The wife of W. W. Rockhill, American minister to China, was Miss Edith H Perkins of Connecticut before her marriage. She is Mr. Rockhill's second wife and was married in 1900. She is a woman of attractive presence. Mrs. Conger, wife of the American minister who preceded Mr. Rockhill, so favorably impressed the Chinese court that through her influence the dowager empress for the first time gave audience to foreign white women. Mrs. Conger was greatly beloved in Peking, and Mrs. Rockhill falls heir naturally to the good will be-stowed on the former minister's wife. Minister Rockhill is one of the few American diplomats in foreign lands who are able to speak and write fluently the language of the country to which they are appointed. He is an excellent Chinese scholar.

She holds herself qualified to discuss the question and to dispose of it, but not to cast a ballot. She helps to organize societies to do public work, such as cleaning the streets, and to promote good government in various ways, yet refuses the ballot which would enable her to choose the servants who are to carry out her program. The only reason or motive of the anti-suffragist is a desire to wield a personal influence on men. She pre-fers privileges to duties. Let her for-sake this selfish and unwomanly atti-tude, and do her duty beside conscientious men and women.'

The same lace forms the deep yoke and the small yest on the bloused walst. The sleeves have high puffs and deep cuffs formed of alternate strips of lace and cloth.

Federation of Women's clubs. The number of clubs in the federation is given as 835, which is a remarkable error for so accurate a journal to make. There are 4,249 clubs in the general federation, according to the Official Register and Directory, issued by MJs Helen Winslow. Truly, the time has come to take women's clubs seriously.

In Woman's World.

The amount of pleasure derived from rowing plants depends entirely on their condition. A hardy plant in a tin can a more hopeful and inspiring sight than a mighty palm with yellowing and

Here are some of the reasons why plants refuse to thrive indoors:

Plants in bloom that have been bought of florists have been forced into flower by means of artificial heat and moisture, To keep such plants they The leaves should be sprayed with a flower spray or gently washed

A cactus or other succulent clant requires less water than robust charge plants, for instance. Many of he slow-growing cactacase need hardy any water during the winter months, inless they are in very warm rooms. Ferns, however, need to be watered and sprayed frequently, and the slightest neglect in this respect will do the plant sreat injury. The water should, if pos-sible, be soft. Rain water, collected for the purpose, is best for ordinary use Palms and foliage plants require spray ing every other day in winter, if kept in rooms where the temperature is high. The proper temeprature of the room in which plants are to room in which plants are to thrive should be between 65 and 70 de-grees. This will suffice for all plants, even tropical ones. The atmosphere is often too dry in the American dwelling-house, and many kinds of insects attack plants in a dry atmosphere. Frequent spraying helps to overcomp this trouble, but when the green fly makes its appearance on the house plants it must be fought either with strong tobacco smoke or by dipping the foliage in weak tobacco water. Young shoots should be dusted with tobacco powder.

The red spider which attacks plants if kept too dry can be got rid of by washing with a strong solution of fig-

Diseases arise from injudicious watering, draughts, previous attacks of insects or bad drainage.

Mildew on the house plant is caused by sudden chills. It attacks young shoots particularly. When the leaves of a plant turn sickly yellow, something is generally the matter with the root, and the plant should be turned out and examined. If the cause is not apparent a removal of the old soil, repotting in fresh and suitable soil, will effect a cure.

Roots of house plants are often found to be rotting if the plant is allowed to stand in water. Plants most suitable for indoor blooming during the winter are, beside, the fern varieties, carnations, Persian violets, primulas, begonias and many kinds of bulbous plants, such as hya-cinths, narcissi, lilies, lily of the valley,

FALSE HAIR.

Startling Statements About Where It Comes From and How it is Handled. London Globe.

The death of a worker in from anthrax, supopsed in gen-dered by germs in the hair in China brings the extraordinarily increased demand for artificial hair before the pub-lic. Within the last five years the wearing of false hair in one or other of the many artistic and clever forms in which it is now offered has advanced by leaps and bounds. A conversation with one of the leading artificers in this line elicited many interesting facts. He scorns hair from Chinese man or woman, deeming it fit only for the cheapest and most common of fringes, cheapest and most common of fringes, transformations, etc. The markets he and other good manufacturers of artificial hair frequent are mainly in Germany, Austria, France and Italy. The idea that girls selling their hair deprive themselves of all their tresses at once is, it seems, erroneous. A girl blessed with long, even, silky hair, and wishing to make money out of it, goes to the hair merchant, and tells him exactly how much of it she will part with, or 'she divides the hair herself, and offers it to him, to be cut off. Sad to relate, the hair merchants, as a class and after a brief musical program a splendid luncheon was served.
