

DIED PEACEFULLY.

Senator John G. Harris of Tennessee Passes Away.

AS HONORABLE CAREER ENDED.

He Played an Important Part in Many Years of the History of His Country.

Washington, July 8.—Senator John G. Harris of Tennessee, died at his residence a few minutes before 3 o'clock this afternoon. The Senator had been growing constantly weaker for several days, the intense heat here had prevailed greatly affecting him and he was unable to get out of bed.

This morning the Senator received a telegram from the Tennessee legislature, which was a great surprise to him. He was unable to get out of bed.

During the afternoon, Senator Harris was taken to the Senate chamber where he lay until he was unable to get out of bed.

THE OBSESSION TO RAIL.

Senator Harris has been especially active in the campaign for the passage of the bill to amend the act of 1894.

He was one of the Democratic members introduced with the act to amend the act of 1894.

Although then a man of advanced years, his health never seemed to flag. He was at his post of duty night and day, and in the afternoon he was sought to turn a legislative point against the bill.

Simmenthaler Cattle.

Among the most interesting cattle at the New York live stock show were the Simmenthalers imported by Mr. Havermeer.

The purpose in introducing them from this country was to cross them with the Jersey and thus get rid of tuberculous.

A good look at the Simmenthalers, however, suggests the idea that they would make a better cross with the Guernsey.

The Simmenthaler bull at the live stock show at Chicago, at a price of $2,000 pounds.

He was an immense find, much milder looking than either the Jersey or the Guernsey bull.

The Simmenthalers are as large as the Holstein-Friesians. The milk of the cow is richer than that of Holstein-Friesians.

about as rich as Guernsey milk. These cattle also make excellent beef, and it is in their double capacity of milk and meat producers that they are valued in their native Switzerland.

A well grown Simmenthaler steer weighed 1,400 pounds at a year old.

A Simmenthaler cow weighed 1,100 to 1,400 pounds and gave about 40 pounds of milk a day.

This Swiss breed resembles the Guernsey more than any with which people in this country are familiar.

although the cattle are considerably larger than the Guernsey.

The Simmenthaler color is a mixture of white and red, varying on some from a pale fawn, almost cream color all over and was a magnificent looking animal.
