

DESERET EVENING NEWS.

Monday, October 3, 1898.

The Deseret Evening News is published twice a week at prices of 50c and 25c each, and is sold at Salt Lake City and surrounding towns.

The Deseret Semi-Weekly News is published on Sunday and Friday evenings. The Deseret Weekly is magazine form, published every Saturday.

Contributors offering their names or pen names will receive payment for their work.

Our publications will gladly carry a 25 cent insertion of any irregular publication of their kind.

Advertisement of Wednesdays and Thursdays $100.

CONFERENCE NOTICE.

The Sixty-ninth Semi-Annual Conference of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints will convene in the Tabernacle, Salt Lake City, Sunday evening, October 4, 1898, at 7 o'clock. A full representation of officers and workers is requested, and officers and members of the Church are invited to be present.

LUDOVICO KNOWLTON,
GEORGE Q. CANNON,
JOHN P. SMITH,
First President.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONFERENCE.

The semi-annual conference of the Sunday schools of the Latter-day Saints will be held at the Tabernacle, Salt Lake City, Sunday evening, October 4, 1898, at 7 o'clock. A full representation of officers and workers is requested, and all interested in the Sunday school cause are invited.

GEORGE Q. CANNON,
GEORGE GOODRICH,
KALB G. MADOLE,
General Superintendent.

AMERICAN RULE SATISFACTORY.

It is urged as an argument against incorporating the Spanish colonies, especially the Philippine Islands, into the United States, that it would be difficult if not impossible, for the people of those realms to find a suitable form of government in accordance with American institutions. The islanders, it is said, are too far removed to take an intelligent part in national affairs even were they educated. It is scarcely possible that a population of half-castes natives and mestizos capable of self-government or that if they had it those people would not be every peer of the first corporations who wanted to buy votes. The question is, in the event of annexation, therefore, what one of the main forms of colonial government shall be used?

Great Britain, it is further argued, would be the country to turn to for an object lesson in this regard, and our country has found it necessary to try various schemes. In Australia, for instance, where the population is intelligent, it has followed the federal principle that the longest tether holds the most willing creature. Hence Australian government is independent, self-sufficient and self-maintained as any. In India, on the other hand, the variations of political forms is almost infinite. A few provinces enjoy considerable independence; the principalities are held in a sort of vassalage to the state, while others are direct to the center, irrespective of intermediate powers, and others are virtually administered by some central service, whose position is somewhere between that of a patriarch and a policeman, and who allows the native ruler to "rule" in a shadow; up to recently according to his individual views of the master.

Those who believe in annexation have, naturally, no far to go undertaken to discuss the question of the form of government to be established in the various colonies involved. I believe in the efficiency of American statesmanship to solve satisfactorily every question as it arises. They cannot admit that the broad principles upon which the American government rests are less potent as a factor in civilization than the principles from which monarchical systems have sprung.

The fact is that the science of government is much less intricate than some people would have us believe. Where government is applied only for selfish purposes, as a means of keeping the masses in subjection under the law, or for the purpose of dominating a small class of people at the expense of the many, there is sure to be friction and dissatisfaction, and various schemes must be resorted to in order to keep down the always active opposition against tyranny. Spain has been kept constantly poor, trying to hold her colonies in subjection. But the case is different when government is established for the benefit of the government, as it is sure to be when American principles are applied. Even nations in a short time will, with difficulty, find a role which they can assume in the world, to keep up, for their own interest. They will not rebel against it, but rather assist in maintaining it. It is this fact that insures confidence in an intelligent effort to reduce man from a state of savagery. It will be difficult to find the right road and men for a work that must be done, but difficulties cannot be regarded as a valid reason for shirking a responsibility manifestly placed upon this government by the recent events.

CHINESE CAPTURE ASSASSINATED.

It is always a difficult matter to determine official news of the important internal affairs of the Chinese empire. The well-conducted newspaper agencies copied and trifles the mortal and governmental status of the nation. The rulers and a large extent the people of the "empire" lead and live little intercourse with the world at large as possible, and while of late years the rate of circulation has been high, the moral system is not so strong. Hence we are in the dark as to the means by which the appear-was killed. It killed indeed, he was, whether it was a case of suicide, or foul report or neglect, we do not know now.

Things are a very unsettled condition over there. Americans and Englishmen are being treated with violence, and Indians amounting to several hundred have been persecuted under them. This follows a long time, which may result in precipitating the Chinese government.

What are the causes for the various efforts against the army as reported by the press?

What are the causes of complaint and the general peace for mobility?

Upon this, recommendation and suggestion are given, but not to clear the question, that is, what is becoming, but not to catch the causes, and, if possible, to mitigate it. Considering, however, at least, and following an example that if the Chinese government is not satisfied, but, as far as the paper is not one of these, this will be made to realize that though "crews" go by blood, blood will be with blood maintained." Here comes the question, and the defense for the Chinese. The jury evidently thought this was sufficient, and gave the award down to 14.

The attempt to transport from here from San Francisco to Manila has been very successful, it is said. The heat has stopped affected the cold storage, and freezing food to death on such expeditions, along most of the way. Shortening the several pounds of fresh beef was the cause of this expedition.

There are now difficulties in the way, these more building, four crosses to be constructed and one installed, three powerful dredges built and as many wagons as possible available in less than three years. It seems as though the branch of the railway, which has received about 100,000 dollars.

The New York Press is authority for the statement that what is sometimes called "yellow journalism" does not pay. It is claimed that Mr. Pulitzer has lost over $1,000,000 lastly. If that is true, it indicates that the judgment of the reading public is right again.

ROMANIAN.

STRINGS THAT TELL, ETC.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Oct. 3, 1898.
To the Editor:

The New York Herald of October, No. 25, contains a communication from "H. A. Author," H. A. Banks, of Birmingham, in which among other representations the following appears:

"Strikes will continue till the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, will be elected. The Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest

strike will be that of the wind, G. A. Evans, a lawyer and a Mormon, before the Presidents speech on Friday, seems to be a decided phenomenal performance, the more so when it is considered that the tail is among strangers and not having the benefit of that sustaining influence which comes of being surrounded by sympathizers. Luckily, the strongest