San Francisco, March 7.—The reports from Honolulu detailing the opening proceedings and testimony in the Mrs. Stanford murder case were received here with great interest, especially by the detectives who are engaged in investigating the mysterious circumstances apparently connected with her death. No new developments in the case were made public this morning though the police are making every effort to obtain facts additional to those already announced. The members of the household at the Stanford mansion on California street, as well as those formerly employed there are still being kept under surveillance by the authorities, but it is denied that charges have been made against any of them.

CLOSE OF LECTURE COURSE

That of the M. I. A. Nearing the End—Last Attractions Very Strong.

The Mutual Improvement Association lecture course will be concluded with the appearance of three more lecturers who come within the next week.

Friday evening of this week Lieut. Godfrey Carden, U. S. R. C. S. will appear in Barrett hall in an illustrated lecture on the "American Invasion of Europe," a phase of the battle for commercial supremacy.

Lieut. Carden is essentially a man of machines, with a happy faculty of telling what they mean to the general progress of affairs. He has spent some years in Germany on governmental business looking up comparative virtues of German and American railroad engines, and extended his investigations even into the methods of gun making. Preceding the world's fair he was in Europe arranging for exhibitions of work in steel and iron.

One of his most interesting investigations he had a penchant for the human side of it all. His lecture goes into the heart of the labor problem, tells in an entirely entertaining way of the life of Krupp employees, as they turn out the guns that supply European nations.

The question of the relation between employee and employer, of labor to capital, and of the industrial situation in Europe to national prosperity are all gone into in an instructive and entertaining way. The listener gets an intimate grasp of what America's great commercial activity means practically, and what its opportunities and enemies are in Europe.

After Lieut. Carden on Friday evening, comes William J. Clarke, on Monday evening, March 10. His lecture is also in the field of science, but in modern phases. He deals with the X-ray and electric wrinkles of new invention. For his lecture he carries a great deal of apparatus for practical demonstrations of his subject.

Tuesday evening March 11, Prof. S. H. Clarke of Chicago university, begins a special course of five readings continuing to March 15, with mathematics on the 15th and 16th. His subjects are "King Lear," "Scarlet Letter," "Richard III," "Gareth and Lynette," and "Othello."

WHIPPED HIS WIFE.
Then Tried to Carve a Bartender Friend
To Pieces With a Knife.

After having whipped his wife and then attempted to carve to pieces a bartender, with whom the woman had been associating, J. L. Lewis was placed under arrest last night by Officer Seager on the charge of assault, and is now occupying a cell in the city jail.

It seems that Mrs. Lewis had been taking dinner with the bartender in the restaurant adjoining the Court saloon at Fourth South and State streets when Lewis happened in. He commanded his wife to leave the place and accompany him home. She did so and upon this arrival he at once proceeded to chastise her. After performing that delicate duty he started out after the bartender. He found the latter and at once drew a large knife on him.

Someone in the saloon sent in a call for the police and Officer Seager responded with the patrol wagon. In the meantime, Lewis, in a desperate search was made of the locality and he was found hiding in a chicken coop. Lewis is known to the police by a recent experience when he had J. M. Sullivan arrested for assaulting his wife. He afterwards withdrew the charge, stating that he had been mistaken in the man. His latest episode will not be so easily disposed of.

Invalid for Rheumatism.
I have been suffering for the past few years with a severe attack of rheumatism and found that Ballard's Snow Liniment was the only relief I could get. It was so effective in relieving my pains, March 24th, 1902, John C. Bergman, Kansas, U. S. 20c and $1.00. Sold by Z. C. M. I. Drug Dept.

Hives are a terrible torment to the little folks, and to some older ones. Easily cured. Doan's Ointment never fails. It is a relief, permanent cure. At any drug store, cents.

AMUSEMENTS.

A production like "Mother Goose" is of the sort that makes an audience forgive the doubling of prices. Every seat in the house from top to bottom, and much of the standing room space was occupied last night by an audience that paid the advanced rates charged, but it is safe to say that few if any went away feeling that they had not received the full worth of their money. The big show is all that is advertised, and beyond that little need be said. The curtain has never risen on a production which produced so many people, dancers, singers, marchers, and ballet. No such magnificence in costuming and scenery was ever attempted on our stage, and nothing like the beautiful aerial ballet of seven dancers swung on wires in mid air, and one of them projected far out over the heads of the audience, has ever been attempted in our theatrical annals. An orchestra of 24 and a big chorus filled the auditorium in most charming fashion, and while all of the music was of the light, catchy, extravaganza order, some of it was very effective. A number of choruses, topical songs, etc., were encored almost to the tireless point.

As for the principals, the company perhaps is not so strong as when it was originally brought out, but inasmuch as the only Joe Cawthorne is retained in the part of Mother Goose, as he is in the part of the "Mother Goose," and as none of the other characters have much to do, any shortcomings are barely noticeable. Cawthorne, of course, was a never ending source of merriment and even his long career as a laugh maker, affords nothing more hilarious than his Mother Goose. The one time star and prima donna, Corinne, has the boy's part of Colin, in which Victor Pratt was the original, and she won hearty favor for her singing and acting. Miss Aymar in the part of the daughter of Mother Goose, was very effective in action and cut in her dialogue, though as a singer she labors under some disadvantages. The whole performance, though it called for the heaviest possible merriment and the best of the production of scenery, went with snap, and precision. Indeed there was occasionally so much haste that one had difficulty in following the action. While on this point the chorus might be said to lay more stress on their articulation. If during the night one word of English which they uttered could be heard, we can assure you that the person in the audience who heard it.

The repertoire of the Savage Opera company, which comes to the Theater at the end of the present month, has been finally fixed. The season opens with "Lohengrin," followed by "Carmen," "Tannhauser" for a matinee, and "La Boheme" as a closing bill.

The melo drama "From Rags to Riches" will be the offering at the Grand theater three nights, commencing tomorrow evening. The Harry Corne company, filling in the dates in Ogden, and coming back Monday night.

"I owe my whole life to Burdock Blood Bitters. Scrofulousness covered my body. I seemed beyond cure. B. B. B. has made me a perfectly healthy woman." Mrs. Chas. Hutton, Berville, Mich.

DEATH OF A. M. PALMER.

Famous Theatrical Manager Joins the Great Majority.

New York, March 7.—A. M. Palmer, the theatrical manager, who was stricken yesterday with apoplexy, died today in a hospital. Mr. Palmer was for years the most prominent theatrical manager in America. He was 67 years of age. Mr. Palmer was a native of Connecticut.

For many years, beginning in 1873, he was manager of the Union Square theater, and afterward of Madison Square theater and Palmer's theater.

He was a founder and for fourteen years president of the Actors' Equity association, and one of the founders and vice presidents of the Players' club of this city. He had been manager for Richard Mansfield.

The news of Mr. Palmer's death will cause general sorrow throughout the theatrical profession. He had been in Salt Lake several times in charge of his own personal company, both in Union Square and Madison Square days. He was the manager who was in charge of the Union Square theater at the time "The Orphans" was brought out in America, and for many years some of the foremost plays that the American stage knew were produced under his direction. The plays performed by his company in Salt Lake in the old days were "The Lights of London," "The Banker's Daughter," "Daniel Roach," "Sealed Instructions," "Partners," "Saints and Sinners," and many others.

"A dose in time saves lives." Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup: nature's remedy for coughs, colds, pulmonary diseases of every sort.

About 300 people were present last night to enjoy the first ball given by the Utah Independent Telephone Co. The event took place at Christensen's which produced so many people, dancers, singers, marchers, and ballet. No such magnificence in costuming and scenery was ever attempted on our stage, and nothing like the beautiful aerial ballet of seven dancers swung on wires in mid air, and one of them projected far out over the heads of the audience, has ever been attempted in our theatrical annals. An orchestra of 24 and a big chorus filled the auditorium in most charming fashion, and while all of the music was of the light, catchy, extravaganza order, some of it was very effective.
