

MRS. MOLLER'S LOVE WORTH A FORTUNE

Husband Now Sues for $20,000
Damages for Loss of Wife's Affections.

ALFRED JENSEN DEFENDANT.

Another Chapter in the Domestic Affairs of German Family is Aired in Court.

Placing the affection and companionship of his wife at a valuation of $20,000, and claiming that he had been deprived of those by one, Alfred Jensen, Nicholas Moller has entered suit against the said Alfred Jensen to recover the sum named as damages.

The complaint filed in the district court is brief, but pointed, and alleges in effect that plaintiff was living happily with his wife, Johanna Moller, when defendant entered their home, gained the affections of Mrs. Moller, led her from the path of rectitude, and that finally, on March 15, 1908, persuaded and enticed her to leave her husband entirely. For being deprived of the comfort, society, aid and assistance of his wife, the plaintiff believes that he is entitled to the sum named in the suit.

A few weeks ago Moller went to the office of the county attorney and complained that his wife had eloped with Jensen. Mrs. Moller later appeared and said that she had left home because her husband was cruel to herself and child. She subsequently instituted divorce proceedings, and the case is now pending in the court. Moller is a German, and Mrs. Moller being nearly 30 years younger than the former.

TORN DOWN WALL.

Suit was filed today in the district court by Frank Larson against the Utah Light & Railway company, the complaint alleging that the defendant company entered upon the land of the plaintiff, City View Addition, and tore down a retaining wall, causing a loss to the owner of $300.

PRESENTED WITH WATCH.

Herbert A. White, Veteran Chorister Of Second Ward, Tender Surprise.

Herbert A. White, who for nearly 17 years has been chorister for the Second ward choir, was the recipient of a pleasant surprise last evening at the Second ward meetinghouse on the occasion of the usual choir practice. After a few selections were rendered, Bishop Heber C. Iverson, on behalf of the choir, presented Mr. White with a handsome gold watch as a mark of appreciation for his long and faithful service. The recipient was somewhat overcome but mustered words enough to thank all for their thoughtful and appreciative gifts. The bishop and his counselors made a few remarks, after which songs, recitations, refreshments and dancing were the order of the evening.

The watch bore the inscription "From the Second ward choir to H. A. W., March 18, 1908."

WORK BECOMING SLACK.

At Mines of Sunnyside, Castle Gate, Winter Quarters and Kenilworth.

State Coal Mine Inspector J. E. Pettit reports that developments in Utah coal properties are less at the present time than for many years past. For instance, the big mines at Sunnyside, Castle Gate, Winter Quarters and Kenilworth are working but four days in the week at the most.

At Sunnyside, the Utah Fuel company had off fully 500 men, and of the 500 only an average of 120 are fired daily. At the other places named the working forces have not been much reduced materially, but two-thirds of the week is all the time that is devoted to mining. The men let out at Sunnyside were for the most part foreigners.

The Consolidated Fuel company is opening up a new mine in Miller Creek canyon, and the people of Price have been asked to help build a railroad from the latter place to Miller creek coal beds, a distance of 22 miles.

BINGHAM HOUSE CLEANING.

The Bingham town council and the county commissioners are holding a conference today, relative to carrying out the request of the state board of health that a sewer be constructed through the canyon. Heretofore, the attitude of the town has been one of antagonism toward the board, so that it seemed as though nothing would be done. But in the way of sanitary improvement, but of late, a change has come over the spirit of their dreams, and the town council is more inclined to listen to reason. It looks now as though the very much needed sewer would be built.

SULLIVAN FACES HIS ACCUSERS

"I guess I got cold feet," said the witness.

Deming insisted that the district attorney and deputy sheriffs told him he had no show in his trial and advised him to plead guilty or that it would go harder with him.

ESCAPE PLANNED.

Atty. Bailey brought out the fact that the expression "bump off" was a convict's expression for killing. Deming declared there had been a plot at the prison to let Sullivan escape from the cell and name of Thomas Howard. The officer said Sullivan had on three shirts and a night gown when he was arrested. He also identified the revolver found in Sullivan's possession.

JOHN FEURY'S TALE.

John Feury was next called. He was queried as to a conversation which took place shortly after the day of the murder, in which Owen and Smith and witness had discussed the murder, and Owen had pleaded guilty to robbery. In order, he said, to escape implication in the murder charge. Also another conversation he held with Owen when Owen had told him Sullivan could prove an alibi, as he was not at the Albany saloon when the murder was committed.

SEVERELY GRILLED.

Witness was severely grilled by County Attorney Hanson, who brought out the fact that Feury had served a term of five years in San Quentin, beginning in 1899, under the name of John Kelly.

"Did you say that Owen said Sullivan was with him at the time of the murder, and that they would still be able to prove an alibi?" asked the attorney.

"Yes, sir, he did," said the witness.

The main testimony of the witness went to show that he was anxious for the acquittal of Sullivan, and had contributed all he had toward the defense of the accused.

ANOTHER CONVICT TESTIFIES.

John Monroe, another convict, was called. The conversation between Monroe, Owen and Feury, shortly after the robbery of the Albany saloon, was detailed. Owen, he said, told him Sullivan was not in the holdup, but that he had blamed Sullivan because the police had told him he had used the name of Sullivan on the night of the murder before the crime was committed, and he was not with him when the Albany bar was robbed," said the witness.

HAD A DOZEN ALIASES.

Monroe related, in reply to questions by County Attorney Hanson, a portion of his history. He had used a dozen false names, he said, at different times, among them being John Burns, which he had used at Castle Gate, in 1902, and at different times he had used the names of Frank Lee and John Lewis.

"Why did you use these names?" asked Attorney Hanson.

"Because I wanted to," said the witness.

"Had you committed some crime which made it advisable for you to use false names?" continued the attorney.

"I refuse to answer the question," said Monroe, decisively.

He was sustained in his refusal to answer, by Judge Armstrong, and the cross-examination was proceeded with.

TOOK UP A COLLECTION.

Monroe admitted that he had taken up the collection among the prisoners at the penitentiary for Sullivan's defense, and said he wanted to see him get free. The witness was straight-forward in his answers, and admitted as much nonchalance that he had served a term for burglary in Washington, and later was sentenced to 11 years in the Utah penitentiary for complicity in a robbery, as if he had been telling of his attendance at a school party. Monroe is under five feet high, of medium build, with light brown hair, black eyes, a clear-cut Roman nose, and black, straight hair. He has seven years yet to serve of his last sentence, and the officials think they have in him about as smooth a criminal as any in the country. He was not shaken in his statements that Owen and Feury had not been at the Albany bar at the time of the holdup and that they had parted before that "job was pulled off."

Monroe was excused and was taken in manacles back to the penitentiary, and Joseph Sullivan, the defendant, was called to the stand.

The reason given by Mrs. Belcher for the discrepancy in her testimony at the preliminary hearing of Sullivan and that given yesterday, was that she had been advised to do so by Attorney Enoch X. Christensen, which Mr. Christensen stoutly denies. He did tell her, he says, to tell the truth when she testified, but nothing further.

The discrepancy relates to the movements of Sullivan and Garcia on the night of Dec. 14 and the early morning of Dec. 15. At the preliminary Mrs. Belcher said she never saw Sullivan and Garcia after midnight, and in her testimony yesterday she swore that both Sullivan and Garcia returned to the old Kimball house on north Main street about 3 o'clock on the morning of the 15th; that Garcia changed his shoes and accompanied her to Main and First South streets, where Garcia waited until she went in a saloon and bought a bottle of beer. They then returned and found Sullivan in the room, where the men remained until nearly daylight, drinking and talking between themselves.

TOGETHER AFTER MURDER.

This statement fell like a thunder-bolt among the forces of the defense, for it tends to show that Garcia and Sullivan were together after the murder of McDonald was committed, and that the pair returned to the Belcher home and remained there until nearly daylight.

"Tip" Belcher, husband of Sadie, testified that Sullivan visited the Jubilee saloon in Commercial street the night before the crime, when he inquired for Garcia. Belcher and his wife both said they hoped to get off easy for their testimony against Sullivan.

James McGivern, bartender at the Continental saloon, told of the meeting of Garcia, Owen and Sullivan at that place. McGivern declared that he heard Sullivan say he was in a hurry to get away, as he wanted to catch a train out of the city during the night.

J. W. Leonard, D.D.S.

SULLIVAN'S QUERY.

William J. Irvine, a guard at the penitentiary, told of having met Sullivan on the afternoon of Dec. 10, the day the latter was released from the penitentiary. Sullivan asked him if $3,000 would assist any in releasing Abe Majors from the penitentiary. Irvine said that Sullivan said to him at the time: "There wouldn't be anything to it if it hadn't been for Owen. He couldn't keep his mouth shut."

REVOLVER IDENTIFIED.

Richard D. Millett, of 559 east South Temple street, identified the Sullivan revolver as one which had been stolen from his residence on Nov. 1, by porch robbers, who took also a quantity of valuable jewelry.

Soren X. Christensen took the stand and denied that he had advised Mrs. Belcher to change her story; he had told her to tell the truth when she testified, and nothing more.

PORTLAND OFFICER CALLED.

Policeman James F. Anderson, of Portland, who arrested Sullivan after his flight to Oregon, said Sullivan had denied ever being in Salt Lake, and the name of Thomas Howard. The officer said Sullivan had on three shirts and a night gown when he was arrested. He also identified the revolver found in Sullivan's possession.

District Attorney Loofbrow then announced that the state would rest its case, and Attorney Vickery, for the defense, asked that the case then be adjourned until the next day. The witnesses he wished to place on the stand were three convicts at the penitentiary, namely, Richard Deming, John Feury and John Munroe.

PROVO CONTRACT LET.

The state board of insanity today let contracts for the building of a new lavatory at the Mental hospital at Provo, and repairs and improvements at the old hospital. The main testimony of the witness went to show that he was anxious for the acquittal of Sullivan, and had contributed all he had toward the defense of the accused.

The successful bidders were Holmes & Watkins, of this city. The figures submitted by them were but $9.34 less than the next highest bidder was willing to do the work for, and there was not much more than $200 difference in any of the bids from the lowest. The work to be done was very close. The grounds to the west of the Mental hospital are to be somewhat enlarged, and a new cement fence and substantial gates will be built in accordance with the proposed change. Arthur Dixon, of Provo, secured the contract for these improvements, the work to cost the state $420.

WESTERN MARKET LETTER.

Special Correspondence.
Kansas City Stock Yards, March 16.—Cattle supplies last week were only 30,000 head, a decrease of 25 per cent from same week a year ago. It was only natural that the market should advance, and 15 to 25 cents was added to all classes. Run is 9,000 today, market strong on killing grades, strong to 10 higher on stockers and feeders, which have been affected sympathetically in the last week by the advance in killing grades. The Lockhart steers furnish a good gauge of the market, selling today at $5.80, 20 cents above a week ago. A train of steers from Loveland, sold here today, horned steers at $5.55, deerhorned at $5.60, and the shipment were well pleased. Colorado feeders have reached $4.50 recently, and stockers $4.65. Top on fed steers today is $6, and choice heifers frequently sell up to $5.50. In heavy cows $4.15. Dealers generally believe that present good prices will hold good, or be added to, in the near future, although strenuous efforts from buyers to effect some pretty good breaks are occasionally made. The available supply is certainly below requirements at present, and to what extent this develops in the next few weeks depends on the trend of prices.

Supply of sheep and lambs last week was 26,000 head, smallest run this year, and 13,000 head less than same week last year. The market advanced 15 to 50 cents, and this good gain is followed today with a rise of 10 to 20 cents, and all hands excited about the fact that the market is fairly good. Lambs sold today at $7.10 to $7.45, ewes at $5.85 to $5.90, yearlings worth $6.40 to $6.75, wethers $6 to $6.25. Goats sold last week at $4.40 to $4.60 in heavy cows, and count of scarcity of the latter. Light runs and good prices seem to be assured for the next few weeks.

MUSIC STUDENTS

Should Have Steady Nerves.

The nervous system of the musician is often very sensitive, and any habit like coffee drinking may so upset the nerves as to make regular and necessary daily practice, next to impossible. I practice from seven to eight hours a day and study Harmony two hours. writes a Mich. music student. "Last September I was so nervous I could practice only a few minutes at a time and Mother said I would have to drop my music for a year."

"This was terribly discouraging, as I couldn't bear the thought of losing a whole year of study. Becoming convinced that my nervousness was caused largely by coffee, and seeing Postum so highly spoken of, I decided I would test it for awhile."

"Mother followed the directions carefully and I thought I had never tasted such a delicious drink. We drank Postum every morning instead of coffee, and by November I felt more like myself than for years, and was ready to resume my music."

"I now practice as usual, do my studying and when my day's work is finished I am not any more nervous than when I began."

"I cannot too highly recommend Postum to musicians who practice half a day. My father is a physician and recommends Postum to his patients. Words cannot express my appreciation for this most valuable health beverage, and experience has proven its superiority over all others." "There's a Reason."

MATERIAL FOR COMING CAMPAIGN

Congressmen Busy at National Capital in Effort to Make It.

A BOOM FOR CHAMP CLARK.

Representative Dailzell Names Him for Speaker if Democrats Win Next House—Liquor Question.

Special Correspondence.
Washington, March 13.—The Democrats in the house have within the past month made so many political speeches in which they have charged that the industrial depression is a "Republican panic" that the Republicans have been spurred to answer the arguments to the best of their ability. So far it's a game of "give and take." The people in the galleries after hearing such a ready and pleasing talker as Champ Clark are mighty apt to think that for the Democrats facts have been presented that could not possibly be answered. But then came along Congressman Dailzell of the Pittsburgh district. He's a veteran legislator and one of the best equipped debaters in the house. He took occasion to insist that under Democratic administration there was nothing but hard times and managed to stir up his party associates to a high pitch of enthusiasm by declaring that things cannot be improved by electing a Democratic president. In fact the Pennsylvania member simply hooted at the idea that his own party could be defeated next November, no matter who the candidates might be.

POPULARITY OF CHAMP CLARK.

In spite of his intense Republicanism, Dailzell is gracious enough to say that he hopes if God should bring such punishment upon the country as to permit the election of a Democratic house that Champ Clark will be the speaker. When he made that statement on the floor it was applauded vociferously on both sides of the big hall, and Clark smiled and bowed his acknowledgments in a manner that clearly indicated that "Barkis is willin'." While this applause was ringing through the hall it was noticed that all the Democrats joined in with the exception of De Armond of Missouri and Jones of Virginia. The latter is a member who tried this session to have John Sharp Williams denied the privilege of naming the minority members of the house committees. De Armond is jealous of both Clark and Williams, and that caused the fight between De Armond and Williams in December. They have never yet patched up their differences.

LOOKING OUT FOR EGYPT.

Thistlewood is the name of the new member of the house of representatives recently elected to succeed the late George W. Smith of the Chicago district of Illinois. The first thing Mr. Thistlewood did after being sworn in was to introduce a bill for the erection of a public building at the town of Muncie, Ind. Thistlewood has been in the house for nearly 20 years, and he hustled continually for the people "down in Egypt," as that part of Illinois is called. By the way, there was a triangular fight at the recent election—two Republican candidates and one Democratic. Thistlewood was the regular nominee for his party. It is stated here that the House of Representatives is pretty strong for Thistlewood, as the anti-saloon people were not favorable to him, and the brewers are said to have aided. This enabled him to pull through by a considerable majority.

WORRIED BY LIQUOR QUESTION.

The legislative workers in the interest of the distilling and brewing interests are anything but happy over the news which comes from Ohio that the legislature is about to pass one of the most drastic local option laws ever enacted. This has emboldened the anti-saloon organizations with headquarters in Washington to work all the harder for the bill to make the nation's capital a dry place. Both sides are getting ready for the contest. Those favoring the saloons seem to rely on the House District of Columbia committee, who are claimed to be opposed to reporting any sort of bill this session. If this is true the liquor people will have a decided advantage. It is a question that is worrying perhaps more than half the members of Congress. There is embarrassment for both Democrats and Republicans so long as the matter remains undisposed of; but, the Republicans being responsible for legislation, their political opponents who represent strong prohibitionist districts, are placing the blame on Uncle Joe Cannon and the rules committee, and Democrats from districts which want saloons to exist can tell the boys they did all they could to prevent the bill from passing.

NECESSITY FOR INDUSTRIAL TRAINING.

Representative Davis of Minnesota is pushing an industrial high school bill. He states that he has secured the hearty indorsement of President Roosevelt, who in a speech at Keokuk last October said that at present there is a gap between our primary schools in the country and city which must be closed, and if necessary the nation must help the states to close it. "Too often," remarked the president, "our present schools tend to put altogether too great a premium upon mere literary education and therefore to train away from the farm and the shop. We should reverse this process. Mr. Davis asserts that educational associations and farmers' associations throughout the United States are enthusiastically in favor of his proposition.
