Europe.

"Good news comes fast," said Mr. Druehl of Druehl & Frankenstein yesterday, talking to a reporter about that wonderful new cod liver oil preparation, Vinol, which contains all the valuable medicinal principles of that famous remedy, but is oil, and contains no fishy taste, and is not offensive. "Why, besides being talked about in prominent papers in America, its principles have been discussed in the 'Lancet' of London, England, the greatest medical publication in the world. This will show you what the greatest men of the world think of the Vinol idea. The editor of the Lancet says: 'Recent investigation has led to the isolation of several distinct bodies in cod liver oil, notably amongst which are the alkaloids. (We call them medicinal curative principles). These principles have been tested faithfully and the results form the subject of the exclusive report by Gattier and Morgues in the Journal de Pharmacie, who concluded that the combined active medicinal principles of cod liver oil act as powerful stimulants of nutrition and assimilation, and show definitely the nature of the principles to which the oil owes its valuable medicinal properties. 'This report proves that the real merit of cod liver oil was due to the alkaloids contained therein. Now it is these valuable alkaloids or active medicinal principles, as we call them, that are contained in Vinol, which make it the most scientific and valuable preparation of cod liver oil known to medicine. 'And the best part of all this is,' continued Mr. Druehl, 'that not only the world's physicians who are enthusiastic, but the people who take the remedy. It doesn't take but a minute to find out that Vinol is delicious to the taste, then the patient soon realizes its advantages. It does good so much more quickly, and accomplishes the desired end in a much more marked manner than cod liver oil in its crude form was ever able to do. 'Oh, yes, of course I consider Vinol a great success,' continued Mr. Druehl. 'How can it be otherwise. A discovery that has made it possible to prescribe the greatest known medicine for all wasting diseases in a concentrated and doubly potent form and as delicious tasting as a fresh orange surely must be successful.' by physicians, and Mrs. Chadwick will have no exception. She will be treated like other prisoners here."

Receiver Lyons of the Oberlin bank, which recently closed its doors, told a representative of the Associated Press tonight that he would leave for Cleveland tomorrow morning, where criminal proceedings will be taken against Mrs. Chadwick. He said he had been in communication with Prosecutor Sullivan of Cleveland today, and that development in the bank case against Mrs. Chadwick might be looked for. As to the exact nature of these, he declined to make a statement.

Asked if any communication had been held with Mr. Carnegie here in this city, he admitted that certain communications had been passed. Mr. Lyons declined to go further into the case, saying that any statements would come from Cleveland.

The Associated Press learned on the best of authority, however, that in the communications in New York today between Mr. Carnegie and receiver Lyons of the Oberlin bank Mr. Carnegie denied absolutely that he had signed the notes which have figured in the case as the Carnegie notes, and denied that he knows or ever saw Mrs. Chadwick.

The same authority said that the Ohio police would be in the nature of action on the charge of forgery.

"Will an additional warrant be issued in Ohio for Mr. Chadwick's arrest?" he was asked.

"Yes; probably a number of warrants."

"On what charges will these warrants be sworn out?"

Inquiry was made as to whether the charges of forgery would be based on the Carnegie notes, and the reply was made that they would be made on these and some other papers given as security for loans.

The papers, other than Carnegie notes, have not appeared in the case heretofore, and as to what they consist of and whose signature they bear he would not say.

MRS. CHADWICK INTERVIEWED.

New York, Dec. 8.—Mrs. Chadwick was interviewed by a representative of the Associated Press tonight as she lay on a cot in the office of United States Marshal Henkel, waiting for her counsel to obtain bondsmen for her. She and her nurse and son were in the office with a deputy marshal. The nurse and boy sat beside the weeping woman and were trying to comfort her.

Discussing the statement made by Mrs. York of San Francisco, Mrs. Chadwick said:

"I have not read all of it, but I will leave it to public opinion and to refined and educated persons what conclusion they might draw when one else makes a statement like that against another sister. Tonight in the presence of the marshal I said to my little boy:

"'Emil, have you read Aunt Alice's statement?' He said, 'Yes.' I was in hopes he had not, and said to him: 'What do you think about that, dear?' and he replied: 'It is nothing more than I expected from her.'"

"Mrs. Chadwick, is Mrs. York your sister?"

"No; she is neither my sister nor my half-sister, nor my sister-in-law. We were raised together. I would not do it at the present time. I don't think that any responsible person would pay any attention to a statement made by Mrs. York. If I had a sister or brother who was in trouble, no matter what their past might have been, if I could not do him or her any harm, I certainly would shield him or her from harm. It is unkind and unfair of any person to give such a statement for publication, and I question whether she gave it unless she was paid for it. There must have been some inducement."

"For the benefit of the newspapers and the public I would suggest that the newspapers send to two or three responsible people in Cleveland and who know Mrs. York and ask them what they think of her statement—that is, if her word would be taken—how much reliance they would put in her word."

"Everything will work its way out all right for me, and I don't want to say anything against Mrs. York at all. I shall make a statement here in the very near future, and also one in Cleveland. The newspapers possibly have written up a great sensation, but I wish you to say that Madame Devere's whereabouts and everything else in connection with this case will be shown in a very short time."

"In justice to my child, I don't think

It might be said that further statement at this time.

Mrs. Chadwick referred to a publication which stated that the lawyers who had come here from the west were her enemies and not her friends. "I think there is nobody I am more friendly with than those lawyers," she said. "Not one of them came here with any thought of prosecuting me. I don't think the public quite understands the situation. Mr. Newton brought this lawsuit against me on Monday. On Friday they had a run on the Wide Park bank. Of course, that frightened the people, because of the enormous amount of the lawsuit, $216,000. That was a very large amount in a little city of only about 30,000 inhabitants. That amount of money attracted attention. The depositors of the Wide Park bank became alarmed, fearing that the bank was going to be ruined, when in reality I only owned the bank $17,000. The depositors in that bank read the sensational story that I owed the Oberlin bank. They rushed into the bank Saturday night and instead of making deposits, commenced to draw their money out. It was a small country bank and only had on hand $11,000 or $12,000 in cash. The other money belonging to the bank was in the Cleveland banks, and it being Saturday night, they were closed. The depositors drew heavily that night. Some one came in with a check; I think it was for $2,500 or $3,500, and they did not have money enough to pay it. Therefore they had to close the bank. They could not open it again then, and notified the bank examiner. They said they could not demand the loan against me, because I was down here in New York. The story had gone out that the bank had failed, and it was too late then for anything to be done. Mr. Miller of Canton, the bank examiner, had to be sent for. He got to Oberlin on Sunday and they went into conference Sunday evening. Mr. Miller found the bank was in such condition that it had to be closed, because the depositors had become so excited about the reports that they all drew out and nothing would be left. If it had only happened differently the bank would not have had to fail, because the obligation would have been paid. I would not like to live a minute if I did not think I could pay these poor people back. I asked Emil, my son, if anything should happen to me if he would do anything to see that the obligations were paid."

"Mrs. Chadwick, those alleged Carnegie notes that have figured so largely as a sensational feature in this case, are they really yours?"

"Whatever is said about those notes must be said by my attorney. Mr. Carpenter. That is an entirely different matter," she replied.

"But you already have been quoted as denying that Mr. Carnegie had anything to do with your business affairs or that you had any notes of his."

"As I said before, you will have to talk to Mr. Carpenter about that," the woman answered.

Mrs. Chadwick seemed to be especially grieved that any one should construe her removal from the Holland House to the New Amsterdam hotel and from the New Amsterdam to the Hotel Breslin as a flight from the hotel service men.

Just Escaped Defeat.

Paris, Dec. 8.—In the chamber of deputies this afternoon, the government escaped defeat by the narrow margin of 2 votes, 376 to 374, on a motion inviting the government to refer to the superior council of judges the cases of those magistrates who have been guilty of making secret investigations.

Col. Mills Will be Confirmed.

Washington, Dec. 8.—The senate committee on military affairs today authorized a favorable report on the nomination of Col. Albert L. Mills to be brigadier general. The nomination failed of confirmation at the last session of Congress, but was again sent to the senate by President Roosevelt. All other nominations pending before the committee were ordered favorably reported with the exception of Edward S. Fowler, late major of the United States army.

Indian Queen Mine Sold.

Butte, Mont., Dec. 8.—The Indian Queen mine, located at Arvix, a small mining camp about 24 miles south of Butte on the Oregon Short line was today sold to the Amalgamated Copper Mining company for $200,000, that sum being paid down to S. Marchessault and William Parlin, the owners of the property this afternoon. The Indian Queen has been a great producer of copper ore, three leasers with the aid of a small furnace at the mine having extracted $100,000 worth of copper matte during the past year.

NICHOLAS ZOULOFF, THE BOY HERO OF RUSSIA

down with the ill-fated Petropavlovsk. On several occasions this brave lad has carried dispatches through the Japanese lines. Having been captured, he escaped on a Japanese horse, but was shot in the shoulder. At another time he entered the camp of the enemy and unscrewed the breech of a cannon, which he carried into the Russian quarters, along with much valuable information. Nicholas has won the cross of St. George twice and has been proposed for a third time.

RUDENESS AT THE TABLE.

To a nervous person vulgar manners at the table are the most irritating of all things. It takes away the pleasure of eating, the relief for food and in a measure unifies the digestive organs for their work. The fact is that it does us absolute harm to be affected in this way during the process of digestion, and persons habitually annoyed by such things are sure to suffer seriously from it. At no other place do the habits of vulgar people appear so vulgar as at the table. Women who set themselves up to be teachers of morality and who condemn coarse or rude talk in others are guilty oftentimes of manners at the table that would really shock them if they knew how they affected others. The matter is one that demands consideration from young and old, and if there are persons who know of themselves that they have rude habits at the table, whether it is of one kind or another, there should be no time lost in correcting them.
