Sophie A. Larson has also become tired of married life, and today petitioned the Third district court for an order dissolving the ties existing be-tween her and J. Raymond Larson, an electrician by trade. The complaint alleges that the couple were married in Sait Lake City on November 17, 1898. For more than one year, it is further alleged, the defendant has neglected to provide his wife with the common necessaries of life, and has compelled her and their one-year-old boy to live upon the charity of relatives. When at work the defendant is said to earn a salary of $100 a month.

Plaintiff asks that the bonds of matrimony be dissolved, and that the cus-tody of the child be awarded her; that the defendant be enjoined from disposing of his property, until the final determination of the suit; that the de-fendant be required to pay a reasonable sum into court to defray the expenses of the action, and for counsel fees, and that he be required to pay $50 a month allmony. OUR REAL POSITION.

It is perhaps regrettable that England should have been completely misled as to the real opinion of the United States on the Boer war. The natural ignor-ance that prevails throughout England America and all things American, if not quite as great as it was before the Venezuelan squabble, is still formidible enough, and in this case the correspondents of the English press have rather added to it than other-wise. That England expected the United States to repay the good turn done her in 1898 and throw all her moral weight against the Boers is certain; but it is hardly less certain that the United States has done no such thing. The British, however, are still under the delusion that the vast majority of Americans approved of the war from the start, and have been with them in sympathy ever since. As a matter of fact it would probably be nearer the mark to say that there were scarcely any Americans who did not believe that the war could and should have been avoided, and that those who ranged themselves on the British side when the war had actually opened did so in a lukewarm and somewhat reluctant fashion, less on the specific merits of the British case than in the general interests of civilization.

WEALTH IN BELCIAN HARES

Two Sides to the Question of Raising Them for Money Making.

Circular Sent Out in Regard to the Alleged Value of Harcskins for Furs.

Now that the Belgian have fad is taking hold, and much has been published in favor of the animals as wealth producers, it is but just to the people to give something that is presented on the other side. In Salt Lake the market now has a "boom," and quite a number of people have become interested in the way of prospective wealth getting, where their investments may ot turn out as expected. The Beigian hare is a beautiful ani-mal, with good flesh, and is raised with fair amount of care. The real value f does is all the way from $3 to $50 in e ordinary market, according to the rfection of the animal as to "point e value of bucks range from $5 to $75 on the same rules. Recently these lustration of an importation is given n one case where a fine doe was pur-$17, sent away and billed as $300 animal, and some of her offspring resold here, to persons unfamiliar this the facts, at $50 each. In the case $\frac{1}{2}\] bucks, a $5 animal has been carted around till it comes back here as a $100 beauty. This illustrates some of the beauty. This illustrates some of the proceedings of the fad. Of course there are in the legitimate business bucks whose value is $250 among faheiers, and does that reach three-fifths of that sum, but there are many animals billed at high prices in the 'boom" now that really can be duplicated right here at a small proportion of the sum asked by some "hare merchants." So it is orth while for hare struck people to look around a little. Anent this subject, here is part of a circular sent out by a well known Min-neapolis house, the Northwestern Hide and Fur company, which deals with the value of hareskins as follows:

"Dear Sir-We have received an immense number of inquiries to know what we are paying for Belgian hare skins. Thousands of farmers through out the country are being humbugged by being induced to go into the Belgian care business, and the press has been imposed upon by the shrewd manipula-tors of this scheme. They say that immense fortunes are easily made by raising the hares for market. They inform the press that the skins are worth from 50c to $2 each, and that the meat finds ready sale in all the leading markets of our country at 20c per pound. There is no demand whatever for the skins; and there is no regular market in any of the cities in the country. In a small way they may be sold, but there is a large number now raised, which is proven by the numer-ous inquiries we have as to what we vill give for their skins, and asking us where they can find sale for the meat, with or without being dressed. There

York, Philadelphia, Boston or San Francisco. There was one humbug firm, Woodmaor & Co., of San Franisco, that advertised last winter to buy heir skins. This was a part of their fake scheme, for we wrote to them twice, asking them what they paid for skins and we got no reply. We very to the publishers who had their ertisements in their journals. They wrote us that they had never received any pay for their advertisement and they now believed as we did, that they were a fraud and took out their advertisement. The skins have no more value in this country than the common hare of like size. The fur is only used in this country for 'hatters' stock,' and he Belgian hare skins from foreign ountries can be had dressed and dried r less than one-fourth what these there is no fake in; that's the wonder-

Source of Trouble. A Minneapolis dispatch to the Chicago Record says: The Belgian hare craze which seems to have taken so firm a hold in this part of the country, promises to result in a row that will involve the whole Northwest. In fact, the status of the hare is likely to become matter of Congressional deliberation, for the farmers are organizing and sending petitions to the congressmen representing Iowa and Minnesota. The petition cites that Belgian hares are really only rabbits, and that aside from their qualities of superior breeding they are identical in habits and fecundity of doubtful value as a food product, and an undoubted menace to the agricultural interests of any country in which they are introduced. During the last few months hundreds of these haves have been imported into Minnesota from the Pacific coast, and several Belgian hare farms have been established. The proprietors of these farms assert that the hares are as legitimate an item of industry as are sheep for any other farm stock, and they are organizing to fight the opponnents of the hare. They point out that there are hundreds of thousands of these hares in California, but that no reports of damage to crops are ever ustry is on the increase in Minnesota, nd the apprehensiveness of the agricultural population increases corres-

OXFORD, IDAHO. Death of Eugene Harris-Close of a Promising Career.

Oxford, Ida., June 9 .- A funeral ocsurred here yeserday which was attended by circumstances that aroused the interest and sympathy of the people of this village in an unusual degree. It was that or Eugene Harris, a respected citizen of this place, whose death was preceded by terrible suffering, recurring he cause of which was long shrouded n mystery. On May 28th deceased was prostrated with another attack. He grew worse until the 6th inst., when Dr. Cutler of Preston was called in. He quickly alagnosed the case as appendicitis, and declared that the abould be saved by an operation, which lowever, was hardly possible. Dr. Cut er advised that Dr. Adamson of Rich nond be called in consultation, which was done. The last named physician arrived at about II p. m., after a hard drive of over thirty miles, and promptly confirmed Dr. Cutler's diagnosis. They stated that death was almost inevitable, with or without an operation, but that the latter offered the only chance of life, an exceedingly faint one. But all concerned decided to take the one chance offered by an operation.

wife was a most heroic and pathetic one, each forzetful of self sought to buoy up the other. Eugene Harris was the son of Chas.

During my shopping tour I had occasion to stop at the dress-goods counter of the Colos-sus. Every salesman was busy. I had plenty of time, and so indulged my 'observing' instinct. A well-dressed lady was engaged in the pleasant task of selecting an evening dress of a delicate shade of blue. The salesman was of a pronounced Hebrew type, and anxous to make the sale. He had a wonderful flow of language, and a shrewd faculty of holding the goods somewhat on the bias, to make it appear wider than it really was. The lady finally expressed a fear that the color might fade, it being of such a delicate hue The salesman spoke up confidently, 'Va madam! Dat goods fade!
