BREVITIES.

The tales of a traveler—The Chinese tails.

Chinese coolies drown themselves at Canton at the rate of twenty a day.

The best type of manhood—Proper stamp of metal.

Lowell has 438,418 spindles, and 25,-000 operatives.

The best dance for surgeons—The fling.

Sanguinary revolution—The circulation of the blood.

Secret has been admirably defined as "Nothing made known to everybody in particular."

Said an Irish justice to an obstreperous prisoner on trial: "We want no-thing from you but silence, and very little of that."

A horrible reprobate was lately arrested for flogging a woman, and excused the act by saying that he was near-sighted, and thought it was his wife.

If a man does not make new acquaintances as he advances through life, he will soon find himself alone. A man should always keep his friendship in constant repair.

The amount of grain stored in Chicago is as follows: Wheat, 500,000 bushels; corn, 966,000 bushels; oats, 833,000 bushels; rye, 20,000 bushels, and of barley 3,000 bushels.

It is hard to personate and act a part long, for where truth is not at the bottom, nature will always be endeavoring to return, and will peep out and betray itself one time or another.

"Father wants you to send two yards of black tweed cloth; he don' care what color it is, and when he kills his pigs next week, he'll pay you what you owe me."

Japanese scissors are in the shape of a pair of sugar tongs—of steel—and sever cloths freely as the blades approximate by pressure. Their looking glasses are highly burnished steel. They use a very elastic transparent silk paper in window frames instead of glass, and a less firm opaque substance of the same, pasted on frames as partitions inside their dwellings.

To make marking ink take one ounce of nitrate of silver (lunar caustic), dissolve it in a glass mortar, in double its weight of pure water; this forms the ink. Then dissolve one ounce of salts of tartar in one ounce of water, in another vessel; this is the fluid with which the linen must be previously wetted, then allowed to dry, and afterwards to be written on.

A pomade composed of the following ingredients will prevent the hair from falling out, and promote its growth and render it soft and glossy: Two ounces of white wax, half an ounce of palm oil, half an ounce of the best olive oil, dissolved thoroughly over a slow fire, then stir it until nearly cold, and add one ounce of castor oil and a small quantity of perfume.

The following incident, besides the merit of truthfulness, possesses a peculiar significance at the present time: Little Tommy went with his mother to visit an uncle in Madison, a minister. At the minister's house, twice a day, all bowed in family devotion, while in every meal grace was asked. Tommy noted all this, and prayed as devoutly as the rest. One day his mother found him alone upon his knees. "Why, Tommy" said, she, "what are you doing?" "O mamma," said the little boy "we must all pray all we tan while we are in Madison, "taus you know dere', is no Daud (God) in Albany."—Golden Era.

A little three-year-old was in the habit of helping himself to crackers in the pantry—lifting the tin lid and plunging his head into the stone jar for them. One day, after listening to stories about rats, he went after a cracker, and hearing some noise that he imagined was made by rats, he rushed back to the parlor, and with flushed face said: "Muzzer, I ain't afraid of wats, but I'se so mad I couldn't lift the lid".

Many otherwise good apple orchards are allowed to become defaced, as well as seriously injured, by allowing a profusion of suckers to grow at the base of the trunks. Attempts are sometimes made to get rid of them by cutting them down to the surface of the ground, and leaving considerable portions below the form of short stumps. These shoot again, and they soon become as bad as ever. A better way is to wait until they are in leaf, at which time they are loosened more readily, and taking each separtely in the hands, and striking a thick boot upon it near the base, they are quickly separated. If done at this time of the year, they will not be likely to sprout again.

There are few habits more injurious to health than the common one of filling the stomach with food while the body is fatigued. Men will come from the fields, from their shops and counters, with their muscles or brains, or both, almost exhausted, sit down, and hurriedly eat a hearty meal, and then back to their labor again. If the brain, or any part of the organ of the body becomes unduly fatigued, the whole system requires rest for awhile, so that the nervous influence and the circulation of the blood may be once equalized throughout the body before another demand is made upon the vital energies. If the stomach is filled with food while the vital forces are powerfully directed to the brain or the muscles, digestion cannot take place until an equilibrium has been established, and the blood and nervous power determined to the stomach, consequently the food remains undigested, ferments and becomes sour, and irritates the stomach, causing derangement and disease of the digestive organs, and, through them, of the whole system. If you have any care for your health and comfort, never sit down to eat while either body or brain is fatigued from over-exertion.
