

IN THE WORLD OF WOMEN

NOTABLE UTAH WOMEN.

HELEN MAR WHITNEY.

Helen Mar Whitney, the subject of this sketch, is one of those to whom the title which designates this department, most aptly applies. Though her life was not so much given to public work as those others, it was a continuous record of heroism and undaunted faith, under the myriad trials of suffering, deprivation and hardship which attended the experiences of the pioneers in Utah, and severe personal trials which, taken together, might easily have shaken the foundations of her principle, integrity and courage, to their destruction.

Mrs. Whitney was born in Mendon, Maine, in 1828. She was the daughter of Heber C. and Vilate Murray Kimball, and was descended from early Puritan ancestors.

While she was yet a child, her parents accepted Mormonism, and at the age of five, she went with them to Kirtland, where she remained until the Church was removed to Nauvoo. At this place she was married to Horace K. Whitney, the eldest son of Newel K. Whitney, their marriage being the last one solemnized in the Nauvoo Temple. She was amongst those who took part in the memorable exodus from Nauvoo, and the difficult journey across the plains, her lot being beset with peculiar hardship and suffering—her first child born during the temporary stay at Winter Quarters, in 1846, and also a son born during the journey across the plains, both dying within a few days of their birth, victims to the hardships of the long and difficult journey.

During her life in Utah, Mrs. Whitney was recognized as amongst the most earnest workers in the Church which she had espoused. She was the author of two devotional works, which are considered important contributions to the literature of her Church, and took an active part besides in the women's organizations connected therewith. In 1882 she was chosen counselor to Mrs. M. I. Horne, president of the Relief Society, a position which she occupied till her death.

Mrs. Whitney was the mother of 11 children—Bishop O. F. Whitney of the Eighteenth ward, the well known author of Whitney's History of Utah and other ambitious literary works, being the eldest.

Mrs. Whitney's name is everywhere held in loving remembrance, her noble qualities of character having made her life of joys and sorrows.

At an event which will take rank among the prettiest of the year was the wedding of Miss June Satter and William H. Danahy, which took place on Wednesday night.

The event occurred at the home of the bride's parents, 124 Eleventh East street, nearly 300 guests attending the reception which followed the ceremony. The rooms were beautifully decorated. The double parlors were in green and white, the bay window, in which the bride party stood, being encased in green with a huge wedding bell of terra and roses coming from the center, while trailing vines and ferns, roses and carnations covered the mantel and piano. The chandeliers were smothered in green, and palms filled the balconies and corners. In the hall a profusion of green vines were used, the banisters being entwined with them and caught at top and bottom with bows of white satin ribbon at the new posts. The dining room was handsomely decorated, the table being covered with blue and green and adorned with roses and ferns. Repose of smiles were furnished at the four corners and swung to the chandeliers where they were caught with a cluster of roses and ferns.

At 7:30 the bride party entered to the strains of the "Lohengrin" wedding march rendered by Clifton's orchestra, which was stationed at the head of the stairway. The bride was given away by her father, Rev. Ellis Bishop performing the ceremony. Miss Maud Satter was bridesmaid, and Mr. Edward H. Field acted as best man. The bride wore a handsome gown with veil of tulle, and carried a shower bouquet of pink roses. Miss Maud Satter wore white liberty silk and carried a bouquet of roses and carnations. Mrs. Satter's bridesmaid, Mrs. L. J. Danahy, wore a handsome gown with veil of tulle, and carried a shower bouquet of pink roses.
