A POPULAR VICE.

A FEW days ago a youg man in New York and another in Kentucky were sent to insane asylums having lost their reason through inordinate cigarette smoking. The effects of this pernicious practice upon young persons, particularly these with nervous temperaments, are rapid and striking. The consumption of the pestiferous little cigarette has increased to a won-liable statistics, about 12,000,000 gallons of brandy per annum. We are not going to moralize on that. But the yearly product of that alconolic article in the same country is only 13,-000,000 gallons. French brandy is im-ported into this country in large quan-tively, that if it be taken habitually, even in comparatively very small doses, uses up twelve thirteenths of her own production of cognac, where do the American importers obtain their sup-ply of "genuine French brandy?" This is answered by certain scientific experts to whom samples of the "genuine" article have been submitted for analysis. They say that most of it is "cheap German spirits iavored with cunningly devised ex-tracts and cordials." The prices that people who "want the best" are pay-ing for these decoctions are astoniab.
