

Latest Foreign News by Mail.

The mail steam-ship, City of Washington, which left Liverpool the 10th and Queenston the 11th of October, passed Cape Race on the evening of the 23d. She encountered strong south west and north west gales the entire passage. She had five hundred and eighteen passengers for New York.

The following are the principal items telegraphed from St. John's:

The news by the City of Washington is mainly confined to the details of the battle of Volturno. The Neapolitans, estimated at 30,000 strong, attacked the Garibaldians on the first under cover of a thick mist, and carried some positions, and for a time succeeded in driving back the Garibaldians, whose numbers did not reach half theirs. Garibaldi went forward, revolver in hand, cheering on his men; and after a desperate fight of eight hours duration, the Neapolitans were broken and routed, and were pursued close under the walls of Capua. A brigade of Germans was cut off from the main body of the Neapolitan army, and driven into the mountains.

The Garibaldians took five thousand prisoners, and it was intimated that the Neapolitans had three thousand killed and wounded. The loss of the Garibaldians was stated at between twelve hundred and two thousand men. The royalists subsequently made a sortie from Capua to the rescue of the German brigade, but were repulsed. The King of Naples and his brothers were present at the battle.

Rumors were current that Capua had surrendered, and that the bombardment of the town was progressing, but neither had been confirmed.

The line of the Tolturus was still strongly protected, and it was said the Neapolitans were prepared to defend their positions.

Some Sardinian troops assisted the Garibaldians in the battle.

Garibaldi had called on the King of Sardinia to go to Naples, and to send him fourteen thousand men immediately.

The Piedmontese troops had entered the Neapolitan territory.

It was reported that three of the great powers had protested against the entry of the Sardinians into Naples.

The pope remained at Rome. Gen. Lamoriciere had returned to France.

The French had occupied numerous places near Rome.

It was reported that a third division will be sent from France to Rome.

Military movements on a vast scale are reported in Austria.

News from Pekin to the commencement of July had been received via St. Petersburg, but there was nothing of importance.

The English funds were depressed by heavy exports of gold to France.

A dispatch from Beirut says that Fuad Pacha had summoned to that place the chiefs of the Druses in order that they might justify themselves. The majority refused to obey the summons; and it was asserted that a Turco-French expedition was about to march on Deir El Kamar.

Queen Victoria continued in Germany and was not expected to return to England till near the end of October.

Late from the Out-going Missionaries.

We are in the receipt of a letter from one of the missionaries, who left for the east the last of September, dated at French's Ranch, thirty-five miles above Fort Kearny, on the 28th of October. Up to the 26th the company had been favored with excellent weather, no storm having occurred to impede their progress or render travelling disagreeable and uncomfortable. On that day they encountered a severe storm, the particulars of which may be learned from the following extracts from the letter to which we refer:

Early on Friday afternoon last, 26th inst. we were overtaken by a severe rain storm. The wind, also, which had blown cold and fiercely all day, seemed to increase. Coming from the north, as we dragged heavily along, with the windings of the road, the storm was alternately on our broadside or partly in our faces. Some of the wagons being rather poorly fixed for, to us, such an unusual occurrence, were generously saturated with the rain which poured down most copiously.

After some exertion we made a harbor under the lee of some hay stacks owned by Mr. Dan Smith, who kept a station there. Here we obtained hay for our animals, paying 30 cents per feed per head. We also procured some wood from him, as the timber was far off. It was quite difficult, however, to make or keep up a fire. Some of the Elders who had tents, succeeded in getting up a blaze, but the smoke was excruciating.

Towards night the cold grew more intense. Many had before this got thoroughly saturated, and had not a dry change, while their wagons afforded but an indifferent shelter. Night came on and with its darkness followed in increased fury of the storm. Many had no shelter whatever—nor was there any to be procured on any terms. Capt. Hooper, who, having become thoroughly wet was attacked with a severe chill just at dark, offered fifty dollars to the keeper of the house for a room in which to accommodate himself and family and those with him; but all to no purpose—the intensity of the storm having driven together, from all directions for miles around, the Pike's

Peakers, both going and returning, with many others—some of whom presented a most pitiable, dejected, forlorn and deprecatd aspect. The house was therefore crowded to its utmost capacity, and rude couches covered every accessible nook and corner of the premises that was sheltered from the storm.

I will not attempt to describe the scenes of that night in the Elders' camp. In the darkest hour of the night and when the storm arose to its utmost fury, there was not one, that I know of, who was comfortless or in the least disheartened, even though shivering with cold, drenched with rain and sleeping without shelter in the midst of the storm.

The long, dark and dreary night at last passed away and revealed to our waking senses the first snow we had seen on the journey; and further, that, during the night, tents had been blown down; one of br. Van Valkenburgh's mules had perished, besides one or two animals belonging to others; and that the wagon in which were sisters Foss, France, Williams and Vost had been but a slight protection to them—they all being wet through, in which plight they had been compelled to remain, within that contracted compass, unable to recline for rest, till morning; which, indeed, brought them but little relief in that respect. The family of br. Van Valkenburgh, also, suffered somewhat from cold and wet—especially the little ones; and I am persuaded that none of this company would again, under similar circumstances, assume the risk and care of children on a long journey from home at such an inclement season of the year.

Snow continued falling (chiefly melting soon after), the gale increasing and slackening at intervals, until towards evening. I need not tell you that we remained in camp during Saturday, making ourselves externally as comfortable as possible, under the circumstances. In spirit, I believe I never saw the brethren feel any more cheerful, and even jocose.

The calm of the evening allowed opportunity for fixing whatever needed. During the whole period of the storm, both by day and night, our animals received every required attention; and I am fully persuaded that, upon the whole, the "opposition" to the uniformly pleasant weather we had hitherto, it has been most salutary in its effects upon our mules—many of which had become leg-weary and worn with constant, rapid travel. Although the roads were wet, muddy and generally heavy to-day, we made good time and came along blithely.

The Elders and all others in their company are in generally good health, though a few have colds and chills, from the effects of their late exposures.

Music and Singing Schools.

Mrs. Cooke, well known as a successful teacher, purposes to open a singing school for young gentlemen and ladies, to commence on Wednesday evening, December 5th, and a similar school for boys and girls, to commence on Saturday afternoon, December 8th, at her residence in the Fourteenth Ward, near Ballo's Hall. She also wishes to increase the number of her pupils on the Piano Forte and Melodeon.

Her terms are very reasonable, and those who wish to improve gifts, possessed or bestowed, could not expect a more favorable opportunity than is thus offered for their consideration. [See advertisement.]

WANTED, a few more loads of WOOD, some POTATOES, and a few BEEVES.

Notice to Travelers.
