Special Correspondence.

The people of Cache valley are again called upon to part with one of their most illustrious and best known citizens. At his home in Lewiston, Utah, and surrounded by his family and other relatives, President William Hendricks Lewis of the Benson stake of Zion, died Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. The news of his death was quite a shock to his many friends, who saw him one week ago today riding about in his buggy, performing his usual duties with era had contracted serious diseases. The privations endured under such circumstances cannot well be imagined by Utah's younger generations, but they are of value in shedding light upon the character of those who endured the hardships.

When warm weather came Neriah and his family moved back to the Iowa side of the Missouri river. They lived here one year, when they moved to Platt county, in the vicinity of St. Joseph. Here they earned enough money with which to purchase an outfit, and in April, 1851, they started for Utah, arriving in Salt Lake City Oct. 7, 1851.

They purchased a house and farmed one season. In the fall of 1852 they moved to Centerville, Davis county, but returned soon after to Salt Lake City, where William's mother died, leaving his father with four children of his own and two orphan children belonging to his wife's brother.

From this time on the boys were compelled to hustle for themselves. They worked at whatever they could get to do, and received in pay for their services anything they could get. It was during this formative period of his life that the habits of thrift and industry were formed, which gave William H. the success which he afterwards attained.

In 1856 he married Martha Petty, built him a house at Fort Harrison, and began to make a home for himself. "Strict economy and the avoidance of debt" was the motto of this couple from the start, and for 10 years they maintained a livelihood under the most trying circumstances, without becoming indebted to any one.

CACHE VALLEY PIONEER.

In July, 1859, he came to Cache valley. He followed a trail through Wellsville, and finally arrived on the spot where Richmond now stands. Later religious without being pious. Neither his cheerfulness, his seriousness, nor his religious instruction, was confined to any favored class. The smallest boy of the community could ride along by the side of him and enjoy his smile, his advice, and his beliefs. Many a boy has been made to feel better and has been led to leave undone a wrong act, after receiving such treatment. He was straightforward in business affairs, faithful in his religious duties, and temperate in things pertaining to his morality. As a monument to his business ability, he has left a large and fertile farm upon which are well kept and orderly arranged fences, yards, barns, sheds, etc. The systematic arrangement of these improvements and the homes which he leaves to his survivors bespeak such method and system as would satisfy the most exacting business man and would attract the attention of those who were most fastidious.

He has laid down a body which is uncontaminated by liquor, tobacco, or vice, thereby setting an example for his friends, his associates, and the children who survive him, to follow. By his actions upon his death bed and at other times, he has left a deep religious faith in the minds of those who remain behind, and he goes with courage and without fear to meet the verdict of his God.

The funeral will be held from the Lewiston meetinghouse Saturday, Sept. 9, at 11 a. m.

LAWFUL FENCE IN STATE OF IDAHO.

What has passed down into history as the Missouri lawful fence, is described as being "horse high," "hog tight" and "bull proof." But this is what constitutes a lawful fence in Idaho.

"If made of stone, four and one-half feet high, two feet base and one on top. If a worn fence the rails must be the same height as for stone. If made of posts, boards or poles, the posts must be firmly set in the ground not more than eight feet apart, with not less than three six inch boards, not less than two inch poles at the small end. In a leaning pole fence there must be four poles. If wire is used the posts must not be over 16 feet apart and one substantial stay must be placed between posts, with not less than two barbed or three plain wires together with one board, rail, blockwire or pole. The wires must be well stretched and securely fastened to the posts. All fences must be at least four and one-half feet high. The board, pole or blockwire must be placed at the top of the fence.

If the provisions of the law regarding the barbed wire fences are not complied with, the owner of stock injured by such fence can recover damages from the owner."

From Sept. 15th to Oct. 31st, the Salt Lake Route offers extremely low colonists rate one way Salt Lake to Los Angeles for $25.00, stop overs allowed California, and Las Vegas. Persons contemplating going to the Pacific Coast to settle should bear this in mind as it is the lowest rate ever offered. See any Agent of the San Pedro, Los Angeles & Salt Lake Railroad.

GREAT SIEGES OF HISTORY.

The siege of Port Arthur by the Japanese has been supposed by some to equal any other recorded by history. Harper's Weekly notes some interesting facts bearing on this point. General Stoessel surrendered between 20,000 and 25,000 men of whom, however, fewer than 5,000 were fit for duty. "On the whole, therefore, as regards the number of men taken, the siege of Port Arthur will rank in military history with that of Vicksburg and that of Ulm, but, of course, incomparably below that of Metz, where the number of men given up by Basaine exceeded 175,000, by far the largest body of men that ever surrendered."

THE TYPEWRITER'S EXPANSION.

A little event fraught with large significance was the celebration the other day in New York of the thirtieth anniversary of the entrance into business life of the pioneer commercial typewriter. All that innovation of thirty years ago meant to the business world no one could have dreamed at the time, and if volumes were given to it now the story would not be half told. For the one woman has now become a vast and ever-increasing host, and the gain to business interests in neatness, legibility and accuracy, together with dispatch, in all transactions where writing is involved, has been equally and proportionately great. The pioneer typewriter deserves double credit for the new and wide field of honorable and lucrative employment which she opened to her sex none the less than for the immeasurable benefit which her invention has conferred upon a busy world.

PANAMA AS A HEALTH RESORT.

The prevailing impression that health conditions on the Panama isthmus are not favorable is contradicted in an interesting article in the current Harper's Weekly, by Colonel W. C. Gorgas, U. S. A., chief sanitary officer in the canal zone. "Colonel Gorgas tells of the work that has been accomplished by the sanitary department in improving the health conditions of the isthmus, and he shows, by actual figures, that Panama is healthier than many American cities. For whereas New York city, last year, had a death rate of 19 per thousand, Philadelphia 21 per thousand and Washington 22 per thousand, Panama has, during a similar period, a death rate of only 14 per thousand. Colonel Gorgas believes that on account of the sanitary work done, yellow fever will soon be exterminated from the canal zone."

A MAN OF AFFAIRS.

Although the life of calling of President Lewis has been just a church and ecclesiastical capacity, the field for his activities and for his opportunity of doing good has not been so limited. With whatever he has tended to bring about progress, or industrial improvement, his name has been associated and his sympathies have been assured. He helped to dig and has helped to keep in good condition the Cub River canal and has of recent years acted as president of the West Cache Canal company. He was one of the directors of the Lewiston sugar factory and has been a most earnest promoter of the enterprise. At the time of his death, letters were out announcing the fact that he had been elected president of the Lewiston National bank.

Besides his industrial and ecclesiastical affairs, he has for a number of years been one of the trustees of the Brigham Young college, thus identifying himself with one of the leading Church schools of the state and thereby showing himself to be in sympathy at least with the cause of education. In fact, he has been a public spirited man, and has been identified, in one way or another, with a great many of Cache county's public institutions.

BELOVED BY ALL.

He was of a financial turn of mind and consequently his greatest labors have been of a financial nature, but they have all been impelled by a high sense of public duty. Through the death of President Lewis the Lewiston ward has lost a model Bishop, Benson stake an exemplary president, and Utah, as a state, one of her most energetic and persevering pioneers. The aged men of his stake have lost a companion, the middle-aged have lost an adviser, and the youth have lost a most powerful and beneficial example.

He was a cheerful, unassuming, friendly, serious without being melancholy, the slowness and cheerfulness of a man of 60. A sudden attack of cholera morbus upon a generally debilitated system was the cause of his death, which came after but one week of illness.

PRESIDENT WILLIAM HENDRICKS LEWIS.

BIOGRAPHICAL.

The deceased was born Oct. 14, 1837, near Carlinville, Macoupin county, Ill. He was the son of Neriah Lewis and Rebecca Hendricks, both of whom were brought up in Simpson county, Ky. The father was a descendant of a Welsh family, who emigrated from Wales to America at an early date, and took part in the Revolutionary war. He was married when quite young, and went to Illinois where he made his home. While living there, and during the winter of 1846-7 he became converted to the Gospel and moved to Nauvoo, Ill. The son, William, was baptized and confirmed a member of the "Mormon" Church April 10, 1847. Shortly after this, he with his parents, started for his unknown west.

ENDURED HANDSHIPS.

He traveled through Iowa to the Missouri river, and was present at the formation of the Mormon Battalion. Later he crossed the Missouri river on a flat boat, joined a company of journey, and continued his westward journey. After a few hundred miles had been traveled, however, cold weather came on, and the company was obliged to spend the winter with some tribes of Indians. The wintering Indians, who had been told by President Lewis himself, in order to keep alive at all, they were compelled to eat horses and the flesh of their cattle and horses, when they died. Before the winter had passed some 80 members of the company had died, and many others
