DIRT FLYING ON ROAD TO THE PARK

Active Construction Commences On Oregon Short Line Branch North of St. Anthony.

REASON OF FEVERISH HASTE.

Foreign Road From Denver to Seattle Via Yellowstone and Boise Ready to Build.

MAY BE COLORADO & SOUTHERN.

Interesting Developments Are Now Due in the State of Idaho, the Next Battlefield

Active construction on the new branch of the Oregon Short Line to Yellowstone park has commenced and grading outfits are scattered all along the line from St. Anthony to the vicinity of Marysville, a distance of 40 miles. A gentleman who has returned from that section stated this morning that all hands have got down to work in feverish haste and it is reported that the new Baxter, Straw & Storrs construction company has agreed to get the grade finished on the first 40 miles before the winter sets in in earnest. If this should be correct there will have to be some tail hustling done, especially as the grade will be from 6 to 14 feet high in spots, that, adjoining the St. Anthony townsite.

The reason for this unbecomingly haste when otherwise the contractors could go along comfortably and have the line completed by June 1 in time for the opening of the Yellowstone park season is believed to be on account of the Colorado, Wyoming & Idaho, which is threatening to build a road from Denver through to Seattle via the edge of Yellowstone park and Boise.

IS IT COLORADO & SOUTHERN?

It is confidently predicted, and also schematically depicted by interested parties, that this new project is a Colorado & Southern extension. All signs point to that way. The public, from past experience, notably the Western Pacific, Salt Lake Road, etc., is inclined to believe that when all signs point to a certain road being behind a new project and when the officials of that road emphatically plead not guilty, that the reason for the proceeding and safety rest only will tell whether or not the Colorado & Southern is backing the project. In the meantime it will be recalled that the C. & S. some time ago advertised its stock $100,000, and to date nothing has been done to warrant such an increase.

CHANGES ITS NAME.

Be that as it may, the Colorado, Wyoming & Idaho has decided on Union Pacific and Oregon Short Line territory. Furthermore last week at a meeting in Cheyenne the company changed its name to the Denver, Yellowstone & Pacific road, and is inclined to believe that when all signs point to a certain road being behind a new project and when the officials of that road emphatically plead not guilty, that the reason for the proceeding and safety rest only will tell whether or not the Colorado & Southern is backing the project. In the meantime it will be recalled that the C. & S. some time ago advertised its stock $100,000, and to date nothing has been done to warrant such an increase.

ROUTE OF NEW LINE.

The road is projected from Denver to Seattle, Wash., and the men behind the project say it is an independent line and will have tracks of its own into Denver. The surveys have been completed from Denver to a point 20 miles southwest of Grand Encampment, Wyo. From Denver the projected line runs through Hillsboro, then to Fort Collins, running about midway between the Union Pacific and Colorado & Southern roads until Fort Collins is reached. When it branches off and follows a westerly grade into and through North park, passing at Walden and other points, then from North park the road passes through Grand Encampment, Surtout, crosses the Union Pacific at Baseline, thence runs in a northwesterly direction through the Atlantic City and South Pass country in Wyoming, just south of Yellowstone park, and on through Idaho to Seattle.

SOME CONNECTIONS.

It will make connections with the Oregon Short Line in Western Idaho or with the Northern Pacific at a point 100 miles west of the Idaho line in the state of Washington. Connections with the Oregon Short Line will probably cause a split between the Northern Pacific and the Colorado Pacific, which controls the Oregon Short Line.

READY TO BUILD.

George M. Hohl, the general manager of the new company, is quoted as saying that the route has been surveyed and contracts for construction with the C. & S. in the near future, just as soon as the tenders are all in.

Italy Would Do Her Duty.

New York, Oct. 16.—A cable dispatch from Rome to the Herald says: In replying to questions from newspapers as to what attitude Italy would really take in the event of a conflict between Great Britain and Germany, says that Italy is bound by an alliance, whose termination is still far off, that the Italian cabinet is not engaged in a two-faced policy, but observes correctly and strictly the part of the triple-alliance, which is a guarantee of peace, and an elimination of danger, but that, in case it would not be possible to alter this object, Italy would fulfill her duty with the same firmness with which she defends the peace of Europe up to the present time.
