BREVITIES.

Ristori is studying English.
Australia is producing pearls.
Beecher's income is $38,548.
Self-opening umbrellas are a new invention.
Boston pays $100,000 a month for the atricals.
Twenty thousand dollars have been paid in Paris for a ball dress.
The Orissa famine left 1500 orphans dependent upon the government.
Make marriage a matter of moral judgment.
Philadelphia has one dwelling-house to every eight inhabitants.
The Sultan is modelling the municipality of Constantinople on that of Paris.
Never find fault, unless it is perfectly certain that a fault has been committed.
The well-dressed deer remains a perpetual monument to the deer.
A musician in Brownlow's dominions has vented his feelings in a "Bloody Morn Polka."
"Matchless misery" has been defined to be to have a cigar and nothing to light it with.
A German genius has recently invented a watch which runs a year without winding.
The London Times's Paris correspondent styles Rouher the "Richelieu of the Second Empire."
The losses in the United States by fire, during one month, were $4,329,000, not counting fires of less than $20,000.
More than one fourth of all the railroad in the world is in the United States.
Ill-made fortunes, like ill-made candles, they are apt to smother their own splendor with their own grease.
A lady of more wealth than culture applied at a Boston book-store recently for Dickens' novel, "David Copperhead."
A lady was seen chasing a horse-car, lately, which was finally stopped. She said to the conductor that she believed she had left a little bundle in the car. It proved to be a baby six months old.
An improvement has been introduced in yacht building, which, however, is applicable to all kinds of sailing craft. The masts are surrounded in the "step" with india rubber springs, instead of being fastened by wedges. This plan is said to diminish the strain on the masts, and also to increase the speed of the vessel.
"My son, would you suppose that the Lord's Prayer could be engraved in a space no larger than the area of a nickel cent?"
"Well, yes, father; if a cent is as big in everybody's eye as it is in yours, I think there would be no difficulty in putting it on about four times."
At Mr. Bridgman's trout pond at Bellows falls, there is a pair of Siamese twin trout, hatched a few mornings since. They have two distinct heads, but are connected below the middle from their heads, and have but one tail and one umbilical sack. They are said to be as lively as possible.
Boarding houses in Springfield are known as "hash-mills," "white pine biscuit factories," and "sewed and pegged pie establishments." Hash itself has risen to the dignity of "satinnet pudding." The papers are jubilant over the prospect of a first-class boarding house, an establishment which Springfield has never yet known.
A gentleman having got out of patience with one of his servants, called him in, and after giving him a sound scolding wound up with the stereotyped phrase, "We must part." The servant stood scratching his head for a moment, and then said, with a look of much concern, "Sorry am I that we must part, yer honor; but if we must, may I make so bold as to ask where your honor's going?" The fellow got another trial.
In confirmation of the theory advanced by Agassiz in regard to the beneficial effect of fish diet, a London practitioner relates a remarkable instance of its recuperative power which occurred in his own practice. A wealthy gentleman and his lady living in the city, in broken health and without offspring, applied to him for treatment. He advised a residence upon the seashore, and a diet consisting principally of sea-bird and other fish, with milk. After following the prescription for one year, the gentleman and his wife returned to London restored to health, and bringing with them a healthy child.
"Talk about eddication," said Mr. Slow, sentimentally, "I don't believe in it. Brag about your school houses, and the benefits they will be to posterity—I'd like to know what posterity has done for us that we should do so much for them. Do to others as they do to us, is good Scripture enough for me, and as for eddication, nobody could ever accuse me of having too much of it." Here Mr. Slow paused a moment, and we presumed to ask him what he was disposed to do with regard to the education of his own children. "Why, just think of the education I have given 'em," said he; "they know already more'n I do; and as for Mary Ann, she was taugthened with everything—playing on the pianer, making pictures with woolen yarn, and all sorts of jim-cracks, and now the doctors say her secondary habits is killing her, and I have to pay two dollars a day for her to take paralytic shocks to cure her. There is eddication for you." Mr. Slow glared at us after this speech, and expected us to say something in reply, but we could not; his argument as he would have called it, was crushing.
