

their portion in the eternal punishment, will have the arm of sweet mercy extended to them when their justice is satisfied; and in due time every knee shall bow, and every tongue confess that Jesus is the Christ to the glory of God the Father. And the time will come when death and hell shall be destroyed, and there will be no more death, neither sorrow nor pain, but every creature, in heaven above and the earth beneath shall be happy and blessed, and honor, praise and power, be unto God and the Lamb forever, who has redeemed us by His blood out of every nation and tribe and tongue and people.

The Gospel is plain and simple and easily understood and appreciated by the honest seeker after truth. The reason that people generally do not receive it when it is preached to them by the servants of God—it is a hard saying, but true nevertheless—is because their hearts are evil; because they love the things of the world more than the things of God, and the love of the Father is not in them. And because they reject the truth when presented to them, and delight in the spirit of the world, they oppose the truth; and if not openly, in their hearts they sanction acts of persecution and hatred against the Saints of God. Some of them are corrupt in their practices, and such persons are ever ready to assail and traduce the character of our leading men, men who we know to be pure in their lives, and to be righteous before God; it is the very worst of men who take this course, and thus the Evil One, the destroyer of the souls of men, worketh in them and through them. And when they have opposed this work all that they possibly can, they will find that it still flourisheth, and grow and spread forth, while they will go to the place prepared for them, where they will remain until they shall have paid the uttermost farthing for their wilful wickedness. All men who fight against the Holy Priesthood of God, will have to meet that some day. Their acts are not hidden from the eyes of Him who doeth not slumber. Their evil deeds and wicked sayings will be revealed openly. The time will come when the first angel of God will sound the trumpet declaring the need of men during the first thousand years; and the second angel will sound his trumpet and reveal the secret acts of men and the thoughts and intents of their hearts during the second thousand years, and so on down to the last thousand years, even until it shall be declared that "we shall be no longer, and the secret acts of all men in all the ages shall be brought to light. My brethren and sisters, let that be a caution to you and to me. We must not be carried into the waters of baptism and be immersed by the servants of God having authority to administer that ordinance for the remission of sins, though our sins were as scarlet, they were washed whiter than snow; and we came forth from the water clean and pure, cleansed by the blood of Christ from all sin. But since that time the acts we have performed will have their effect upon us for good or for evil, and we shall be accountable for them when we stand before the bar of God. They will have been known of all; they are written in the books out of which we are to be judged, and every man's work is stamped upon his own baling, in characters that will speak for themselves, in the day when we shall see as we are seen and know as we are known.

Then let us try and do right for the sake of the right, live in the light of the spirit, see eye to eye, and prove ourselves worthy of the great salvation; and may God help us to do, in the name of Jesus Christ. Amen.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

For the benefit of our advertising customers as well as the reading public we issue a supplement with this evening News.

The Supreme Court of the United States will hear no more arguments after the 27th, but will then adjourn till May 7th.

A shower of snow, the first for thirteen years, recently fell in Rome, and whitened the cupola of St. Peter's for some hours.

Anything that makes the heart warmer, that makes the current of affection run fuller, that makes gratitude and love and honor and truth and faith stronger, makes the man stronger.

The British war ship Iron Duke, which cost a million and a quarter of dollars to build, costs nearly a quarter of a million annually to keep at sea. It is estimated that the plans for the ship must have been stolen from Robeson.

We publish to-day a statistical account of the progress of the Scandinavian mission up to 1882. It has been compiled with great care by Elder Andrew Jensen, editor of Morgensternen. It will be interesting to our Scandinavian friends and all who take intelligent notice of the history of the Church.

According to the current number of the Chicago Railway Age, the construction of railways in the United States during the first quarter of 1883 has fallen about 30 per cent., as compared with that recorded in a like portion of 1882, the total of main track completed in the past three months being 760, as compared with 1,200 miles in 1882. The Age estimates the construction for the year at 8,000 miles.

"There is no harm," says Walter Scott, "but on the contrary, benefit, in presenting a child with ideas beyond his easy and immediate comprehension. The difficulties offered—if not too great or too frequent—stimulate curiosity and encourage exertion." The same may be said in reference to "children of a larger growth."

Poverty-stricken Ireland is compelled to pay a salary of $100,000 a year to the British Lord who sits in the Castle. The Irish also pay annually more than five million dollars for foreign pensions and official salaries of different sorts. And when crops fail and people are left destitute, England tells them they had better emigrate and stop her ears to the cry of distress. This is no excuse for dynamite, but a different policy might prevent desperate measures.

An electric tramway car, constructed by the Millwall Electric Storage Company, was tried recently, says the London Times, in the presence of several noblemen and members of parliament, on the line of the West Metropolitan tramway company, from Uxbridge-road to Kewbridge. What is considered a satisfactory trial took place the previous night. The electric power is stored under the seats. The car moves along without any perceptible propelling power.

The annexation of New Guinea by Great Britain is proposed, and the statement is made that "if it is not annexed by Great Britain the probability is that it will soon be annexed by somebody else." This argument is like that of the "fellow who stole a horse of the range because, if he didn't take it somebody else would, but it will probably be effective, for in the past England has never needed any better pretext for territorial aggrandizement than the possibility of an attempt in the same direction by some other power.

The American Register, a genuine exponent of democracy, has the following: "The Louisville Democrat says the politicians do not want Hancock. They did not want him before. Scarcely a great daily newspaper in all the Union was for him in 1880 before he got the nomination. The politicians of his own State were not for him. The machine men all dead against him. But the democratic masses were for him and a few hundred staunch democratic weekly newspapers. But it happened at Cincinnati that the politicians were broken and the democratic masses triumphed. The blow should be a warning to the politicians now. The democratic masses want Hancock, and they are going to have him. There will be a Hancock boom for 1884, to which that of 1880 was a mere circumstance.

William P. Ross, the present chief of the Cherokee Indians, is a graduate of an Eastern college, remarkable for intelligence and culture, and a fine orator. The tribe occupies a reservation of 4,000,000 acres, bounded on the north and east by Kansas, Missouri and Arkansas. The Cherokees of pure and mixed blood number 20,336, about one-half of whom speak the English language, which is the only one taught in the schools. In the entire population there are but sixteen whose occupation is given in the last census as hunters, and five fishermen, the great majority being farmers. There are 107 schools supported by the nation; a male and a female seminary for advanced pupils, and an orphan asylum. There is a regularly constituted government and an adequate administration of justice. In short, the Cherokee nation is not to be distinguished from a frontier State, except in the character of its inhabitants, their relations to the general government and their system of holding the land in common, which affords an interesting example of practical communism.

The opinion currently entertained by keepers of poultry, that eggs during transport, whether by ordinary road or railroad, suffer some alteration in their formative germs, by reason of the shocks or tremors to which they are subjected, receives confirmation from the recent researches of M. Daresse. This observer found, while investigating the subject, that in eggs submitted to incubation immediately after a railway journey, the embryo very generally died; but no such evil consequences were obtained where a few days' rest was permitted previous to incubation. Founded egg-germs which were subjected to the tremors arising from the blows of a tapoteuse (chocolate paste force), beating one hundred and twenty blows a minute were invariably found to develop into monstrous, singular circumstances, rearing up the action of the affecting agent is applied prior to the evolution of the embryo. In such cases, on the other hand, where modifying influences are brought to bear upon the developing embryo itself, as elevating or lowering of temperature, diminution of porosity of the egg-shell, the vertical position of the egg and unequal heating, no such abnormal structure arises, the resultant being merely a somewhat altered embryo. In cases of this kind, rest does not restore the absolutely normal condition.

TAR AS AN ARGUMENT.

"Mormon apostles are laboring for converts about Connorsville, Ind., and are making some progress. That contains a law-abiding people, but a good many people are inquiring the price of tar by the barrel."

The above is from the Chicago Tar-Ocean, and is quite suggestive. The probability is that the people of Connorsville, described as "a law-abiding people," would not think of using tar as an argument against any system however heretical it might appear to them; for suggestions such as that offered by a professedly "law-abiding" journal, is something akin to the advice of a sectarian preacher, in reference to an unbeliever who had stirred up the ire of the clergyman and his adherents so much that they laid violent hands upon the skeptic. They were close by the village pump, and the pious preacher cried out vociferously, "Don't pump on him." Of course the infidel was drenched and the person could safely say that he had not advised the outrage.

We call the attention of the Chicago paper to the fact that tar, even with the addition of feathers, has never yet succeeded as an anti-"Mormon" argument. Several eastern journals have been treating their readers lately to disquisitions, more or less inaccurate, about the early history of the "Mormons," and particularly the occurrences which took place in Kirtland when the Prophet resided there. The outrage committed upon Joseph Smith by a mob including several religious leaders when he was taken out of his bed at night, covered with tar and feathers, scratched and scarified by the finger nails of one of the mad-cat rioters, and a vital of vitriol broken in his mouth, is related in these recent references to "Mormonism" and it is stated that this was really a turning point in the history of "Mormonism," and the beginning of its wonderful success in making converts. On the following Sunday, Joseph the Prophet, cleansed from the effects of the murderous assault, but with the scratch-scars showing plainly upon his face, preached to an assembled multitude and administered baptism to several persons. It did not deter him from his work, nor hinder the progress of the religion that he advocated. On the contrary it created sympathy for both in the minds of just people, and indignation against the men and the means engaged in the opposition.

It is an old adage that "like causes produce like effects." It is an illustration in a small way of the saying, "The blood of the martyrs is the seed of the Church," the truth of which was more strikingly illustrated in the martyrdom of Joseph and Hyrum, and the subsequent growth and expansion of the "Mormon" creed and people.

A distinguished American preacher recently expressed a great truth connected with this subject in the following felicitous words:

"No great or good cause ever succeeded without suffering and martyrdom. See how the anti-slavery cause was helped by riots and disturbances. Dragging Garrison haltered through the streets was one of the best possible things for stiff Boston. Without suffering there can be no ascendancy for a good cause. The gospel received the seal of God in blood. Enthusiasm begets enthusiasm. So Stephen was ordained for his work. Out of all that time only one figure now stands clearly, and that is the great protomartyr Stephen; his statue is carved in light and will go down to all time a radiant figure."

If the Inter-Ocean desires the suppression of "Mormonism" in Indiana, Illinois or elsewhere, it should be careful not to advise violence. For, apart from the shame and disgrace of counselling force, of the vulgar kind too, as an argument against religious preaching, however erroneous it may appear to be, the very opposite results from those intended are almost certain to accrue. The murder of our young missionary, Joseph Standing, in Georgia, so far from working intimidation and the extinction of "Mormonism" in the South, has, as we predicted at the time, brought forth fruits in hundreds of converts to the principles which he advocated and for teaching which he was cruelly assassinated.

The tar-barrel, the torch, the rifle, the revolver, the bayonet, legal penalties and prisons, mob violence and wholesale expulsion have been tried against the "Mormons," and entirely in vain. The people have not faltered and their faith has not ceased from spreading abroad. Brute force is poor reasoning, Mr. Inter-Ocean, and, besides being out of place in the nineteenth century and in republican America, is an utter failure so far as "Mormonism" is concerned.

"SUPERFLUOUS WOMEN."

MASSACHUSETTS, so the papers declare, has 80,000 unmarried women. These are ungallantly denominated "superfluous" by some of the enlightened writers for the press. It is further stated, with how much truth we know not, that a Utah widower has solicited Governor Butler to obtain one of the superfluous for him as a wife. The Boston Globe, in commenting upon the incident, admits there are 80,000 women more than men in Massachusetts, but is not willing to make the further admission that they are all superfluous, and adds:

"Woman is superfluous only when she is devoid of good looks, or wants to wear trousers, or acts as chaperon for a pretty girl. Some observers are inclined to classify as superfluous the woman who insists upon going with her husband when he takes his vacation, but for the purpose of the present inquiry she does not count. We do not admit that there are 80,000 women in Massachusetts ugly enough or 'superfluous' enough to be superfluous. Of the 80,000 women unprovided with orthodox husbands, as many as several manage to make themselves useful in various ways, and many others are ornamental to the household, and aesthetically necessary as works of art."

The story about a Utah man sending all the way to Massachusetts for a wife, lacks confirmation. In spite of the apparent preponderance of males over females in Utah as shown in the census, it is a positive fact that there are plenty of unmarried ladies in this Territory for all men who desire to marry, and perhaps quite a number to spare. The census does not show the relative numbers of marriageable men and women in Utah, but simply the numbers of males and females. Observation and acquaintance with the people show that there are large numbers of young women, to say nothing of widows, in all the populous towns and villages of the Territory, who have not yet entered into the blessed estate of matrimony. Either the marriageable women outnumber the marriageable men, or the latter are too backward and shy of wedlock and its responsibilities.

The ladies in Utah or in Massachusetts are not averse to matrimony. A woman who would not marry if she had a good chance with an eligible partner is a rara avis. But in Massachusetts there is a lack of men, and in Utah there are many male persons in the mining camps and elsewhere who do not enter into matrimony, for divers reasons. But we agree with the Globe in its dissent; from the term "superfluous women," only we go further and dispute the statement that lack of good looks renders women "superfluous." Personal appearance is not always a good recommendation for matrimony. There are thousands of women who are not attractive in face and form, gauging them by the standard of beauty, but who have the greater charms of a loving and lovable disposition, a pure mind, constancy of character, devotion of soul and the true qualifications for a help-mate to man.

We think it is a shame and a wrong, whether in Utah or Massachusetts, for women to be left out in the cold of spinsterhood or widowhood, when they are qualified for the duties and joys and usefulness of honorable wifehood and motherhood. And seeing that there are so many male persons who shrink from the responsibilities of married life, and so many more who are unworthy of the love and society of pure and trusting women, we are against the absurd restrictions which a relic of Romish jurisprudence has placed in the way of many women to matrimony and maternity, and we are in favor of plural marriage, or the union of more women than one, under proper regulations, and mutual consent with honorable, upright and large-hearted men, so that the term "superfluous women" may become entirely obsolete.

Earthquakes are of almost daily occurrence, but no serious damage thus far. The fire at Iquique destroyed ten houses. The fire did not reach the business portion of the city, and the loss was not great. All the officers of the depots of the railway: the Parah Church, the Fourth of July Hotel, the Cable Company's offices and private dwellings: Messrs. Lores, Jaramero, Curral, James, Marmado, Carlos, Gallagher and a number of others dwellings were burned down. The loss is estimated at $1,500,000; insured $600,000.
