

TELEGRAPHIC. BLAND IS PREPARED.

He Will introduce in the House a Bill for Free Coinage.

THE VIEWS OF THE SILVER MEN.

Representative Henderson's Plan for the Adjustment of the Monetary Difficulties.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 4.—As soon after Congress meets on it becomes probable that Bland, the leader of the silver forces in the House, will introduce a bill embodying the views of the silver men. It will provide for the redemption of the National purchasing and sell substitute therefor the free coinage of silver at the present rate of 16 to 1.

"Bland" said Mr. Bland, "will be the grand open which will make the silver issue, although there has been no definite plan agreed upon."

He suggested that men could not afford to leave the matter until it was decided that it should be settled in the party line. Upon the use of both gold and silver as money, he said that the Democratic party must differ.

A compromise measure, increasing the rate was rejected, he said he saw no reason why the present dollar should not be kept in circulation, as it was now. He proposed, however, with all his power, to resist any increase in the rate.

The associate Henderson of North Carolina has a plan for the adjustment of the silver question that he has set out to be satisfactory to the silver men which will see the Democratic platform denominated carried into effect without creating division in the party. He thinks by passing a bill requiring the absolute purchase of a certain production of each metal per month, and the silver sold at market price, Congress might, from time to time, change these proportions as the needs of the country should require and thus adjust the circulation to the demand.

Buckley and Harzer. WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Deputy of Missouri, a leading member of the committee on appropriations, tonight planned himself squarely upon the Democratic platform, and said he proposed to be guided by that doctrine. He was, he said, an advocate of a double standard and paper money, irrespective of the gold or silver.

Dayton of Texas, also a member of the appropriation committee, said a thoughtful regard of the silver issue led him to believe that all that Congress would give. He favors free coinage at a rate to be agreed on by the party.

Small Currency Proposed. WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—The treasury official state that the treasury is prepared to supply the demand for the money which the lack of such currency in certain sections of the country necessitated for on the theory that much of it is being hoarded by those who receive it.

A Republican Caucus Called. WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Representative Thomas H. Henderson, chairman of the Republican caucus committee, has issued a call for a caucus to meet Saturday evening.

South Notes. INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 4.—Mamie T. Nolan, one of the oldest and most famous women in Indiana, died at her residence in this city today. Mrs. Nolan was known as a possesser of Indiana and has written poems that are known the world over.

A Popular Address. CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—The executive committee of the Populist party tonight issued an address to the people of the United States. It is the most sweeping and bold in its character since the party broke up in 1888.

Referring to Cash Checks. NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—The depositors in New York are being every possible trouble in connection with the cash checks. The banks are refusing to cash the checks unless they are paid in full.

What Means a Boy. BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 4.—Via Special Messenger sent to an Associated Press correspondent tonight: "From the pictures I have received, it is my opinion that the Sherman act will be repealed, but as to any subsidy which is being prepared to take, I hardly think anything will be done with the latter at this session, as Congress would not have time. It is exceedingly hard to tell whether the motion will be strong or weak, and it is a very likely to reveal anything concerning it. I hardly believe Congress will have time to adjust matters so that it will adjourn in its usual time as last days, as has been suggested."

Report on Suffered Children Cases. WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Senator General Winman of the marine hospital service has received a report from Dr. Jenks upon the supposed children in the western States. When the steamer left Naples all on board were well. The second day out from Honolulu the complaint in the lungs and stomachs. Just before reaching port at Hialeah, aged 40, was taken suddenly ill with pain in the right side of his chest. Later the disease became worse, with vomiting and retching in his legs and arms, and he died on Aug. 3. On the 10th an Italian woman named Maria became ill and died rapidly, dying on the 15th. All were buried at sea. The passengers are detained five days.

PAYROLL CHECKS. How the Bureau Meets the Emergency. FALL RIVER, Mass., Aug. 4.—This morning the Marine Corps paid out the following in a sample: "Pay to bearer in clearing house funds $5, and change that amount to the amount of the Treasury note."

These checks are intended to meet the situation resulting from the shortage of currency, and will probably be considered by the treasury and approved without question.

Navy's Views. WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 4.—A letter is published from Commodore Bayard at London, stating: "I am inclined somewhat anxiously to the thought of Congress and hope there will be an effort to pass legislation to maintain the gold standard of value, but I am not prepared to support the intrinsic value of silver in this, I believe the result of storage and accumulation of stock will help it and every other commodity."

A BRITISH FAIR. The "Maline Elm" Tree from Tasmania Harvested. DENVER, Colo., Aug. 4.—As a result of a mental pilgrimage at the residence of the Rev. C. H. Taylor, the tree was planted in the city of Denver. The tree is the only one of its kind in this country.

THE GREAT ACE. It May Come Up at the Supreme Court Next Term. WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—The department of justice has created an appeal from the decision of Judge Davis in southern California, that the department of the treasury act is unconstitutional. Assistant Attorney General Maxwell has directed United States Attorney DeLoach at Los Angeles to represent the government when the case on appeal comes up for argument. The appeal will come on before the supreme court at fall term, when Justice Harlan comes back and Justice Brandeis's place is supplied by a new appointee.

A PROCLAMATION OF PEACE. The War Declared Ended and Every-body Must Return Home. Celebrating the Victory by Marching through the Streets Playing Ball with the Winning Ends.

APIA, Samoa, July 19.—The month based the following proclamation: To all Samoans: We, consuls of the treaty powers, hereby give notice to all Samoans that Matsua and his cohorts have surrendered. The war is quite finished, and further disturbance will be suppressed by the treaty powers. All Samoans must return to their own districts, and no disturbance to this notice will be summarily dealt with.

Matsua's army consisted of about one thousand fighting men, armed with rifles, axes and long knives. This army, with material stores, consisting of whistles, muskets, horses and drums, started on the morning of July 19th toward the seat of war, Matsua's camp, which was far more powerful than Matsua's, having plenty of arms and ammunition and money more abundant than Matsua's. Matsua's army was defeated in the battle of Matsua's camp, Matsua's army being slain or captured, and Matsua himself being slain. Matsua's army was defeated in the battle of Matsua's camp, Matsua's army being slain or captured, and Matsua himself being slain.

In the meantime darkness setting in, he lowered his camp, and down his flagpole and set fire to Matsua. This was formerly the king's residence and was built in a style of the Samoan style. The houses were well built, but rather than have the town fall into the king's hands, Matsua preferred to see it go up in smoke.

Matsua's strategy with the boats being necessary in keeping the enemy off, and the boats were used for the purpose of drawing Matsua's attention. In the meantime darkness setting in, he lowered his camp, and down his flagpole and set fire to Matsua. This was formerly the king's residence and was built in a style of the Samoan style. The houses were well built, but rather than have the town fall into the king's hands, Matsua preferred to see it go up in smoke.

Matsua's strategy with the boats being necessary in keeping the enemy off, and the boats were used for the purpose of drawing Matsua's attention. In the meantime darkness setting in, he lowered his camp, and down his flagpole and set fire to Matsua. This was formerly the king's residence and was built in a style of the Samoan style. The houses were well built, but rather than have the town fall into the king's hands, Matsua preferred to see it go up in smoke.

Matsua's strategy with the boats being necessary in keeping the enemy off, and the boats were used for the purpose of drawing Matsua's attention. In the meantime darkness setting in, he lowered his camp, and down his flagpole and set fire to Matsua. This was formerly the king's residence and was built in a style of the Samoan style. The houses were well built, but rather than have the town fall into the king's hands, Matsua preferred to see it go up in smoke.

Matsua's strategy with the boats being necessary in keeping the enemy off, and the boats were used for the purpose of drawing Matsua's attention. In the meantime darkness setting in, he lowered his camp, and down his flagpole and set fire to Matsua. This was formerly the king's residence and was built in a style of the Samoan style. The houses were well built, but rather than have the town fall into the king's hands, Matsua preferred to see it go up in smoke.

Matsua's strategy with the boats being necessary in keeping the enemy off, and the boats were used for the purpose of drawing Matsua's attention. In the meantime darkness setting in, he lowered his camp, and down his flagpole and set fire to Matsua. This was formerly the king's residence and was built in a style of the Samoan style. The houses were well built, but rather than have the town fall into the king's hands, Matsua preferred to see it go up in smoke.

Matsua's strategy with the boats being necessary in keeping the enemy off, and the boats were used for the purpose of drawing Matsua's attention. In the meantime darkness setting in, he lowered his camp, and down his flagpole and set fire to Matsua. This was formerly the king's residence and was built in a style of the Samoan style. The houses were well built, but rather than have the town fall into the king's hands, Matsua preferred to see it go up in smoke.

Matsua's strategy with the boats being necessary in keeping the enemy off, and the boats were used for the purpose of drawing Matsua's attention. In the meantime darkness setting in, he lowered his camp, and down his flagpole and set fire to Matsua. This was formerly the king's residence and was built in a style of the Samoan style. The houses were well built, but rather than have the town fall into the king's hands, Matsua preferred to see it go up in smoke.

Matsua's strategy with the boats being necessary in keeping the enemy off, and the boats were used for the purpose of drawing Matsua's attention. In the meantime darkness setting in, he lowered his camp, and down his flagpole and set fire to Matsua. This was formerly the king's residence and was built in a style of the Samoan style. The houses were well built, but rather than have the town fall into the king's hands, Matsua preferred to see it go up in smoke.

Matsua's strategy with the boats being necessary in keeping the enemy off, and the boats were used for the purpose of drawing Matsua's attention. In the meantime darkness setting in, he lowered his camp, and down his flagpole and set fire to Matsua. This was formerly the king's residence and was built in a style of the Samoan style. The houses were well built, but rather than have the town fall into the king's hands, Matsua preferred to see it go up in smoke.

Matsua's strategy with the boats being necessary in keeping the enemy off, and the boats were used for the purpose of drawing Matsua's attention. In the meantime darkness setting in, he lowered his camp, and down his flagpole and set fire to Matsua. This was formerly the king's residence and was built in a style of the Samoan style. The houses were well built, but rather than have the town fall into the king's hands, Matsua preferred to see it go up in smoke.

Matsua's strategy with the boats being necessary in keeping the enemy off, and the boats were used for the purpose of drawing Matsua's attention. In the meantime darkness setting in, he lowered his camp, and down his flagpole and set fire to Matsua. This was formerly the king's residence and was built in a style of the Samoan style. The houses were well built, but rather than have the town fall into the king's hands, Matsua preferred to see it go up in smoke.

Matsua's strategy with the boats being necessary in keeping the enemy off, and the boats were used for the purpose of drawing Matsua's attention. In the meantime darkness setting in, he lowered his camp, and down his flagpole and set fire to Matsua. This was formerly the king's residence and was built in a style of the Samoan style. The houses were well built, but rather than have the town fall into the king's hands, Matsua preferred to see it go up in smoke.

Matsua's strategy with the boats being necessary in keeping the enemy off, and the boats were used for the purpose of drawing Matsua's attention. In the meantime darkness setting in, he lowered his camp, and down his flagpole and set fire to Matsua. This was formerly the king's residence and was built in a style of the Samoan style. The houses were well built, but rather than have the town fall into the king's hands, Matsua preferred to see it go up in smoke.

Matsua's strategy with the boats being necessary in keeping the enemy off, and the boats were used for the purpose of drawing Matsua's attention. In the meantime darkness setting in, he lowered his camp, and down his flagpole and set fire to Matsua. This was formerly the king's residence and was built in a style of the Samoan style. The houses were well built, but rather than have the town fall into the king's hands, Matsua preferred to see it go up in smoke.

Matsua's strategy with the boats being necessary in keeping the enemy off, and the boats were used for the purpose of drawing Matsua's attention. In the meantime darkness setting in, he lowered his camp, and down his flagpole and set fire to Matsua. This was formerly the king's residence and was built in a style of the Samoan style. The houses were well built, but rather than have the town fall into the king's hands, Matsua preferred to see it go up in smoke.

Matsua's strategy with the boats being necessary in keeping the enemy off, and the boats were used for the purpose of drawing Matsua's attention. In the meantime darkness setting in, he lowered his camp, and down his flagpole and set fire to Matsua. This was formerly the king's residence and was built in a style of the Samoan style. The houses were well built, but rather than have the town fall into the king's hands, Matsua preferred to see it go up in smoke.

Matsua's strategy with the boats being necessary in keeping the enemy off, and the boats were used for the purpose of drawing Matsua's attention. In the meantime darkness setting in, he lowered his camp, and down his flagpole and set fire to Matsua. This was formerly the king's residence and was built in a style of the Samoan style. The houses were well built, but rather than have the town fall into the king's hands, Matsua preferred to see it go up in smoke.

Matsua's strategy with the boats being necessary in keeping the enemy off, and the boats were used for the purpose of drawing Matsua's attention. In the meantime darkness setting in, he lowered his camp, and down his flagpole and set fire to Matsua. This was formerly the king's residence and was built in a style of the Samoan style. The houses were well built, but rather than have the town fall into the king's hands, Matsua preferred to see it go up in smoke.

Matsua's strategy with the boats being necessary in keeping the enemy off, and the boats were used for the purpose of drawing Matsua's attention. In the meantime darkness setting in, he lowered his camp, and down his flagpole and set fire to Matsua. This was formerly the king's residence and was built in a style of the Samoan style. The houses were well built, but rather than have the town fall into the king's hands, Matsua preferred to see it go up in smoke.

Matsua's strategy with the boats being necessary in keeping the enemy off, and the boats were used for the purpose of drawing Matsua's attention. In the meantime darkness setting in, he lowered his camp, and down his flagpole and set fire to Matsua. This was formerly the king's residence and was built in a style of the Samoan style. The houses were well built, but rather than have the town fall into the king's hands, Matsua preferred to see it go up in smoke.

Matsua's strategy with the boats being necessary in keeping the enemy off, and the boats were used for the purpose of drawing Matsua's attention. In the meantime darkness setting in, he lowered his camp, and down his flagpole and set fire to Matsua. This was formerly the king's residence and was built in a style of the Samoan style. The houses were well built, but rather than have the town fall into the king's hands, Matsua preferred to see it go up in smoke.

Matsua's strategy with the boats being necessary in keeping the enemy off, and the boats were used for the purpose of drawing Matsua's attention. In the meantime darkness setting in, he lowered his camp, and down his flagpole and set fire to Matsua. This was formerly the king's residence and was built in a style of the Samoan style. The houses were well built, but rather than have the town fall into the king's hands, Matsua preferred to see it go up in smoke.

Matsua's strategy with the boats being necessary in keeping the enemy off, and the boats were used for the purpose of drawing Matsua's attention. In the meantime darkness setting in, he lowered his camp, and down his flagpole and set fire to Matsua. This was formerly the king's residence and was built in a style of the Samoan style. The houses were well built, but rather than have the town fall into the king's hands, Matsua preferred to see it go up in smoke.

Matsua's strategy with the boats being necessary in keeping the enemy off, and the boats were used for the purpose of drawing Matsua's attention. In the meantime darkness setting in, he lowered his camp, and down his flagpole and set fire to Matsua. This was formerly the king's residence and was built in a style of the Samoan style. The houses were well built, but rather than have the town fall into the king's hands, Matsua preferred to see it go up in smoke.

Matsua's strategy with the boats being necessary in keeping the enemy off, and the boats were used for the purpose of drawing Matsua's attention. In the meantime darkness setting in, he lowered his camp, and down his flagpole and set fire to Matsua. This was formerly the king's residence and was built in a style of the Samoan style. The houses were well built, but rather than have the town fall into the king's hands, Matsua preferred to see it go up in smoke.

Matsua's strategy with the boats being necessary in keeping the enemy off, and the boats were used for the purpose of drawing Matsua's attention. In the meantime darkness setting in, he lowered his camp, and down his flagpole and set fire to Matsua. This was formerly the king's residence and was built in a style of the Samoan style. The houses were well built, but rather than have the town fall into the king's hands, Matsua preferred to see it go up in smoke.

Matsua's strategy with the boats being necessary in keeping the enemy off, and the boats were used for the purpose of drawing Matsua's attention. In the meantime darkness setting in, he lowered his camp, and down his flagpole and set fire to Matsua. This was formerly the king's residence and was built in a style of the Samoan style. The houses were well built, but rather than have the town fall into the king's hands, Matsua preferred to see it go up in smoke.

Matsua's strategy with the boats being necessary in keeping the enemy off, and the boats were used for the purpose of drawing Matsua's attention. In the meantime darkness setting in, he lowered his camp, and down his flagpole and set fire to Matsua. This was formerly the king's residence and was built in a style of the Samoan style. The houses were well built, but rather than have the town fall into the king's hands, Matsua preferred to see it go up in smoke.

Matsua's strategy with the boats being necessary in keeping the enemy off, and the boats were used for the purpose of drawing Matsua's attention. In the meantime darkness setting in, he lowered his camp, and down his flagpole and set fire to Matsua. This was formerly the king's residence and was built in a style of the Samoan style. The houses were well built, but rather than have the town fall into the king's hands, Matsua preferred to see it go up in smoke.

Matsua's strategy with the boats being necessary in keeping the enemy off, and the boats were used for the purpose of drawing Matsua's attention. In the meantime darkness setting in, he lowered his camp, and down his flagpole and set fire to Matsua. This was formerly the king's residence and was built in a style of the Samoan style. The houses were well built, but rather than have the town fall into the king's hands, Matsua preferred to see it go up in smoke.

Matsua's strategy with the boats being necessary in keeping the enemy off, and the boats were used for the purpose of drawing Matsua's attention. In the meantime darkness setting in, he lowered his camp, and down his flagpole and set fire to Matsua. This was formerly the king's residence and was built in a style of the Samoan style. The houses were well built, but rather than have the town fall into the king's hands, Matsua preferred to see it go up in smoke.

Matsua's strategy with the boats being necessary in keeping the enemy off, and the boats were used for the purpose of drawing Matsua's attention. In the meantime darkness setting in, he lowered his camp, and down his flagpole and set fire to Matsua. This was formerly the king's residence and was built in a style of the Samoan style. The houses were well built, but rather than have the town fall into the king's hands, Matsua preferred to see it go up in smoke.

was four killed and twelve wounded. Lewisa was badly wounded and killed and was buried in a shallow grave on the government side. It is said he was carried through town wrapped in a sheet.

There were two German warships to the harbor, but the American and British ships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits. The warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits.

Matsua was not rescued bodily by the fishermen on board, and he was sent to Matsua, where he was treated. Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits.

The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits. The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits.

The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits. The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits.

The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits. The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits.

The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits. The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits.

The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits. The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits.

The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits. The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits.

The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits. The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits.

The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits. The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits.

The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits. The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits.

The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits. The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits.

The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits. The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits.

The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits. The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits.

The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits. The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits.

The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits. The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits.

The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits. The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits.

The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits. The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits.

The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits. The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits.

The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits. The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits.

The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits. The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits.

The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits. The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits.

The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits. The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits.

The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits. The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits.

The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits. The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits.

The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits. The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits.

The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits. The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits.

The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits. The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits.

The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits. The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits.

The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits. The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits.

The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits. The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits.

The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits. The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits.

The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits. The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits.

The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits. The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits.

The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits. The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits.

The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits. The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits.

The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits. The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits.

The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits. The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits.

The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits. The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits.

The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits. The Matsua's warships were so positioned that Matsua's warships could not get through the line, clearing every day on the way, while the Japanese had taken to the tops of the houses with the warships held the straits.