BREVITIES.

Mrs. Isabella, recently of Spain, is a great gambler.

The Crown Prince of Prussia is an enthusiastic stock raiser.

The first violin was made about 1,600, and was introduced into the concert room about 200 years ago.

A gay deceiver in New York is disgusted at the legal decision that the fact of his living with a woman and calling her his wife makes her such to the extent that he will have to pay her board.

A Buffalo suicide cut his throat, and then commenced singing "Shoo fly." He only lived to get half-way through the song.

A New Haven editor recently wrote an elaborate article about his Alma Mater, but was astounded to find it appear in the paper as "Alum Water."

"Bob, is your sister at home?" "Yes, but she won't see you to-night." Why? Because she said she was going to have one more mess of onions if she never got another beau.

Hope is like the cork to the net, which keeps the soul from sinking in despair; and fear is like the lead to the net, which keeps it from floating in presumption.

Ruskin, in one of his recent lectures says: "Though England is defeated with spinning wheels, her people have not cloth; though she is black with digging fuel, they die of cold; and though she has sold her soul for gain, they die of hunger."

The New Haven Police Court, on Friday, tried to settle the novel question, how much a man ought to be fined for chocking a colored woman until she was "black in the face," but finally gave up the conundrum, and discharged the offender on payment of costs.

Parties in San Francisco discovered, some time ago, an old parchment manuscript, which professed to describe the hiding place of a large amount of treasure on Coccos Island, off the California coast. Following its directions, they have commenced operations, and are about to take to the island cars and materials for a tram railroad, for excavating in the place where the treasure is supposed to be situated. They will also ship a year's provisions, and propose to make a thorough search.

Whoso doeth one a hurt, intentionally, doeth himself a greater in educating his nature for evil, and he who doeth one a kindness, doeth himself a greater in cultivating his own nature for good. Every time we think a base thought or do a base act, we are practicing a self-imposed fraud upon our immortal natures, selling our celestial heritage of pure thoughts and noble deeds for a miserable mess of base earthly pottage.

An Oregon paper notices the strange conduct of a pair of animals—a pig and a cow—who exhibit the greatest affection for each other. The cow furnishes food for her confiding owner. The pig is too small to reach the teat when on his feet, so he stands on two and reaches up on the cow's leg. There seems to be the most perfect good feeling between them, the pig gurgling his pleasure with the usual grunting, and the foster mother responding by licking him, as other cows do their calves.

The following scene is said to have occurred near Paris, according to French papers. A Frenchman and an American were about to fight a duel. Only two shots were to be exchanged, and the lot was to decide who was to have the first shot. The Frenchman was the first to shoot, but missed his adversary. When the Yankee raised his pistol, the Frenchman exclaimed: "Hold on; what do you want for that shot?" The seconds looked at him with the utmost surprise at this speech, but the American replied: "How much will you give me?" "Five hundred dollars," said the Frenchman. "And no sense," said our American, and raised his pistol. "I am a good shot, too high, I say the Frenchman, 'but I will give you a thousand dollars!' 'All right,' said the Yankee. 'This was the end of the duel.'

A recent traveler in Australia thus describes the performances of a tame cockatoo, known by its pet name of "the Doctor": "It would also pretend to sew, holding a little piece of cloth underneath its claw which rested on the perch and going through the motions with the other, getting into difficulties with the thread, and finally setting up a loud song in praise of sewing machines, just as if it were an advertisement."

The "Doctor's" best performance is when he imitates a hawk. He reserves this fine piece of acting until his mistress is feeding her poultry; then when all the hens and chickens, turkeys and pigeons are in the quiet enjoyment of their breakfast, or supper, the peculiar shrill cry of a hawk is heard overhead, and the "Doctor" is seen crouching in the air uttering a scream occasionally. The fowls never find out it is a hawk, but run to shelter, cackling loudly for their chicks, turkeys crouching under the bushes, the pigeons taking refuge in the house.

As soon as the ground is quite clear, cocky changes his wild note for peals of laughter, and finally alighting on the top of a hen coop filled with trembling chickens, in a suffocated voice, says "You'll be the death of me!"

A special to the Evening Telegraph, London 6, says the Prince Imperial reached London this morning; his arrival at Charing Cross railroad terminus was unexpected, and therefore did not excite attention. The Prince was attended by his suite. He appeared to be suffering from recent indisposition.

A special correspondent to the Tribune sends the following corrected list of the Provisional government, taking the name of the National Defense Government: Emanuel Arago, Crimieux, Jules Favre, Jules Ferry, Gambetta, Garnier, Pagan, Gloire, Bizoni, Peletan, Martin, Picard, Rochefort and Jules Simon.

The ministry is as follows: Minister of Foreign Affairs, Jules Favre; Minister of Justice, Crimieux; Minister of the Interior, Leon Gambetta; Minister of Finance, Ernest Picard; Superintendent of Public Works, Pierre Duran; Minister of Commerce, Joseph Magin; Superintendent of Public Instruction, Jules Simon; Minister of Marine, Martin Fourgu; Minister of War, Louis Jules Trochu; is also President of the Committee.

A London special says the Times has every good wish for the French statesmen now seeking to reestablish the government and preserve order. It expresses, as a matter of course, the belief that a new constitution will be made.

A German vessel is loading with rags for the United States, at Reimsburg, at forty-eight shillings per ton, and freights are sought at that price.

WYOMING.

The Territorial Election.

CHEYENNE, 6.—The election passed off quietly throughout the territory; there are three or four precincts yet to hear from; Wanless, the Democratic candidate for delegate to Congress, has a small majority, as the vote now stands. The ladies generally voted.

CALIFORNIA.

Collision at sea—Loss of life.

SAN FRANCISCO.—The steamship Tauranga collided with a coal ketch, near Auckland, New Zealand, July twenty third, both vessels foundered immediately. Eighteen lives were lost. Letters from England reached Auckland July fifteen, via San Francisco, nine days before the date of the same date were received via Suva.

HONOLULU, Aug. 24.—A solemn Te Deum was sung in the Catholic Cathedral in commemoration of the Fete Napoleon. The King, ministers and diplomatic corps and the officers of the Mamaloa, exhibited signs of another eruption. Since the violent earthquake of the seventh there have been heavy rains. The Queen Dowager, Koloma, is dangerously ill.

The principal portion of the town of Portwine, California, was burned on the 1st inst. Twenty-three houses were destroyed.

FOREIGN NEWS.

FRANCE.

Republic declared—Riot and disorder threatened—Napoleon's letter—On for Paris—Proclamation—Italian troops marching on Rome—Bismarck still maintains his position—The Emperor deserted.

PARIS, 6.—The Mayor has issued the following proclamation: "Hotel de Ville, Paris, 6.—I have been called by the government of the National Defense to the mayoralty of Paris. While awaiting for you to be called to elect your municipality I take possession of this City Hall in the name of the Republic, which was the scene of the patriotic events of 1792, 1830 and 1848. I speak to you now as our fathers did in 1792. Citizens, the country is in danger. Many are wounded. This Parisian municipality must be defended, to-day, from siege by the soldiers of the Republic. Vive la Republique."

Gambetta has issued a proclamation, appointing Edmond Valentine prefect of Strasbourg, and for the department of the Bas Rhin.

It is reported that Italian troops have entered Rome. The prefect of Paris has placed additional seals on the doors of the Corps Legislatif.

It is reported that Jules Favre has gone forward to meet King William of Prussia. The capture of McMahon is contradicted.

Bismarck still maintains his position at Metz, notwithstanding the strength of the army guarding and preventing his escape. The total force now bearing arms in France, including the national guard and the garde mobile, is seven hundred thousand.

It is stated that Count Palikao and M. Henri Chevreux, late Minister of the Interior, are in Belgium, having fled during the crisis pending the declaration of a Republic.

The Gaulois gives the following as the exact text of the letter of Napoleon to the King of Prussia: "Having no command in the army, and having placed all my authority in the hands of the Emperor, as Regent, I herewith surrender my sword to the King of Prussia."

The total number of French soldiers who fled to Belgium territory is believed to be about fifteen thousand. Some of the shops of the more favored purveyors of the Imperial family are menaced, and will probably be sacked. In all parts of the city the people are pointing out and taking down the Imperial arms, on the windows of shops where photographs of the Imperial family are displayed, care has been taken to remove them and all connected with them. The national garde is out in force, to repress any more serious trouble.

The corps of General Veruty has reached Lachen, on the retrograde movement; the corps is intact and falling back in grand order. The Minister of the Interior has received a dispatch dated Muthagen, stating that the enemy had appeared at several points and was crossing the Rhine in that vicinity; the garde nationale and other bodies were going to meet them. They had also appeared at Nuchet, in the department of Cote d'Or.

PARIS 5.—The public order is a matter of the greatest astonishment, considering the dominion of the mob. Gen. Lowenstein's corps, comprising the German advance, has arrived at Vincennes, on its march to Paris. The prefect of police has issued the following proclamation: "Policemen and inhabitants of Paris, after being for eighteen years crushed under the cruel blows of the traditions interrupted on the December Brumaire and second December, our task is resumed. The deputies of the Left, after withdrawal from their colleagues, have, by a majority, proclaimed the decree of Dechance. Soon afterwards a republic was proclaimed which has just taken place has been a perfect one. It was understood that no French blood should flow except on the field of battle. It has for its object, as in 1792, the representation of a foreign foe. It behooves therefore, the inhabitants of Paris, by their self possession and the undaunted attitude, to continue to show themselves equal to the task that they and the nation have undertaken, and for which reason they have invested the government with powers that have been so much abused under previous regimes. I write the inhabitants of Paris to exercise those political rights which they have just recognized to the fullest extent possible, consistent with wisdom and moderation, and to show France and the world that we are indeed worthy of liberty. Our duty in the circumstances which we have been placed in is above all to remember that the country is in danger, and that France under the auspices of republicanism liberty proposes to vanquish or die. I am certain that my powers will only be used to defend you from the clowds of those who seek to betray our country."

It is now positively asserted that the Empress left Paris on Sunday, going to Belgium to remain with the Emperor. She quitted the palace by the entrance on the Quai, having with her but one servant. In the morning Ferdinand de Lesseps, relative of the Empress, went to her and advised that she sign her abdication, she seemed to agree to this, and taking the project of the act, went to the hall where the Ministers sat in council. They all declared that she must not sign the paper. The Prince Clothilde, a ya the Journal Officiel, was the last of the Imperial family to leave the palace. She has gone to Boulogne, where her children are. Evidently from the appearance of the Empress was happy. It is stated that the official remaining in charge of the palace said that all those whom the Empress had favored deserted her, and not one inside the palace was injured. Some of the national garde required the cooks to prepare their meat and drink. Some of them went into the Imperial cellars, but nothing else was touched. The railings about the palace were torn off, a large force is posted in front of the new Academy of Music to prevent the mob from entering the building. The provisional government makes known that it will permit no such excess. Hugo and Carnaud have returned to Paris; the former received an ovation.

GERMANY.

STUTTGART.—At a crowded meeting held to day, the following resolution was adopted: "Resolved, that Germany refuse the mediation or intervention of the great powers." Other resolutions were passed, demanding the incorporation of Alsace and Lorraine as a portion of Germany, and the outlawing against French greed and as a national compensation for the expenses of the war; that the Germans must be one nation, in one state, with one army, one parliament, and that these are the only surties of permanent peace.
