IN COLD, DRY SPELL special Correspondence.

MONTPELIER, Dec. 23.-Although the forecasts promise snow from day to day, the country surrounding this city for many miles in all directions is still without a snowfall of any appreciable size. Cold, dry weather prevails, and farmers are beginning to feel some alarm for the outlook for the next season. Reports from stockmen and cattlemen are to the effect that their herds and flocks are doing better than for many years at this season. The grazing is very dry, though, and the cold weather driven all the herders to protected ranges. Through the prompt action of health officials in this county, the smallpox scare is now over. One case devel-oped and the report was current that many school children had been ex-posed. So far, however, the disease has not spread among them, and all indications are that the danger has disappeared.

Prest. Joseph R. Sheppard and Elder Charles R. Hart of the first presidency of seventy were speakers at a meeting of Latter-day Saints in Montpelier ward Monday evening. A large gath-ering was present to hear the speakers and an enjoyable time was spent by those present. Visiting among the members of the Church has been in progress for some time, members of the high council co-operating with the ward authorities and the teachers. seer for this district, Arthur Baker was chosen to fill that position for the coming year. Will Hardwick and Ernest Olson, who have been prostrated with attacks of typhold fever, are improving. Ruby Boyce who has been at the hospital in Logan for over a month, is expected home soon. She was taken there to be treated for blood poisoning and at one time her condition was very critical steam derrick with a crew of men un-der the personal direction of Division Supt. Armstrong, went to the scene of the detailment on a special train and the work of clearing the track will be accomplished shortly.

WARRANTS FOR ROBBERS.

Warrants were issued by Justice of the Peace J. M. Masonheimer for the arrest of seven men who held up and robbed a Short Line train a short dis-tance east of McCammon one day last week. The robbers did not interfere with the United States mail, neither did they disturb any passengers. They held up a coal train and stole treasure in the shape of black diamonds. They "monkeyed" with the railroad signals and compelled the engineer of the train to stop about three miles from the eastern border of the Junction town. In the darkness they climbed aboard the coal cars, threw off enough fuel the coal cars, threw on enough the to last them through the winter and later hauled it away when the train had gone on. Special Agent William Edgley of this city was put to work on the case and yesterday secured written confessions from the seven more the and Sheriff Dura Outley left men. He and Sheriff Dave Quigley left on No. 2 this afternoon to arrest the men and bring them to the county jail in this city. It is not impossible that the attention of the federal authorities will be called to their case, as they with be called to their case, as they confessed to having been guilty of interfering with interstate traffic. The names of the men have not yet been learned, as the warrants were made out in the name of John Doe, Richard Rce, etc.

The origin of yesterday's fire is a deep mystery and there is reason to believe that it was incendiary. The loss is estimated at $3,000. Trainmaster C. L. Eldred, Master Mechanic A. H. Garns, and Special Agent W. T. Knowles left this morning for the scene of the fire to make a thorough investigation. Ow-ing to the fact that at the hour named there was no one about the depot, and owing to the further fact that it was too cold for tramps to be about the place, there is basis for a belief that some one deliberately set fire to the
