

RICHARDS CASE IS UP FOR TRIAL

Doctor Charged With Malpractice
Arraigned Before Judge
Armstrong Today.

JURORS ARE BEING EXAMINED

On Change of Venue Case Was Taken Before Justice Timpson, Where Defendant Was Held.

The case of the State vs. Francis Richards, charged with committing an abortion on the person of Carrie James, on Nov. 28, 1907, is on today before Judge Armstrong's division of the Third district court. Attorney James Ingelbrecht appearing for the defendant, spent the morning in questioning jurors as to their competency to serve on the case, the examination not being concluded at the noon recess.

The complaint in the case was issued by Dr. Richards, who was arrested and taken before Justice Timpson on the 18th of December, 1907. Here defendant, by his attorneys, under the claim that he could not secure a fair hearing in this court, secured a change of venue and the case was transferred to precinct No. 1, Justice Neple's court. At the conclusion of the hearing Justice Timpson bound defendant over to the district court in the sum of $1,000 and the woman in the case, Carrie James, was held in the sum of $100 to appear as a witness.

IDAHO-NEVADA LINE.

Such a Project Believed By Ely to Be Headed That Way.

Special Correspondence.
Ely, Nev., April 17.—Talk in this city's railroad circles is mostly about the rumored building of a new line from Twin Falls, Ida., to Wells, Nev. On this point, the White Pine News says:

"Information has been received here of survey which has been commenced for construction of a line from Twin Falls, Ida., to Wells, Nev."

The Nevada Southern will probably develop to be an extension of the Oregon Short Line. It is believed that that road will continue through to Goldfield and Tonopah, routing through this district, under a separate organization but in reality as a Southern Pacific line.

That the road will come south from Wells is indicated by the name which has been chosen for it, whether or not such extension is made, this notion of Nevada will benefit much from the construction, being put in direct touch with the wonderful agricultural country which is rapidly being made about Twin Falls and which it is predicted will be made one of the world's largest and choicest garden spots in the next few years. Also the line will give a much shortened route to the timber and agricultural sections of Oregon. Supplies from this quarter must now be hauled either by way of San Francisco or Salt Lake, the detour in either case being long and adding greatly to the cost of materials.

SHE NEVER "SAW" MONEY.
Florence Hull has filed suit against the "See America First" league to secure $300 for back salary as its stenographer. She claims she acted in the capacity indicated for a period of more than four months but did not receive any money for it. Among the defendants named in the suit are Governor Cutler and Fisher Harris.

M. LEVY DISCHARGED.
District Attorney Loofbourrow yesterday dismissed the information charging M. Levy, arrested on the charge of receiving stolen goods, on the ground of sufficient evidence to convict being unobtainable. The two men who sold the stolen goods to Levy were convicted and sentenced to one year each in the penitentiary.

ORCHESTRA SUES CAFE.
The Roumanian orchestra recently employed by the Louvre cafe to dispense sweet strains while the patrons regaled themselves with choice viands have filed suit against the cafe owners for $217, alleged to be due on their playing contract. It appears that the star member of the aggregation, one Rosetta Seneschi, was ill and unable to play with the orchestra. The manager of the players offered to fill her place, but the cafe management refused to accept a substitute. The orchestra claims to have put in over time to the extent of $80 worth, which is sued for in connection with the $217 contract money.

WOMAN IN THE CASE.
Mary W. French yesterday filed suit for divorce against her husband, Frank D. French. The complaint charges French with living with another woman, furnishing her with the necessities of life, while neglecting to provide for his wife.

The couple were married at Denver Sept. 2, 1891. Mrs. French came after him, but he has failed to provide for her since that time, according to her complaint. She asks for $100 per month alimony, and $100 suit money.

ing and discharged on motion of Atty. Soren X. Christensen, counsel for the accused. It was alleged that on the night of April 1 the defendant made an attack upon Yokoto, cutting the latter with a knife. On the stand this morning, the complaining witness did not know anything about the affair; said he did not see Tachebana strike him and saw no knife. The case was therefore dismissed as stated.

HARD TO CONVICT.

Case Against Frank Lionetti Is Dismissed by Judge Armstrong.

The case of the state against Frank Lionetti, charged with improper relations with a girl under the age of 18 years, was dismissed in Judge Armstrong's court this morning on account of lack of evidence with which to convict. The motion was made by Dist. Atty. Loofbourrow, who stated that the evidence at hand was insufficient to secure a conviction of the defendant. This is the case in which a trip was made by county officials to New York for the purpose of apprehending Lionetti, who made his "get-away" after complaint had been filed against him by the girl. It is said the girl now refuses to testify against him, although at the time of his arrest Lionetti was said to be willing to marry her, or to hand her over several hundred dollars, all of which she then refused and said she wanted revenge.

MACE DUE TO EXPLAIN.
G. Fred Anderson, principal of the Sandy schools, has filed a complaint against Joseph Mace of Sandy, charging that he is guardian of two boys, twelve and thirteen years of age, and the age of 14 and 12 years, respectively, has not sent the boys to school, according to the statute in such cases made and provided. The elder Mace will be brought before Justice Anton Lundberg, where he will be called upon to explain why he has not sent the boys to school.

MRS. ASHWORTH ASKS DIVORCE.
Sarah B. Ashworth, wife of Atty. Thomas F. Ashworth, this morning filed suit for divorce in the Third district court, alleging that for more than a year past defendant has failed to contribute to the support and maintenance of plaintiff and their child in any manner whatsoever. Plaintiff further alleges that defendant is an unfit person to be the father of the child, and asks the court to grant her a decree of divorce, $50 attorneys fees and the custody of the child aforesaid.

IN FEDERAL COURT.
The case of Terry Kelliger vs. the Consolidated Flagstaff is being tried before Judge Marshall in the U. S. district court today.

INSPECTION A SUCCESS.
National Guardsmen Show Up Well
Before Regular Army Officer.

Company H, First Infantry, and the First battery of the national guard, were put through a course of sprouts last evening, in the annual government inspection at the state armory, by Maj. May of the Fifteenth infantry of the war department. That the boys made a fine showing goes without saying. Company H turned out with only two men absent, and the battery had over 90 per cent of its strength present. The inspecting officer put the boys through the various evolutions peculiar to their respective branches of the service, looked over their arms and equipment carefully, and while he said nothing "for publication," it was evident that he was very much gratified with the results of the inspection. Capt. Cavanaugh, Lieut. Potter and five ladies from Fort Douglas were present to enjoy the evening. At the remaining commands of the guard make as good a showing as those which turned out last evening, all citizens interested in the guard will have just reason to extend felicitations to the state troops.

OFFICIAL RECEPTION.
Gov. Cutler and Staff to Receive Officers at Fort Douglas.

On Thursday evening, Gov. Cutler will receive in his official capacity the commanding officer of the Fifteenth regiment of the United States army, together with his official staff. This will be the occasion of a display of state and national honors, as it will be the first official call of the commanding officer at Fort Douglas on the excutive of the state. Gov. Cutler will be assisted in the reception by the members of his official staff. The call will be a formal affair, and such an one as is usual in case of the arrival of a new commandant at an army post within the borders of any state.

OPULENT DRUNK.

F. H. Brown Has Bank Book Showing
$1,200 Deposit When Arrested.

A man giving the name of F. H. Brown was arrested on Commercial street this morning by Officer Curran on the charge of drunkenness. About an hour before his arrest, he staggered into police headquarters and requested some denizen of Commercial street. The man's mouth was bleeding and he claimed he had been assaulted. He was advised to go to bed and left the station with apparently that intention. When Officer Curran saw the man he had an armful of ice cream packages and was throwing them about the streets. He is now in the drunkhouse, where he will be cared for until sober. The man had a bank book showing a deposit of $1,200.

"AUNT JANE" LAID TO REST.

President Joseph F. Smith Speaks at Funeral of Aged Colored Woman.

Mrs. Jane Manning James, the aged, colored woman who died last week, was buried yesterday, the funeral services being held at the Eighth ward meetinghouse, commencing at 2 o'clock. The house was crowded, many in the congregation being of her own race. Flowers in profusion were contributed by friends who had learned to love the deceased for her undaunted faith and goodness of heart.

A sketch of her life, as dictated by Mrs. James, was read by Mrs. Elizabeth J. D. Roundy, and the speakers were President Joseph F. Smith and Bishop O. A. Clawson. Bishop Oscar F. Hunter presided and the services, and music was furnished by the ward choir. The remains were laid to rest in the city cemetery.

MUST PLANT TREES.

The park commissioners yesterday decided to notify all property owners in the three parking districts on Brigham, Sixth East and Second South streets, to comply with the improvement specifications given them, or consent to the removal of their property to the board and the cost, including advertising, etc., will be assessed against the property concerned. The response to the suggestions of the board for the beautifying of the streets has been gratifying, but a few have not complied with the requirements.

SOLDIER IS RELEASED.

Private Maggert of the Fifteenth infantry, stationed at Fort Douglas, held in the county jail for four or five days past on the charge of associating with a girl under 18 years of age, was released yesterday by the officers on his word that he would appear when wanted. Maggert was in the office of the county attorney for some time Monday afternoon, and the showing was made that he had a good record in the Philippines and in this country, and upon the showing that the girl admitted a number of previous offenses the soldier was released, with a warning against like offenses in the future.

FREE EMPLOYMENT AGENCY.

It was announced at the Volunteers of America headquarters this morning that a register has been installed for men who are out of work to register their names and trade and the Volunteers will do all in their power to secure employment for the unfortunate. It is to be a sort of employment agency, but no charge will be made. Only one new medical case was reported this morning, but there were eight cases yesterday.

HOBSON LECTURE TONIGHT.

Captain Richmond P. Hobson, formerly of the navy, and congressman from Alabama, who is to lecture in the Lyric theater this evening, was due to arrive in this city at 12:50 p. m. today, over the Rio Grande. But, as he did not appear on that train, it is supposed that he was on the train due to arrive at 3:20 p. m. Captain Hobson is one of the most interesting characters in the navy and in congress. He has spoken in Salt Lake before, so he is no stranger here, and the Lyric theater is well filled this evening when he lectures on "America as the Mistress of the Sea."

Impressive Services Held in Granite
State Tabernacle This Afternoon.

Funeral services over the remains of Harrison T. Shurtleff, of Miller ward, were held today at the Granite tabernacle, commencing at 12:30 o'clock. There was a large gathering of relatives, neighbors and friends at the observance. The deceased was one of the early settlers of Salt Lake valley, coming here with his parents in 1847. He was highly respected in the community, as was attested by the speakers in this afternoon, who bore testimony to his worth as a citizen. The first speaker was Elder George Taylor, himself an early settler and a life-long friend and companion of Mr. Shurtleff. Bishop Orrin P. Miller, who had been acquainted with the deceased ever since he could remember, followed, and others who paid tribute of respect to the departed were Bishop Daniel McKee of Granger, Elder John Henry Smith, Pres. FOUR MEN SUSPECTED

Police Arrest Two in Amussen Jewelry Store Burglary Case and Seek Couple More.

The police are now thoroughly convinced that four men were mixed up in the robbery of the Amussen jewelry store Sunday afternoon, when nearly $500 worth of gold rings and chains were stolen, and they are also convinced that they have securely locked behind the bars two of the burglars. Last night officer J. M. Lyon observed a man trying to break through the door of the Amussen jewelry store, and promptly placed the man under arrest and turned him over to Detectives Shannon and Wilson. The detectives searched the man and found on him 20 of the stolen rings. The man is evidently a hobo and gave the name of Harry Watson. He was in a beastly state of intoxication when arrested by officer Lyon.

Shortly after the arrest of Watson, Detectives Shannon and Wilson located George Williams, alias J. Wilson. When the latter was found, he threw away a gold ring and fled. The officers captured the man and found the ring. All the rings were identified by E. F. Amussen as his property. While the officers were searching Watson on the street, two shabbily dressed strangers watched them closely and one was heard to remark to the other: "Let's walk by and hear what the officers are saying, but don't recognize Watson." The two men passed the officers and soon disappeared. The police are now trying to locate them.

On motion of Commissioner Cosgriff the appointments were confirmed, the salary of $250 per day for the ladies and $3 per day for Mr. Bennett.

WHY USE YOUR

Letterheads for scratch paper when you can sell your scratch paper so cheap.

CERTAIN INSECTS THAT ARE USEFUL THAT PREY ON HARMFUL KINDS AND THOSE THAT FERTILIZE FLOWERS.

STRANGE AND WONDERFUL.

Are the Ways of the Insect Species on Which We Depend As Allies
Or Servants.

Prof. Titus continued his lectures before the nature study classes at the university on Monday. The exposition dealt largely with those insects that are of use to man, either as his allies in fighting the other insect hordes, or as his servants in honey-making. The lecture was substantially as follows:

The lowest insects among the hymenoptera are the phytophagous group, which are plant feeders. They are divided into two classes, the boring and the sawing kinds. They all have sessile abdomens, closely joined to the body.

THE SAW FLIES.

The sawflies include among others, the willow sawfly, the rose slug, the pear slug, and the currant slug. The larvae of the slugs, which are somewhat common, resemble slimy snails.

The eggs of the pear slug are laid all over the leaves, and hatch in about 10 days. The larva eats only the upper side of the leaves. When mature, the slugs drop to the ground and spin a cocoon. The pear slug feeds on pear and cherry leaves.

The best remedy is to use white hellebore on yard and house plants, and a good Paris green spray on trees. The gall-makers constitute one class of sawflies. Their galls always have an opening, usually on the under side of the leaf or stem.

In all of the phytophagous group of hymenoptera, the abdomen is directly joined to the thorax, and is said to be broadly sessile. All other hymenoptera, the bees, wasps, and ichneumon flies, have petiole abdomens; that is, these insects have slender waists.

THE ICHNEUMON FLIES.

The ichneumon flies are all parasitic; that is, they live on or in other insects. They are decidedly beneficial. One of them, the ensign fly, so called from its elevated abdomen, feeds on cockroaches. Another group, the braconids, many of which feed on a plant lice, are usually small, and in the case of those feeding on caterpillars, a large number may hatch in the body of one worm. There are over 1,000 genera in this group of ichneumons. They feed on almost every other kind of insect. Their common characteristic in form is an abdomen flattened vertically and usually elongated.

FIG INDUSTRY DEPENDENT.

The chalcids are very small and nearly all have a metallic luster. They are all parasitic, the larvae of one group feeding in the joints of grasses and grains, and known as joint worms. Another group are called fig insects. On the latter the fig industry is wholly dependent. They live on the inside of the fig. They look like small billy goats just ready to jump. Without these insects the fig cannot be fertilized, and the fig industry in California failed to mature until the fig insects had been imported from Greece and carried to the colonies. These insects carry the pollen from the male to the female flowers, which are on different trees.

A NEW MARVEL.

From an ordinary cutworm we may secure 2,000 little four-winged chalcids, which have developed from a single egg laid inside the egg from which the cutworm had developed. The cutworm egg is laid by a moth on the alfalfa or other plants. The parasite lays an egg within the egg of the cutworm; the latter hatches out with the chalcid egg still in its body. This egg segments, or divides, in chain-like series, after the cutworm begins to feed till there are thousands of these seed-like larvae, about half of which, after devouring the cutworm, pupate inside the empty skin, and develop into minute winged insects—the chalcid flies.

The gall flies, or more properly the cynipids, since not more than a third of them are gall flies, are divided into three groups: 1. Inquilin parasites or guests living in other insects' homes, but not harming the other insects. The gall flies are commonly found on oaks and rosebushes. The galls of these insects are always closed galls, the only openings being where the adult finally cuts its way out.

The next group, the Prototrypids, include the egg parasites. They are the smallest of insects, most of them only from five to six thousandths of an inch long. They are the most valuable of all insects, because they are parasitic upon the eggs of various other insects. They pass their larvae life within the egg of the host.

THE STINGERS.

The next four groups, the aculeates, or stingers, are the stinging hymenoptera. The groups are the ants, bees, wasps, and hornets. All the females can sting, excepting some of the ants. The ants are called formicids. There are always three castes in a ant colony—males, females, and workers—and sometimes a fourth caste, the soldiers. Some have still other castes—nurses, guards, miners, etc. Ants are the best examples of communicative workers to be found anywhere.

INTERESTING LOCAL WASPS.

Some of the more interesting of the local wasps are the jug-makers. These construct small clay jugs under stones or on the leaves of sagebrush. They store food in this jug, then lay an egg in it and seal it up, so that the larvae may have a supply of food.

In the same group come the social wasps. These include the paper makers, which make the paper from wood and construct the hanging wasp and hornet nests in trees and on buildings. The bald faced hornet and the yellow-jacket are among them. Only the females hibernate over winter; the males die in the fall.

The velvet ants are a class of wasps, usually hairy and bright-colored. They are seen running about the ground. Only the males are seen. The larvae of the cuckoo bees live in the homes of other insects, eating up the food intended for the larvae of the host.

The caterpillar stores include wasps that store caterpillars in burrows for the food of the larvae of the wasps. One of the principal wasps we have catches cicadas and carries them off to its burrow, to provide its larvae with food. The insects so stored are usually paralyzed by stinging and not killed. The thread waisted wasps store their burrows with caterpillars; the muddaubers store the cells in their nests with spiders.

HONEY AND OTHER BEES.

The hymenoptera are the highest family of insects, and the bees stand at the head of the list. A hive contains a queen, workers and drones. The queen bee passes from cell to cell, laying eggs. She lays a female egg in a worker cell and a drone egg in a drone cell. Both kinds are fed on the same food for three days, then a queen is chosen and her food differs thereafter from that of the workers. The queen bee stings only a rival queen. She will not sting anything else. Masterlinck's "Life of the Bee" is worth reading.

In the bumblebees, the queens hibernate but the males die in autumn. They are very useful in pollinating the clovers. Among all hymenoptera only the females ever sting; the males are stingless.

Among the solitary bees some live in cities, but are in pairs, each pair having a home of their own. Others live a sort of hermit life, each pair having a cell apart from the neighborhood of others.

There are a few groups of bees that live in the nests of other bees, eating the stored food before the host larvae hatch.
