LOCAL NEWS.

Reports Wanted.—The Secretaries of Primary Associations of Salt Lake Stake, will please forward their reports immediately. Mrs. Ellen C. Clawson, President.

Address all reports to Miss Bessie Dean, 77 Peach Street, Salt Lake City.

Received a Diploma.—By telegram from Stephen L. Richards, son of the late Dr. Willard Richards, who is studying at the American Veterinary College of New York City, we learn that he has passed his examination and received a diploma as a veterinary surgeon. He leaves for home next Thursday.

Sunday School Union.—The Deseret Sunday School Union will hold its regular monthly meeting on Monday evening next, in the Assembly Hall, commencing at 7 o'clock. Elder Geo. C. Lambert will deliver a short lecture; the Sixteenth Ward School will furnish the singing and doorkeepers, and the Sixteenth Ward Brass Band will be in attendance to discourse some fine music.

JOS. H. PARRY,
Secretary, Salt Lake Stake.

For Sheep-Stealing.—The case of the People, etc., vs. Jeremiah L. Whitehouse, who was indicted some time ago for stealing sheep belonging to Mrs. Slater, of Tooele, has occupied the attention of the District Court to-day. The number said to have been stolen is 150, and some of them bearing Mrs. Slater's brand, were found in the defendant's flock. Many witnesses from Tooele have been examined, but no result was arrived at in time for us to state it to-day.

Water Wanted.—Inquiry is being made by the residents of the north bench why the water is not turned into the upper ditch, as they know of nothing to prevent it. If it is among the possibilities for the citizens of that locality to be provided with water at any time, it should be done, for they certainly have to suffer inconvenience enough in time of scarcity to entitle them to consideration when water is so plentiful as it is now. We wish to call the attention of Watermaster Winder to this matter, and no doubt he will act promptly.

A DOSE OF MORPHINE.

A GERMAN DOCTOR SAYS HE WANTS TO DIE.

For several months past, a German, giving the name of Edward A. Oppen, aged about 40 years, and a physician by profession, has been boarding at the St. James Hotel. He had been introduced, by a gentleman engaged in mining, to Dr. Fowler. This gentleman, Dr. Oppen stated to Dr. Fowler, had borrowed from him some money, promising payment soon. Time went on, and the mining man failed to put in appearance. On the 17th inst., Dr. Oppen asked and obtained from Dr. Fowler a loan of $60 to pay his board bill.

Shortly before noon yesterday, Mrs. Howard, whose little girl Dr. Oppen had been attending, went to his room in the hotel and knocked at the door, but receiving no answer, and finding the door open, she went in. She heard heavy breathing in the next room, and entering saw the doctor on the bed, apparently asleep. She aroused him and asked some questions, to which he answered that he would be all right soon, and fell asleep. On a chair near the bed were some letters stamped and sealed, among them one addressed to Dr. Fowler, and one each to Rev. Mr. Oppen and Captain Oppen, in the east, supposed to be the doctor's brothers. Dr. Fowler was immediately summoned by telephone, from St. Mary's Hospital, and on his arrival was given the letter addressed to him, which is as follows:

February 27.

Dear Fowler:

I sent to Chicago to collect a bill due me to repay your loan to me, through your banker. Please pay the woman in the hotel $50 more; that will square our account. If you will accept my books you are welcome to do so. Whatever little property I have here, sell and pay yourself.

With many thanks for your kindness during our short acquaintance,
I am, dear Fowler,
Yours most truly,
EDWARD A. OPPEN.

P. S.—There is a ring at Hollander's, which I ordered to be set. Wear it in memory of yours truly, E. A. O.

Dr. Fowler succeeded in waking the sleeping man, who, on being questioned, said he had taken twenty grains of morphine, with the intention of committing suicide; that he did not longer desire to be a burdenn upon strangers, or to be regarded as a bilk, and took this method to escape. He refused to let Dr. Fowler pump the drug out of his stomach, saying it was two hours since he had taken it; that he had swallowed nothing since but a little coffee to dissolve the poison; that it was thoroughly in his system, and was useless to make any attempt at getting it out, and that he desired to be let alone; he's son sank into a deep stupor.

Dr. Fowler, however, went immediately to work, administered a dose of atropine, and ordered that plenty of strong coffee be also given. Dr. Potter was called, who saw the bottle from which the morphine had been taken and noticed that no such amount as twenty grains had been removed. A sixty-grain bottle of morphine, similar to the one in Dr. Oppen's room, was obtained, and when weighed was found to contain fifty-six grains; while the one which had been used by the doctor contained fifty-one grains, showing that the dose taken had not exceeded five grains, though this amount is sufficient to cause death in a person unaccustomed to its use. The efforts of Dr. Fowler were successful, and to-day Dr. Oppen is reported to be almost entirely well.

The case scarcely looks like a real attempt at suicide. On reviewing the circumstances and the statement by Dr. Oppen that he had taken twenty grains when five was the actual amount, we incline to the opinion that it was merely an attempt to raise an excitement and create sympathy and notoriety for the chief actor in the farce.

Louis XI. Concerning Sheridan's impersonation of Louis XI, a recent issue of the San Francisco Chronicle says:

One cannot witness Sheridan's "Louis XI" without acknowledging that he is a rare actor. His representation this time has been lacking to some extent in the finish and elaboration which first marked him. It may be that familiarity with it has made us more critical. But at its worst, it can be called a very great performance. It is still Sheridan's merit that when he plays, while we recognize his voice and even certain of his actions, we never remember the man or forget the character on the stage. Sheridan's "Louis XI" is one of the most realistic characters on the stage. It is full of the subtlest art; it is as wonderful an example of obliteration of the actor's personality as can be imagined. This is acting, this is art. Whether or not he be the "Louis XI" of real life to any degree is hardly the question. Historical effects are different from stage effects, and the actual is rarely interesting in the theatre. He is a King who corresponds to every line and suggestion of the play, to every situation and relation of the story. No more can be asked than this, and while Irving may be more striking in his treatment of the character, it will require ocular observation to find that he is a greater "Louis XI." Mr. Sheridan has made himself almost backneyed in the part amongst us. Yet it never lacks interest, it never ceases to inspire an appreciation of its fine merits.

A Raid on Prostitutes. Last evening, between 7 and 8 o'clock, the police officers swooped down unexpectedly upon six houses of ill-fame and gathered in thirty-one of the inmates of those dens of corruption and brought them to the office of the City Marshal. The air was made thick with the oaths and curses from the enraged females, until they were informed that the extra charge of profanity would be booked against them, whereupon they suddenly became quiet, and concluded to yield peacefully to the arm of the law. All but three were released upon the guarantee of their mistresses that they should be forthcoming to-day at 2 o'clock, when their cases would come up before Judge Speirs. As these three were old offenders and unable to give satisfactory assurance of their appearance at the proper time, they were given lodgings in the city jail last night.

At 5 o'clock this morning the officers arrested another of the demi monde, who succeeded in eluding them last evening. She was endeavoring to make her escape, dressed in male attire. The suit evidently had not been designed for her, as the extraordinary length of the pants proved to be such an impediment to her progress that she was easily captured.

Lost his Fingers.—The following particulars of an accident were received to-day:

Last Wednesday James Mack, of Smithfield, Cache County, while engaged in repairing the cleaner in his mill, met with an accident, after the machine was set in motion, by which he lost the middle and ring fingers of his right hand. He received medical aid from Logan and at present is doing well.

MYSTERIOUS cabinet manifestations, Eddy Bros' handcuff test, Mrs. Simpson's wine test, Foster's blood-writing on the arm, Slade and Watkins' double independent slate writing, and all tests produced by so-called public mediums will be produced by Dr. Hilts, at the Opera House, Monday and Tuesday evenings, and exposed. Let everyone go and see them.

[Special to the DESERET EVENING NEWS.]

SUDDEN DEATH.

MANTI, Utah, Feb. 28, 1885.

JAS. H. PATISONS, a young man about 22 years of age, son of Henry Patisons, of this place, left home this morning in his usual good health to hunt stock. He happened to see a rabbit and gave chase, when his horse stumbled and fell on him, breaking his neck. He died about ten minutes afterwards.

TERRITORIAL ITEMS.

CULLED FROM LATEST EXCHANGES.

—Leadville flatters itself on its prospects for a building boom in the spring.

—The loss from the fire at Sargents, Colo., mentioned yesterday, amounted to $6,000. Insurance covers the whole of the loss.

—Jacob Villebois, a well-known bartender of Omaha, has become insane and has been taken into custody. His reason is supposed to have been unsettled by the recent loss of two children.

—On Wednesday, at Leadville, a boy named Patsey Donovan, hanging on to the rear end of a sleigh, with one leg protruding beyond the side, when another sleigh came along, and the boy's leg was caught between the two and broken. He was taken to his home and surgical assistance called. This should be a warning to boys who are in the habit of hanging behind vehicles.

—A special from Helena to the Butte Miner, dated February 26th, says: The notorious horse thief and desperado, Henry Edmundson, Frank McCormick, the pugilist, and three other persons, named Dwyer, Clark and Ashton, escaped from the county jail to-night. They had concealed themselves in the bath room, and when the jailor went inside to lock up, they knocked him down, gagged and tied him, and walked out of the front door. The whole city is aroused and hunting for them.

Guilty. A gentleman who came up from Provo to-day informs us that Perry Decker, who was indicted by the grand jury of the First District for grand larceny, was this morning found guilty as charged.

Commissioned. The Governor has issued commissions to Oley Ellingson, mayor, and John E. Ross and George Webb, aldermen, of Lehi City; and to Alfred J. Kletch, Thomas C. Beck and James O. Bullock, aldermen, of Spanish Fork City.

A Work of Art.—The preamble and resolutions of respect to the memory of the late David O. Calder, passed, at the time of his death, by the officers of Z. C. M. I., with the management of which institution that gentleman was so long and prominently connected, have recently been executed in pen and ink drawing and encased in a beautiful gilt frame. The work has been done, at the expense of Z. C. M. I., by Prof. A. J. Phelps, formerly of Bountiful, but now of Mt. Pleasant, Sanpete County, and it is certainly a credit to him, and will doubtless be prized by the family of Brother Calder, to whom it is to be presented, as a memento of the esteem in which the memory of the departed is held, and also as a real work of art, which it assuredly is.

A Feasible Route. The committee appointed from the county and city officers to investigate the project of constructing a canal to carry off the surplus water of the Jordan river, have completed their preliminary survey, and are elated over the result. A natural channel was found to exist most of the distance, and it is the opinion of Selectman Jesse W. Fox, Jr., that the river, or at least a portion of it, has at some time in the past found its way to the Salt Lake by that route.

The river is now three-and-a-half feet lower at the point where the proposed canal will branch off from it than it was during the high water of last season; but from the present surface of the river to the surface of the first white lake encountered on the route—a distance of about one-and-a-half miles—there is a fall of six feet. This is the portion upon which the main part of the work will be required. From the first white lake to the second, which lies just south of the old road leading to the Salt Lake, the natural channel mentioned will be ample for conveying even the whole river if it was desirable to turn it in that direction, without any work. At the north end of the second white lake a cut of about 700 feet, or rather the deepening of the present channel through which the water already runs, will be all that is necessary to complete the canal to the big slough near the old Box farm, which leads directly into the Salt Lake.

The whole of the distance to the Salt Lake has not been leveled by the surveyors, but in running a distance of six miles northwest from the first white lake a fall of ten-and-a-half feet was obtained—sufficient to produce a strong current when the greater fall higher up the stream is considered.

Brother Fox is of the opinion that the cost of the proposed canal will not exceed $10,000, and that the whole of the river could easily be turned in that direction.

A meeting of the committees is being held in the City Hall this afternoon, at which a report of the survey will be made and work of construction considered.

Young Folks of Mona Aroused.—A correspondent writing from Mona, Juab County, informs us that the members of the Mutual Improvement Association of that place recently adopted a preamble expressive of their indignation at the outrageous treatment accorded to the Saints generally by their enemies, and especially at the libellous and incendiary utterances of a certain infamous sheet published in this city, and have resolved to withhold their patronage entirely from those who are engaged in the crusade against the Saints, or who sympathize with or countenance the acts of the crusaders. These sentiments and this manner of expressing them are becoming pretty general throughout the community, and will probably soon be universal, so far as the Latter-day Saints are concerned. Speed the day.

Kate Castleton Company.—To-night a grand double bill will be played at the Theatre—"At Sea," and by special request, one act of "Pop." The performance met with good favor last evening, and parties who failed to attend then will have an opportunity of seeing "At Sea" repeated, with the additional attraction of the favorite act of "Pop."

WHEAT WANTED.

A MOVE TO SUIT THE TIMES. UNTIL further notice, we will take good merchantable wheat at 65 cents per bushel, for our services in all land cases, and for filings, final proofs and special applications. We make this offer in consideration of the circumstances of the farming population and the stringency of the money market. Our charges will still remain the same—uniform and just. We desire that Blabops and others should give this publicity in settlements as far as they may be able to do so for the public good.
