"KEEP HIM COVERED."

As Constable Nielson reached Haworth, he said: "Boys, keep him dead on the spot." This had the effect of Haworth raising his hands a trifle higher. Mr. Nielson reached the prisoner, but found nothing on him. Still thinking that he might have a weapon concealed about his person, Nielson ordered Haworth to take off his coat. He obeyed and the search was thorough, but no weapon was found.

LIED TO GET AWAY.

The men were not yet sure whether or not they had captured Haworth. The four walked back to the cabin, which was searched, but nothing was found. Constable Nielson then questioned the prisoner. When he was asked where he was, Haworth replied that it was John and that he had got off the train at Sandy and entered the cabin during a rain storm.

"What do you want of me?" he demanded, evidently hoping to convince his captors that they had made a mistake.

"We will let you know later," was the reply.

He was then marched back to the store and ordered to sit on a chair in the store department at a point where he was away from the door or window. Thirty minutes later Acting Warden Wright, accompanied by guards, came to the store and took charge of the murderer.

PLAYED IT COOL.

Yesterday morning while out hunting, Howard Kennedy passed the cabin in which Haworth was sleeping and saw him. With a number of socks rolled up as a pillow, the hunted man lay prostrate on the bare boards of the floor. Kennedy little dreamed that the man was an escaped convict. He called to him and Haworth at once arose and came to the door. Kennedy asked him what he was doing there and Haworth replied: "Just taking a little nap." Then he asked looking off into the valley: "Say, what place is this?" Kennedy informed him and then Haworth asked for a cigarette and some matches. These were supplied him and Kennedy went off into the hills to continue his hunt. Here Haworth passed up a chance to secure the weapon carried by Kennedy. Had he asked to look at the gun, Kennedy would, no doubt, have handed it to him. With this weapon the condemned man might have had a chance to escape.

SEEN BY MORTIMER.

Shortly after that J. P. Mortimer passed the cabin. The man was building a fire in a small sheet iron stove. They talked for a few moments and Mortimer went on his way. At Sunday school Mortimer's son remarked that his father had seen a man in the cabin. Leonard Nielson, it is claimed, heard the remark and, excusing himself from Sunday school, ran to Constable Nielson and told him what he had heard. When the three men went to the cabin, young Nielson, Kennedy and George Blair remained near where the vehicle was tied to the fence.

HAWORTH'S STORY.

Sore and Discouraged He Denies He Ever Saw Lynch After Break.

The picture presented by Haworth as he sat scowling in his cell at the state prison after being captured from Holtville, was far from being a beautiful one. In addition to the scratches and bruises on his hands and arms, his clothing was covered with mud and he had a week's growth of beard on his face. One of the first questions asked him was where he left Lynch.

"I haven't seen him since Friday night," he replied, looking up at the ceiling.

"After you got over the wall did you not join him?"

"I tell you that I have not seen him," he replied with a tone of fierceness in his voice.

In answer to another question he said:

"I don't know where I went after I got over the wall. I was happy and I thought of escaping from this place where I have been confined in a cell for over four years."

"Which direction did you take?"

"I don't know where I went, except that I went into the brush and hid nearly all night. I traveled a little and hid again on Saturday. Did I sleep? Well, do I look like I had much sleep? No, I do not sleep. I got something to eat in an orchard last night and this morning I paid a woman 10 cents for some sandwiches. She is the only person I saw after leaving the prison."

Asked where he expected to go and if he intended to meet friends, he replied:

"I had several places in view, but as far as friends are concerned I didn't know I had any." He declared that he did not know who unlocked his cell. He said all he knew was that the cell was unlocked and he was told to make ready for freedom. He said he did not know whether he was the first man over the wall or not.

"All I know is that I felt happy to be out of this place and for some time I kept on going. I traveled several miles. In the morning I got some fruit from an orchard. Then I struck the cabin and went to sleep. Yes I did see someone else. I saw a man out hunting and then I went and got the sandwiches and returned to the cabin. I went to sleep and knew no more until they came and got me."

Haworth was asked if he did not try to reach his brother in the south. He arose quickly from his bunk and answered steadily:

"No, if I have a brother in that direction I don't know it."

"Is it not a fact that you have relatives in Union?"

"No, it is not a fact," he said.

"Will you try to get a new trial?"

"I cannot say. That is a matter for my attorneys to consider. Haworth looked surprised and then puzzled when informed that, had he not got out Friday night, Senator Kearns was coming out to see him with reference to an attempt to secure a new trial. He was told that it was at the request of Senators Dolliver and Addison of Iowa. At this he had nothing to say. He threw himself on his cot, buried his face in the bedding and then lay very still.

It was learned at the Holy Cross hospital this afternoon that Guard Jacobs' wounds are healing up nicely and he is as comfortable as possible under the circumstances. If the wounds continue to show steady improvement it will not be many days before he will be able to be out again.

Guard Wilcken's condition, however, is such as to give the physicians in charge grave concern for him. He suffers a great deal of pain, but is bearing up bravely. The doctors are doing all in their power to help him. It is not yet certain that he will not lose his leg.

HOWARD KENNEDY CLAIMS REWARD.

Thinks He is Entitled to $500. as He Saw Haworth First Yesterday.

HE FILES HIS APPLICATION.

After Talk With Gov. Wells, However, He Concludes that He Will Share Up With Others.

Just as soon as the members of the hastily organized posse can get together and decide upon the division of the $500 reward offered for the capture of Haworth dead or alive Governor Wells will affix his signature to the check. The parties interested could have had the money this morning, but up to a late hour they had not come together as has been the custom where two or more are claimants for a reward offered by the state. Up to this afternoon but one application had been filed in the form of the following:

Salt Lake City, Utah, Oct. 12, 1930.

To His Excellency Heber M. Wells:

The undersigned, Howard Kennedy of Salt Lake county, Utah, respectfully shows and makes known unto your excellency that on the morning of the 11th inst., the undersigned discovered and located the person and hiding place of Nick Haworth, escaped convict from the state prison of Utah for whose apprehension and capture rewards have been offered. That it was entirely through the efforts of the undersigned in the inception that said convict was captured in what the undersigned and one George C. Blair participated. To the end that the reward earned for apprehending and capturing said convict may be awarded justly, the undersigned lays claim to his share, if not all thereof.

HOWARD M. KENNEDY.

Howard Kennedy, accompanied by George Blair, filed the above with Governor H. M. Wells this morning shortly before 11 o'clock. The men were ushered into the governor's office where the chief executive shook hands with them and warmly congratulated them on the part they took in the capture of Haworth yesterday morning. Kennedy was somewhat disappointed that the reward was not paid over to him, but speedily became reconciled when Gov. Wells told him that the reward would be for him to meet with Mr. Nielson and brother and Orson Andrews, the other men who surrounded the cabin and assisted in the capture of Haworth, arrange the division of the reward and name the man to whom it should be paid.

Kennedy at first said he wanted the entire reward, but in conversation with the "News" stated that he would be content if he got $100, or whatever his share amounted to.

"I first discovered Haworth in the cabin at about 6 o'clock yesterday morning," he said, "as soon as I saw him I sized him up as being a tramp. I went home and had breakfast and then I concluded that there was a possibility of his being one of the escaped convicts. I went back along with Mr. Blair and we met Mr. Nielson and some others going on toward the cabin, as the news had spread in the meantime. We then surrounded the cabin. Mr. Nielson obeyed his orders. He told me not to get so close as I might get and that I was to shoot if necessary. Then Haworth came out and I went with the others and we took him to the store. I was the man who discovered him and gave the description of him to the officers and I would like to know who he is better entitled to the reward than I am. I took as much risk as any of them. But I am willing to share and share alike with the rest of them."

him. I succeeded in getting him a job doing odd jobs. Then I struck the cabin and went to sleep. Yes I did see someone else. I saw a man out hunting and then I went and got the sandwiches and returned to the cabin. I went to sleep and knew no more until they came and got me."

hatched at the prison, and that the attempt would be made in October. He also stated that he had seen two guns go into the prison, further than this he would say nothing beyond the state ment that a life there was at the head of the plot, meaning, I suppose, Abe Majors. I at once communicated with Acting Warden Wright and Gov. Wells. The matter was brought up at the next meeting of the board of corrections. Owing to the fact that there are so many stories of the same nature being brought out by convicts at intervals the matter was treated somewhat lightly, but not before a diligent search was made for any concealed weapons around the prison.

TALKED WITH GOVERNOR.

"On Friday night as soon as I heard of the break I communicated with Gov. Wells, Judge E. A. Smith and Acting Warden Wright and reminded them of the warning we had received from Blair three months ago. It was agreed that the matter be kept from the papers and the warden was instructed to tell everyone around the prison to keep close on the matter. The story has leaked out in some way, however, and now that it is public property it is best that it be told straight. This is Gov. Wells' idea also."

DESPISE MAIR.

That Mair is cordially hated by the prisoners who in some way have learned of his telling the story is instanced by an experience he had two weeks ago near the Dooly Block. Mair is in Salt Lake and trying to earn a honest living and while passing down the street as indicated he was struck on the head from behind and knocked down by some unknown man. As the result he is nursing a bad case of bruise even at this time. Broiles is still in Salt Lake, Williams, who has served two terms in the state prison for burglary, and one in the federal prison, was last heard of at Mercer where he was playing a piano in a saloon for a living.

OUTSIDE HELP.

Another significant fact that the jail break was deliberately planned and the prisoners had some outside help has also come to light. It is now believed that it was the intention for the convicts to put their plans into execution on Wednesday or Thursday evening, but something must have happened then that made it imperative to postpone the attempt. Mr. Christensen, proprietor of the Christensen ranch adjoining the prison farm, claims that some prison authorities that some time during Wednesday night someone turned out all his horses, some 15 in number, and drove them off to the foothills, where they were undoubtedly have been secured by the escapes had there not been a hitch in the program. Mr. Christensen, however, secured his animals prior to the delivery.

WHERE LEAD CAME FROM.

Just where the convicts secured the lead for the manufacture of their murderous slugs shot has not yet been demonstrated. It is sufficient, however, that they did. Armed with an old sloop they melted the metal and cast it in the boiler room of the prison on Wednesday or Thursday. The men who would be murderers manufactured their weapons was unique and shows that they were men of resource. Pieces of stiff paper were secured and twisted into the shape of a funnel. A piece of wood was inserted at the smaller end of the funnel for the purpose of a handle, then the paper was dipped in water to prevent the wood from burning when the molten metal was poured into it. "It was then ready for business. The result was a conical piece of lead weighing about a pound and a half. This was the second appeal of the case to the supreme court. The first appeal was unsuccessful for the defendants. A motion for a new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence was then made in the district court, which was overruled by Judge Booth. This appeal is from that order of the court.

KNIVES ALSO.

Then the convicts secured knives which they sharpened to a razor edge. Some of the knives were made in a shoe shop, others were made from old table knives and furnished with convict-made wooden handles.
