FATHER LAMBSON IS CALLED HOME.

Froncer of 1847 and Faithful Church Worker Summoned to The Other Side.

SOME OF HIS ACHIEVEMENTS.

Skilful as a Mechanic, He Did Much to Overcome Great Obstacles in Early Days.

Sunday, Feb. 26, 1905, Alfred Boaz Lambson, son of Boaz and Polly Walworth Lambson, a ploneer of 1847, and a faithful member of the Church, passed away at the home of his caughter, Mrs. Edna L. Smith, after an attack of Elder Lambson was born in Niagara county, N. Y., Aug. 27, 1820; his early youth was spent in Michigan, from which state he moved to Nauvoo in 1843. He left Kinderhook, Branch county, Mich., in company with Charles C. Robbins, Nov. 16, 1843, and arrived in Nauvoo on the 4th of December fellowing. Here he met the Prophet Joseph Smith, by whom he was miraculously healed shortly afterwards from a severe elckness which had threatened his life. He had always a firm testimony of the Gospel and implicit faith in the Prophet been called at a special conference in and weigher. the previous April. He labored under the presidency of Benjamin Winchester and Seabert C. Shelton, but was called home after the martyrdom of the Prophet Joseph and Patriarch Hyrum Smith, and arrived in Nauvoo Dec. 21, 1844. On the 25th of November, 1845, he married Melissa Jane Bigler, and with her was endowed in the Nauvoo temple, Jan. 21, 1846, and on the 12th of June. Jan. 21, 1846, and on the 12th of June, 1846, left Nauvoo for the valleys of the mountains. He arrived at Winter Quarters on the 24th of the following August, where he remained and was engaged as a mechanic and blacksmith, assisting the Saints to prepare for the westward journey, until the 4th of June, 1847, when he departed for the Salt Lake valley.

A THOROUGH MECHANIC.

He crossed the plains in Daniel Spencer's company, in the 50 under the command of Elijah E. Fuller and in Perrigrine Session's 10. Throughout this Perrigrine Session's 10. Throughout this journey he was the chief mechanic of the company. Being an artificer of superior ability, his support to the camp was invaluable. Many a night during that dreary journey he was called on for repairs that engaged his attention till late in the night, in order that the journey might not be hindered. Elder Lambson made a bellows for the journey, which he carried on a rack atharmoson made a below's for the journey, which he carried on a rack attached to the endgate of his wagon. It was constructed out of a headless barrel, or sort of tub, tapering from the bottom to the top, so that the hoops could be tightened from time to time. A wooden diaphram and valve were attached, also leather or cowhide expansions with necessary air valve, handle and leather hose to be joined to the tuyere and furnace for blast. It proved to be a complete success. For ordinary light work he would place his anvil on the ground, but for heavy work and tire setting a stump had to be firmly set in the ground to which the anvil was at-On one occasion, near old Fort Laramie, Elder Lambson, assisted by two skilled blacksmiths who were under his direction, measured out, welded and set eighty-five tires in one day.

ATTACKED BY INDIANS.

During his pioneer life, Brother Lambson had several thrilling experiences while serving as a protector of the Saints against Indian galds and dangers of this kind. Perhaps the most dangers of this kind. Perhaps the most thrilling of these experiences occurred while he and Elder Weatherbee were journeying with an ox team towards Winter Quarters in Nebraska. Near the Elk Horn river they were suddenly attacked by Indians, who were stripped to the skin, but well armed with guns and other weapons. The brethren were unarmed, but before the red men could attempt to shoot, each grappled with an Indian, and a death struggle ensued. Elder Weatherbee was mortally shot, but Elder Lambson, who had been severely wounded, was miraculously delivered, the Indians for some cause taking fright before they had fully accomplished their purpose. The marks of this encounter Elder Lambson carried with him throughout his life.

Deceased Left a Note for His Wife in Colorado Who Was Suing Hinr For Divorce.

Napoleon Latiant, aged 30, a bricklayer by trade, committed suicide in a rooming house where he was lodging at 252 south West Temple street, some time during the night. The body was not discovered until the chambermald tried to gain entrance to his room at 12:30 this afternoon. Finding the door locked, and there being no response to her repeated knockings, she gave the alarm and the room was entered. The young man had apparently elected to die by the strychnine route, as a bottle so labeled was found in the room. He had made every preparation for death. Enclosed in a note addressed to O'Donnell, the aindertaker, was another note addressed to his wife. It was scaled neil, the undertaker, was another note addressed to his wife, it was sealed and his instructions were that it should be delivered to his wife, unopened. From other sources it is learned that his wife, who is now in Canyon City, Colo, was suing him for divorce. She and the parents of the deceased, who reside at Florence, Colo, were notified of the tragedy by wire this afternoon. Action Coroner Dana T. Smith viewed Acting Coroner Dana T.
