CLUB CHAT.

The meeting of the Daughters of the Utah Pioneers on Tuesday was an exceedingly interesting event. It took place at the home of Mrs. M. Y. Wagon, and a program was rendered, dealing chiefly with the life and works of the late poetess, Eliza R. Snow, in whose honor it was planned. Mrs. Bathsheba Smith, and Mrs. Margaret Peirce Young gave interesting reminiscences of the poetess and the meeting was altogether enjoyable.

The Utah Woman's Press club will meet this evening at the Exposition office, Tompkins building. The program is as follows: "Current Events," Mrs. Maria Frame; patriotic poem, Dr. Ellis Shippey; "George Washington," Mrs. Minnie J. Snow; "The Friendship of Lafayette and Washington," Mrs. Emil Maeser; "The Story of Betsy Cross and the First Flag," Mrs. Susa Y. Gates.

Federation day was observed by the Cleofan on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Frank T. Roberts, 567 Second street. Mrs. W. R. Wightman read a paper on "Child Literature" and Mrs. Clesson S. Unusual preparations for this celebration, Miss Anthony's 85th anniversary, are being made, and it is hoped that a very large attendance of the friends of equal rights will be secured.

The Village Improvement association of Cranford is receiving congratulations that the work begun by its members in the interests of the pure food bill, now in Congress, has reached the dignity of a special committee in the general federation. The credit for the extension of the work is due largely to Miss Alice Lakey, who started the agitation in the local organization. Through personal correspondence and the assistance of Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, the matter was brought to the notice of Mrs. Decker, who, always practical, warmly endorsed the movement. She has appointed the following pure food committee: Mrs. Helen Guthrie Miller, Columbia, Mo., chairman; Miss Alice Lakey, Cranford, N. J.; Miss Elizabeth Foster, Boston, and Mrs. Whitmore, Denver. The committee is already active at work.

The undaunted Pittsburgh clubwoman is still struggling with the smoke nuisance. At a meeting held recently at the Civic Club, a special committee appointed undertook to make a house to house, or rather, a factory to factory visitation, and to discover all which will to use the smoke consumers which are supposed to mitigate the evil. The data will be used to further an effort for more effective ordinances.

All progressive women will rejoice in the announcement that women wage-earners will be given an equal chance with men in the new Carnegie Technical School in Pittsburgh. Director A. A. Hammerschlag has just announced the decision of the committee, and is quoted to this effect in the Pittsburgh papers. Said the director: "The decision disposes of a question which has been under consideration for some time. Some of the schools in this country where coeducation has obtained are considering the advisability of abolishing the system, while others in which women have been under the ban are in favor of establishing coeducation. The committee has gone to great pains to get all the facts obtainable, and to establish a conclusion. The result has been that the new school will be co-educational. We expect to provide special facilities as far as the education of women are concerned, and differ in this respect from every other institution in the country. Both sexes will be educated, but under what might be termed separate schools."

Through information furnished by the Pittsburgh Mothers' congress, the state factory has ordered an examination of the 400 stogie factories in Pittsburgh and Allegheny. The clubwomen have investigated the stogie factories and the neighborhoods where they are situated, and have found young children, especially young girls, working in unspeakable surroundings. In Pennsylvania, children of tender years still work, even at night. There are, however, certain restrictions in regard to conditions under which they work, and the clubwomen are determined that these, at least shall be looked after.

The Douglas Park Woman's Club of Chicago have declared their first object of philanthropic effort to be "The Cause of the Boy." The boys who are to be benefited by the club will be drawn from several stations of the West Side, in the vicinity of the clubhouse.

The club director, Boys from six to ten will constitute the first group, boys from 10 to 15 or 16 the second, youths and young men the third. The members of these three groups will be encouraged to work and play together as neighborhood boys puts it: a piano and game room are to be placed at the disposal of any boy who cares to use them, and a free reading-room and library will be thrown open. Already, although the work has been underway so short a time, enough volumes have been donated to form an encouraging nucleus for the library. More will be added, with standard magazines and papers, from time to time.

"The three areas of active boys" are to be studied and planned for under the club director. Boys from six to ten will constitute the first group, boys from 10 to 15 or 16 the second, youths and young men the third. The members of these three groups will be encouraged to work and play together as much as possible, and sympathetic fellow feeling will be fostered among them.

As the club grows and prospers, while the present work is being built up, other "boy helping ventures" will be set going. One of the first of these will include the establishment of a probation officer for special work among the boys of the juvenile court, and in less fortunate sections of the city, to be supported by the club. Varied boy-loving club members will also have the "probationary boys" devoted to them, and will endeavor to do good work in this way."

WOMAN'S WORLD.

For pear pie stew the pears cut in small pieces. Make a cornstarch custard with the yolks of three eggs, three tablespoonsful of sugar, one and a half cups of hot water, a little salt, and a tablespoonful of cornstarch dissolved in hot water. Line pie plates with rich paste and bake. Put in the stewed pears with the cornstarch custard over them. Cover this with a meringue made with the whites of the eggs, three tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar, a tablespoonful of finely ground almonds and whatever flavoring is desired. Bake. Pile the meringue irregularly over the pears and brown lightly.

A quaint fashion has been observed at recent evening functions, that of wearing a collar of colored velvet or satin trimmed with lace and jewels with a low cut gown. Sometimes the collar matches the gown, but they are often black or white. For example, a rose colored velvet collar was worn with a white lace gown, a black lace collar with a pale green gown, and a turquoise blue velvet collar with a black lace dress made over a turquoise blue slip. Perhaps they give a sort of sore throat effect, but they are becoming and different—two good excuses for existing.

Word comes from Paris that the flaring hems of our new gowns are to flare more than ever, and that ermine and featherbone are to be used to make them stand out. Moreover, the many ruffles we are wearing are to be increased rather than diminished. It is not artistic to cut up a fabric too much, and it really seems a frightful waste of time to cut one's clothes into a thousand pieces and then sew them together again. We have been through the 1890's. It would be too bad if we were forced into the early seventies with its longtrained, tight-fitting, be-ruffled gowns. The possibility reconciles us up to the widening of the skirt. Still if it keeps on much longer it will require thirty yards of silk to make a gown, especially if sleeves grow with the skirts.

It is an easy matter to wash a white sweater, if economical reasons prevent the garment from being sent to the cleaners. Make a warm suds with castile soap shaved fine, or made into a jelly with boiling water and a little borax. Plunge the sweater in and allow it to soak for a few minutes. Squeeze it with the hands under water, but do not rub unless there is an absolute spot, and, of course, rub no soap directly on the wool. If the sweater is much soiled, two soapy waters and the rinsing water exactly the same temperature, using a bath thermometer if there is doubt. Shape the sweater and dry in a warm airy room.

A good recipe for the chafing-dish is the following: Four ounces of smoked beef, one cup of tomato juice, one-third cup of grated cheese, two tablespoonfuls of melted butter, and two eggs well beaten. Chop or break very fine the beef, add to it the tomato juice. When very hot add cheese. Make a thin paste of one tablespoonful of flour and a little water. Add this and the eggs the last thing. Cook just long enough to make a creamy substance. Serve on hot buttered toast.

Raisins for fruit cake are much improved by cooking. Let them soak slowly and then simmer until the skin is tender.

The old idea of putting oilcloth under the washstand cover is now adopted for doilies on highly polished tables.

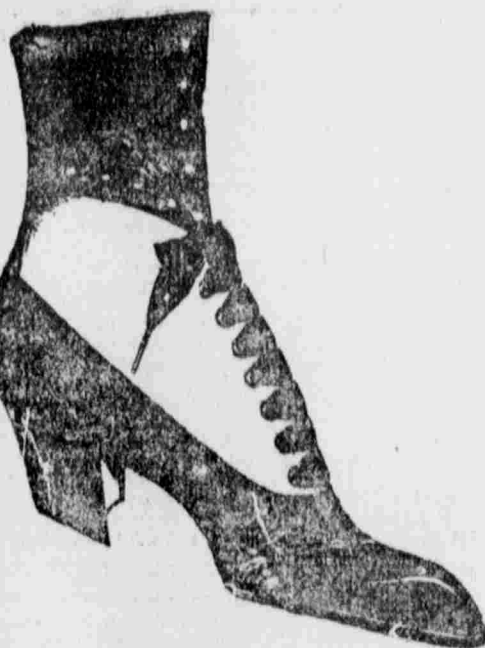

If silver is washed every week in warm suds containing a tablespoonful of ammonia the polish can be preserved for a long time.

Almost every household possesses a few family daguerotypes, precious because of association, and often intrinsically valuable for the likenesses they have preserved. Time has dulled the plates until the features of the portraits have all but disappeared. Perhaps it is not generally known that the old pictures can be restored to their former clearness. The greatest care must be taken with them, for the daguerotype is the most fragile of objects. A certain publishing firm found this out to its cost. The portrait of a great American was borrowed from his family to be used in illustrating a biography soon to be published. The picture looked dusty, and one of the illustrators flicked it across the face with a soft handkerchief. To his horror the portrait disappeared instantly. The loss was incalculable, of course, and the firm paid a large sum of money for the ruined picture without making up for its value. It is well, then to be cautious in entrusting old daguerotypes to any but the best restorers. The process is very simple. Daguerotypes are made on copper-plates coated with very highly polished silver. Time "oxidizes" this silver plate and results in the fading of the portrait. Chemicals are used to remove the "oxide" and the portrait emerges as beautifully fresh as of old.

Two tablespoonfuls of kerosene added to a basin of hot soap-suds will, it is said, cleanse stains against which water fails to prevail. Even dye stains are thus removed.

Here is a delicious dish for luncheon or tea. Flake fresh or canned salmon fine and mix with it four tablespoonfuls of melted butter. Beat two eggs and mix with them half a cupful of bread crumbs, salt, pepper, and a little minced parsley. Mix in the salmon, place in a buttered mold, and steam for an hour. When cold send to the table in a bed of parsley.

The House Beautiful describes several bathrooms, some good and others very bad in design. The worst of all is in the home of a multi-millionaire. It is described as "properly speaking, not a bathroom, but an overdecorated, overfurnished room in which a bathtub has been placed." The bathtub is sunk in the floor, which is not in the least objectionable, but the rest of the room is filled with stuffed furniture, easy chairs, footstools, curved teak tables, draped tables, lamps, screens, palms, and actually a small book-case. It does not seem as if bad taste could go farther. Few people of moderate means would tolerate even if they could afford, such a bathroom, yet too many people suffer their bathrooms to be cluttered up with useless furniture. Nothing superfluous should be tolerated.
