The First Methodist church is now all under roof, the Campanile is built, and the interior is so far along as to show that the congregation will have excellent facilities for church and Sun-day school work. The old First Presbyterian church across the street is be-ing rapidly transformed into a twostory business block.

Electrical toys are being pushed on the market, and find admirers among the market, and find admirers among not only children, but among grown folks. A special feature in this field seems to be a top that is made to spin through the agency of the electrical current, and a galvanic battery that makes the arms tingle. Human in-genuity as displayed along this line is out a noticeable quite noticeable.

The elevator at the city and county building presents an attractive and ap-propriate appearance these days in view of the approaching season. The opera-tor, William Langenbacker, has taste-fully decorated the interior of the car with evergreens, holly and Christmas bells and has placed a placard in a prominent place bearing the customary greetings of the season.

An Italian named Vito Calorich at-tempted to cross the Los Angeles track Thursday, on Fourth West stree in front of an approaching passenge train. He was struck by the cowcatcher and thrown to one isde, with his head badly out. The sufferer was sent to St. Mark's hospital where it was found nec-essary to sew up several gaping gashes. The man had a close escape from death,
