—Advices from Albuquerque, New Mexico, dated April 22d, tell this story: News was brought in this morning from Ranchito, a small Mexican village five miles north of here, that an old American named Andrew Noble had committed suicide by hanging himself to a nail in the kitchen of the house where he was living.

Warren, committed suicide at Anaconda, near Butte, on Saturday night by taking a dose of laudanum. He went to Anaconda a few weeks ago at the request of his divorced wife, who is keeping the Oakland House, and remained there up to the time of his death. During the evening he appeared despondent, and purchased an ounce vial of laudanum atout half-past nine o'clock. It is atout half-past nine o'clock. It is supposed he took the drug immediatey, as he was found unconscious at 11 o'clock, and died at 3 o'clock yester-day morning. Yesterday a verdict was rendered in accordance with the above facts. Domestic troubles are sup-posed to be the cause of the deed. He will be buried at Anaconda. Charles Warren, when seen yesterday, had no theory to offer as to the cause of the unhappy affair, and left this morning for Anaconda, to attend the eading stores in the Territory, and by hwolesale only by J. > CORRESPONDENCE. DEEAGERS AND OTHER PESTS ary Experience, WATERLOO, Union Co., N. C., April 16th, 1887.

Editor Deseret News: If anything merits the appellation o being a nuisance it certainly is the tiny red cheager. The writer has made several unsuccessful attempts to ascertain its relative value to the human family, manner of incubation, etc.

These annoying insects generally attack a man's pedal extremities. If the sensation which they cause is anything of a criterion, it would not be far wrong to assert that something less than a million can be amply accommodated on every square These troublesome little insects are scarcely incubated before the South-ern religious monomania is in full blast. The combined efforts of these potent factors of human annoyance turns to a high pitch the elastic faith instrument of an Elder with a host of hungry cheager growing at his lower extremities and a seething throng of religious monomaniacs at his coat tall, an Elder is involuntarily constrained to believe himself a martyr to conscience, and but for the clasticity of his faith apparatus he would necessary and the support of the classicity of his faith apparatus he would andoubtedly suppose eternal night was setting in when only surrounded by the gloom which precedes the dawn. very suddenly, as in the case of two preachers of the Baptist persuasion residing within five miles of this place. A week since these pieus venders of salvation, eager for notoriety, commenced an unsiaught on the "Mormons" with a view to prejudice the people against their doctrine. The vituperation which these sectarian propagandists hurl from their restrums at the creed originated in Joseph Smith affects the people but little. The honest heart of the people ever sides with the oppressed. Suffering becomes a virtue in their eyes, and they are a virtue in their eyes, and they are right; for cruelty in whatever form or upon whomsoever exercised is the very spirit of the lower regions. A friend to "Mormonism" approached these venerable blanket stretchers, requesting them to meet the writer and his companion in public discussion, but as was previously anticipated they declined to meet us on any terms.

Nothing is more common with the enemies of truth to suppose when the champion of a great principle is atruck down than that the principle itself is dead. This opinion was held by the assassins of the Prophet Joseph Smith. Should any of his assassins still survive, their astonishment must be great when they discover that the principle which they intended to exterminate by his assassination has, in accordance with the decree of Jehovah, been permanently established in the carth. Vituperation, hatched and hurled against the "Mortal Christian divines" and principles. hatched and hurled against the "Mormons" by Christian divines, will not stay the upward and onward progress of God's kingdom. As well might the enemies of truth attempts to the suit with the above result.

seething religious pot, they return home and resume their wonted occupations on the farm and clsewhere. Cold weather having commenced, the Elders can again purshe the even tenor of their way with comparative safety. The annoying leauxers like the religious menomaniacs having betaken themselves to more congenial quarters. To prevent the spoiling of the enormous religious stock acquired during the summer season the people occasionally gather at the house of some influential neighbor, where the exhortation of some "Big Gun" is attentively listened to: According to an "Old North State," "Tar heel," stale religion can only be preserved till the sap rises, when preparations to acquire a new supply must be made. While snifing the balmy breezes of blustery March the writer received intelligence of his brether's incarceration in "Uncle Sam's" academy of correction. "Mormon" Elders must be greatly in demand at that institution, when "Uncle Sam's" can afford to employ a horde of emissaries to select its recruits and mercilersly wrench them from their wives and children, when they are their main support. When theroughly institution, he will doubtless soon become proficient at cardening, which occupation it has fallen his let to pursue. So when he emerges from durance vile he will be an adept in that line of business. He undoubtedly esjoys serenity of mind, with the hope that the same may be venchasied the instigators of his incarceration from the heavenly source that succora him in his fortitude.
