

EVENING NEWS. Wednesday, August 3, 1937.

FRAGMENTS.
 SHERIFF TURNER will return to Provo this afternoon.
 EX-JUDGE POWERS is back in Ogden. He threatens to settle in Salt Lake and practice law.
 The Co-op. Furniture Company will on Thursday, give their employees and their families an excursion to the Lake and defray all expense connected with it.
 At Provo, on Monday, August 1st, at 10 a.m. Mrs. Zina Whitney, wife of Bishop O. F. Whitney, presented her husband with a fine daughter. At last accounts both mother and child were progressing nicely.
 The Utah Central southbound passenger was delayed about half an hour this morning. The train had gone several blocks from the depot when a plug blew out of the boiler of the locomotive, which had to return. Another locomotive ran the train out.
 MONG drive-ways are being sunk at Lake Park. There are now six flowing wells in operation there, one of them being on the edge of the water in the lake, and a large quantity of fresh water is obtained. The well which is still in operation, and when it burns as steadily as ever.
 MR. T. O. ANSELL, JR., has just received a new 50-inch bicycle direct from Baltimore. It is called the "New Rapid" and is the first of the kind ever received in this city. The chief distinguishing features of it are its reputed extraordinary strength, built bearing head, long frame and true tangent spokes.
 Graduated.
 Dr. Magie C. Shipp's class in obstetrics, consisting of Mrs. Miranda Bateman, Mrs. Matilda Olsen, Miss Carrie Jensen, Miss Emma Evans, all of Salt Lake County, Miss Esther C. Parkinson, of Idaho, and Miss Emma Lloyd, of Cache County, passed their final examination yesterday before Drs. Bowers and Anderson.
 Summit, Morgan and Wasatch.
 The excursion that leaves this city on Thursday, August 11th, for Cache and Bear Lake valleys, will give the people of the above named counties an opportunity to visit their friends in the north, at an unusually low excursion fare, which chance they should avail themselves of. The excursion train will leave this city at 8 a.m., Park City at 7:15 a.m., and Ogden at 10:30 a.m. See the advertisement in another column.
 Election at Springville.
 "B" writing from Springville, Utah County, says: "Our election passed off very quietly. We have 414 registered voters here, and 318 votes were cast. A great many of our people are away from home, in Colorado and other places, at work. The State Constitution was fully supported by the People's Party. Forty-three votes were polled by the Liberals. The People's Party overpowered their adversaries on municipal, county and legislative tickets."
 Returned.
 The night before last Mr. Joseph Ball Jr. returned from his trip to England. He came in on the D. & R. G. W. He reports a pleasant visit with relatives there and rather a fleet voyage across the Atlantic in the Arizona, which arrived in New York seven days and eleven hours after leaving Liverpool. He came by way of Canada, passing through Kansas and Denver en route to this city. He has been absent a little over two months.
 Bishop Brown Arrested.
 Early this morning deputies Cannon and Franks started northward from this city to find some one accused of violating the Edmunds law. On reaching South Mountain, they stopped at the residence of Bishop Wm. Brown. The Bishop, who is in poor health, was out in the orchard when the officers arrived, and was arrested on the charge of unlawful cohabitation. He was brought to this city and released on $1,000 bail to await trial on an indictment found against him March 23. His attorneys were Mahonri M. Brown and Wm. Moss.
 The Hot Weather.
 We think we are suffering from the heat, but our condition does not begin to compare with that of the inhabitants of the eastern and southern States where the atmosphere is so saturated with moisture that evaporation is almost impossible. The Philadelphia Press thus describes it:
 "Clothing clung to a man like a peevish, and the street steamers and steamers like a hot muggy pug. The windows were streaked with dampness, which stood out in great blotches, the wood work beaded as if it had been thrown into a violent perspiration to stay the fever which filled the air."
 Police Court.
 Chas. F. Jones, who was arrested on the charge of selling liquor on Sunday, at the saloon of James Hegarty, near the D. & R. G. W. depot, waived examination, and gave $500 bonds to await the action of the grand jury. Jacob Moritz and James Hegarty were his sureties.
 A. C. Maguire was taken in by the police last night on the charges of drunkenness and profanity. He was brought before Justice Pyper this morning for arraignment. When asked "What is your plea—guilty or not guilty?" he answered "Sure, an' I dunno," and was sent back to jail until he should become sufficiently sober for trial.
 R. L. Taylor and John Eckford were charged with petty larceny and convicted, received sentence to-day. They were fined $20 each, in default of which they will spend 30 days in the "chain gang." Both have recently served terms in the penitentiary for dishonesty.
 Peculiar Accident.
 Van Walckenburg is the name of the engineer on one of the switch engines in the U. P. yards here. Monday night he met with a peculiar accident. It appears that after work was done he took his engine to the engine house where the fire was blown out. His engine was then run on a side track as usual. The time for the engineer to go off duty, however, although his work was done had not arrived, and he was supposed to be on duty. He dreamed. What the nature of this dream was, has not been authoritatively ascertained, but it is thought he dreamed of a collision or something of that kind.
 At any rate the water gauge exploded and the noise so scared the engineer that he jumped through the cab window. In the fall his arm was broken and his head badly lacerated. It is also stated that he has injured his back. It seems clear that he was dreaming and that he had been in a collision, for, when picked up, he asked: "Was anybody else hurt?" The accident has some elements of humor about it; still it is a very unfortunate one for the victim. He is being cared for at the hospital. — Open Herald.

ADDITIONAL RETURNS.

Tooele County in Doubt—Howe Beats Haynes.
 The number of votes polled in Tooele City was 138, of which the People's ticket received 142. Richard Howe, the People's candidate for Councilor from the South District, received, in Tooele City, 140 votes, while Haynes, his competitor, received but 10. In South Cottonwood Howe received 120 votes to Haynes' 68, and at Sandy Howe was ahead. At Mill Creek the People polled 130 votes to the "Liberals' 92.
 Spencer, the People's candidate for Representative from the Fourteenth Representative District, led Marriott, his competitor, by 61 votes at South Cottonwood, 10 at Sandy and over 100 at Mill Creek.
 At Lehi the Constitution received 10 affirmative votes; the same number were cast for the People's ticket, while that of the "Liberals" received a big 16.
 A TELEPHONE MESSAGE from Tooele City this afternoon confirmed the intelligence that the result in the Eleventh Representative District was still in doubt, but that the indications were that Allen, the "Liberals" candidate, was elected by a small majority, over Houtz, the People's man.
 In Iron County, as far as reported there was little or no opposition to the People's ticket.
 Intelligence from Sanpete is meagre, but indicates little or no opposition to the People's ticket, with rather a light vote.
 IN CACHE COUNTY
 the opposition to the People's ticket was microscopic in dimensions. Logan polled a good vote, viz., 243 out of a possible 311. Of these the "Liberals" ticket received 9. There was but little scotching.
 In the south precinct of Bonanza 100 votes were cast for the People's ticket, 9 for the "Liberals," and 101 for the Constitution.

SUNDAY SCHOOL MEETING.

Sabbath School Workers Confer—Hag Tookover.
 The monthly meeting of the Sunday school officers and teachers of this Stake was held Monday evening, Aug. 1, in the house where the house was well filled and representatives were present from nearly all of the city wards.
 The Third Ward Sabbath school furnished the singing for the occasion aside from that rendered by the congregation.
 Bro. Thomas Curtis, of the Third Ward, delivered a short address on the "Future Prospects of the Youth of Zion," showing, by quoting ancient and modern revelation, that a great work was to be performed in our day, that, as the older members of the Church passed away, the burden of the labor would fall upon the shoulders of the youth. He urged the youth to live pure lives and prepare themselves for the labors they will have to perform.
 A class of boys from the Third Ward Sabbath school, taught by Brother Williamson, answered in concert a number of questions on Book of Mormon history. J. G. Hardy, of the same school, recited a poem by E. R. Snow, entitled "Evening Thoughts, or What It is to be a Saint."
 President John B. Maiben, of the Sanpete Stake, was present and addressed the meeting. He was pleased with this first meeting with the Sunday school workers of this Stake in this building. Among other interesting remarks, he referred to what was said about the Sabbath school work by the late President Taylor and his Counselors in their last epistle to the Saints; expressed the high esteem in which he held the youth of the departed President, and hoped the Saints would ever profit by his worthy example and teachings. He well remembered the time when Sunday Schools were first organized among the Saints and also when the Sunday School Union meetings were attended only by some 15 or 16 persons. The progress made since their commencement was very remarkable. There were still, however, a number of children among us who were not members of the Sabbath school, and it was necessary to use diligence in trying to get these identified with the church.
 Stake Superintendent John C. Cutler stated that some of the members of our Sunday schools had not been as regular as they should, although they may have the privilege of partaking of the sacrament of the Lord's supper in the church.
 The meeting adjourned for one month. The song for the next meeting, "Devotional Hymn" and "Our Mountain Home" Fourth W. The Third Ward Sabbath school will furnish part of the exercises for the occasion.
 E. F. PARKY, Asst. Sec'y.

A Chinese Row.

A row between a number of Celestials took place yesterday afternoon in the back of a lot on the block west of the Court House. One Yee Fy went to Hong Di for $16 the latter owed him for wages. Hong Di said he had no money, and a quarrel ensued. The Mongolians battered each other while with their fists, then each seized the other by the queue, a hair-pulling match ensued. Both rolled on the ground, and yelled, kicked, scratched, pulled and struck at each other in a desperate rough-and-tumble encounter. Finally they separated, the blood streaming down Yee Fy's face. Hong Di then rushed into his cabin and returned with a butcher knife, but was prevented using it by Mr. E. A. Folsom who arrived on the ground and used a shovel as a peace maker. Lee Hing, another Chinaman, assaulted Yee Fy, by striking him over the head with a brickbat.
 The performance was witnessed by a number of boys and the employees of the Salt Lake Foundry, several of whom told their story in the Police Court to-day. The Celestials also gave their account of the affair, but they differed so materially from each other, and from the facts as related by the witnesses, that there was no resemblance between them. The accused were adjudged guilty and their punishment will be inflicted this afternoon. The whole neighborhood was aroused by the noise, and for a time it was thought that the riotous and brutal behavior had been carried to pieces, but neither of them was badly hurt.

To the Old Style.

Beginning this morning the Denver & Rio Grande will issue one thousand-mile tickets over their system at $35 each, or 35 cents a mile. The Union Pacific and Burlington will soon follow suit, in accordance with the following in the Eastern roads. This is the first step of the Western roads in the direction of resuming old practices, followed before the passage of the interstate commerce bill, and will it be believed, increase the business of the roads a great deal. When the inter-commerce bill became a law, a great many western business firms cut down their trading expenses and enlarged the territory of their agents. This had the effect to cut down the sale of tickets to a minimum. The Denver & Rio Grande railways were losing by their rigid restriction of the law, and it was deemed advisable to return to the old practice. It is said that the re-establishment of 1,000-mile tickets will shortly be followed by the resumption of reduced theatrical rates. The traveling theatrical companies have apportioned to the railways for reduced rates and the matter is now being considered by all of the railways. — Denver News Aug. 1.

CITY COUNCIL.

An Electric Railway—Spills on the Northeast Bench.
 The City Council met in regular session on Tuesday evening, at 7 o'clock, Mayor Armstrong presiding.
 A. A. Leonard asked permission to use the hall in front of his residence, No. 21 Currant Street, for sixty days. Granted.
 Pastor Franklin, of the Norwegian Methodist Episcopal Church, asked for the privilege of connecting a one and a half inch pipe with the main on Second South Street, to convey water to the church building, on Second East. Granted.
 George Goddard, in behalf of other citizens, said they had some time ago asked for the erection of a spill at the corner of Second South and Second East Streets, for the purpose of relieving the water from the main on Second South Street, to convey water to the church building, on Second East. A spill had been erected a block and a half distant, but was of no use to petitioners, and for themselves the necessary relief. The request was not granted owing to the insufficiency of the water supply in the main.
 Emily H. Woodmansee stated that there was no public main on Third South, between First and Second South Streets, for the purpose of relieving the water from the main on Second South Street, to convey water to the church building, on Second East. A spill had been erected a block and a half distant, but was of no use to petitioners, and for themselves the necessary relief. The request was not granted owing to the insufficiency of the water supply in the main.
 The following petition was read:
 To the Honorable Mayor and City Council of Salt Lake City:
 We would respectfully request the right of way for a street railway, track to be laid with no more than the traffic of the street. The route to be along the entire length of Second South Street, from Jordan River to Fort Douglas; also along Eighth West Street, from Second South Street to the Hot Springs. All the work to be done according to the specifications of the Council. If it is not started and completed within three years, the right to be void; otherwise, to remain in force for the term of twenty-five years from date of grant.
 Respectfully,
 EDWARD WILKES AND ASSOCIATES.
 Referred to the committee on streets and alleys.
 John Paul asked leave to transfer the license of his branch meat market on Market Row to George Thurgood. Granted.
 Thomas Ball asked a free license to peddle. Granted.
 One retail liquor license was granted.
 William Willes was present from the Dry Bench, and asked the Council whether it was the intention to afford the people of the North Bench any relief, the people up there were getting restive and demonstrative. He said he wanted to pour oil on the troubled waters, and that he wanted the people to learn their intentions. The people were too poor to advance the necessary money to conduct the water from the main on Sixth Street to their homes. If a spill could be established along the line of this pipe so that people could have free access to it, he thought they would be content.
 Mr. Folsom said he had conferred with people on the bench, and with Mr. Oltiger. He thought it was better to erect a spill with small troughs for the watering of animals. The expense would be nominal, and he thought the step would, for the present, satisfy the people. He moved the reference of the subject to the committee on waterworks, to consider the proposition. Carried.
 Mr. Clark said he would like to ask Mr. Willes the question whether the people up there claimed the water by right, or only the surplus?
 Mr. Willes thought they claimed an equal right with other people according to their number.
 Mr. Clark observed that a few years ago they had only claimed the surplus water.
 Mr. Patrick favored giving the committee on water works power to act in erecting the spill; especially as a number of the people would take the water from the main could not be furnished the necessary pipes until fall.
 Mr. Ritter said it was a delicate subject to speak upon, especially as the members were so poor. He was not a political abolitionist if they didn't act as the people up there wanted them to. He thought, however, that the Council had a right to complain of the manner in which it is being handled. He was in a right to his honest endeavor in behalf of the Dry Benchers had been met. But the fact was plain that the city did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the wants of the Bench—1,500 or 2,000 people were there, and he did not own this water; with as much justice could the Council take the water from the owners and give it to the Dry Benchers. Years ago he bought twenty city lots on the Dry Bench; the city agent had then told him that that land had no water rights, and that he must expect some thousands of dollars had already been expended on the